West Homemakers

By Mrs. Mae Berry

The Carlisle West Club met with Mrs. Albert Henry Friday afternoon, Feb. 10, with 14 members and one visitor present. A very fine devotional was given by Mrs. W. G. Irvin and our Homemakers Creed was read by our visitor, Mrs. Walter Kendall.

We answered roll call by giving our best thought for the day. Recipes were given by the various chairmen. Mrs. Frank Henry gave an interesting report from the Farm and Home Convention, and a short book report was given by Mrs. Mae Berry.

Mrs. Clyde Sexton and Mrs. J. R. Hamilton were in charge of the Liggett-on-Home Nursing, and gave us some valuable information on caring for a patient in the home. These lessons are very important, and we are fortunate to have them demonstrated in such a fine way.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

In memory of love

THEIR tender years together, she thinks of them now.

She recalls her burden he was so willing to share, remembers his kindnesses, his gentle thoughts.

Even his final kindness brings him somehow closer now. For his burial insurance policy* has shielded her from painful details, when there is already pain enough. It has protected her from having to make so many decisions — at an hour when decision comes hard.

She knows he is beside her now, as surely as he always was . . . that he will walk beside her forever.

It's the last way he can tell her. And he was that kind of man.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT BURIAL INSURANCE

- It's a form of insurance that pays funerals with a lump-sum check.
- It relieves survivors from the burden of details and expense.
- It provides funerals costing $200, $300, $500 or more, as you choose. Premiums are payable in one lump sum, or weekly, or monthly.
- It guarantees full value of funeral equal in equipment, supplies and services to face amount of policy bought.
- It's underwritten by Commonwealth Life Insurance Company —Kentucky's oldest and largest.
- It covers all ages, from birth to 90 years, for every family member.
- It requires no medical examination, if insured is in normal good health.

*Through the warm understanding of Kentucky Funeral Directors' Burial Association members, underwritten by Commonwealth Life—the South's oldest, largest and fastest-growing life insurance company . . .

Weekly Recipe

Canned vegetables often take on a fresher flavor if two or more are combined. For an extra touch, add some minced onion, green pepper, parsley, dried mint, or other favorite herb. But go easy on these seasonings, say food specialists at the University of Kentucky, or they will overshadow the delicate flavor of the vegetables.

All home-canned vegetables should be boiled in a covered pan for 10 minutes before the food is tasted.

Succotash

2 c kernel corn
2 c green lima beans
1 T finely minced onion
4 T cream
½ t salt
Pepper
6 slices bacon

Thoroughly cook the kernel corn and lima beans, then drain and save the liquid for soup or to use in gravy. To the mixed vegetables add seasonings, minced onion and cream. Fry the bacon until crisp, pour off fat, and cut bacon in small pieces. Place vegetables in serving dish and sprinkle bacon over the top, adding a few dashes of paprika. Serves 8.

Menu: Pot roast, buttered carrots, succotash, cabbage salad, corn sticks, butter and fruit sauce with cookies.

This is the season when a big northeaster bean pot of beans baking in the oven will bring shouts of joy from the family. Miss Florence Imlay, specialist in foods at the University of Kentucky, suggests making double the amount to make full use of the oven. Then store the extra amount in the home freezer.

Boston Baked Beans

1 qt navy beans
1 small onion
½ lb. salt pork
2 t. salt
½ T mustard
3 T molasses
1 c hot water

Wash beans and soak in cold water over night. Drain, cover with fresh water and cook slowly until skins break. Drain. Place onion in the bottom of bean pot and add beans. Score rind of salt pork. Mix seasonings and hot water together. Bury pork in the beans, leaving rind exposed. Add molasses mixture. Cover bean pot and bake in slow oven, 270-300 degrees, 6 to 8 hours. Add water from time to time as necessary. Bake uncovered the last hour. If desired, the beans may be cooked in the pressure sauce pan at 10 pounds for 1 hour.

Note: Baked beans, scalloped tomatoes, buttered celery, cabbage salad, Boston brown bread, butter, and baked apple with cream.

Get More Fun From Your TV

Millions of people who know television best—and most of them have the parents of children from 3 to 15—have made a science of TV watching. They've established regulations—too frequently unheeded—to guide their families in choosing programs, volume of sound and hours of viewing.

So it is that scientists, mothers, TV producers, well-meaning uncle and newspaper writers are full of advice about television watching, programming and even producing! Frankly, we go for the pros, now and then, one yearns to spin the knob and enjoy a couple of hours of silent darkness. But those red-blooded youngsters would rebel.

Meet the man who performs hundreds of "weddings" a day...

BILL BAKER

Bill is just one of about 1,300 Southern Bell cable splicers. Born with the Company about 18 years, He's active in PTA work, likes to bowl, and is as handy with tools around the house as on the job. What "topknot" to his National Guard pals for years.

Meet Bill Baker, cable splicer for Southern Bell. In his day's work he "joins together" the hundreds of tiny wires in the telephone cables which carry your calls.

Cable splicing is just one of many jobs it takes to fill your telephone needs. And Bill is typical of some 65,000 Southern Bell people who work as a well-coached team. Keeping intricate equipment in top shape. Putting your calls through. Giving you the kind of service you want.

Because you can depend on the people behind the lines, you can depend on your telephone — 24 hours a day.

Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company

HELPS CURE HAY—A machine that hurries the job of getting hay in the barn was described at Farm and Home Week at the University of Kentucky. A hay crusher cuts like a giant wringer, lifting the freshly cut hay from the swath and feeding it through steel rollers. These rollers are adjusted to crack the stems, exposing their inner surfaces to the drying air. Field drying time is reduced 30 to 60 percent. A report on the machine was made by Jesse B. Brooks, agricultural engineer at the UK.

So one always ends up by sitting back and enjoying the show.

It's been found, however, that a TV evening can be a lot more pleasant if you plan for it. A few simple suggestions for visual viewing comfort can be worth more than their weight in TV program guides.

For example . . . that tired eyes feeling you have after a hard day in the home or office. Eye drops before your favorite program will ease the strain so you can sit back and really appreciate the show.

Another good idea, is turning on a moderate room light to counteract TV glare. And don't wear sun glasses! They were made for the beach or that African safari. Not TV viewing in your living room.

It's easy to make the mistake of staring too long at that favorite program. Your eyes need a change of pace . . . look up now and then, focusing on objects either nearer or farther than the TV screen.

Be sure your set is properly installed so the picture is as clear and steady as the maintenance man can make it. This will pay off for you and your family in terms of real eye ease.

Another thing to watch is the relationship of your screen size to the whole room. If you have a small screen in a large room, you'll subconsciously strain to see from your favorite easy chair. Or if you've jammed a king-size screen into a small room, then you'll be overwhelmed and the picture won't be as clear as it should.

Yes, television is great. But after bedtime hours, every parent knows that the best screen is a blank one with volume reduced to a zero.

Then you can say "good night, children!"—and mean it.

Kentucky Homemakers Report On Activities

That the interests of farm and rural women of Kentucky extend far beyond their doorsteps was heard in a report of UK Farm and Home Week in Lexington" by members of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers. Mrs. S. V. Brooks of Shepherdsville, chairman of the state citizenship committee, presented the summary from 1,185 clubs.

Health and safety, education, welfare, community beautification, citizenship, 4-H club cooperation, teen-age recreation, and international aid had an important part in the year's programs.

A child clinic was sponsored by homemakers of Owen and Bullitt counties; 117 water-supply sources were tested in Henry county and, in Campbell county, a microscope was bought for a hospital. A total of 702 homemakers clubs cooperated with the Red Cross and $1,800 was raised in one county for the March of Dimes. Programs on highway and home safety were stressed, Johns on county women making a survey of 274 homes.

Programs on becoming informed citizens were held in 1,015 clubs, and Civil Defense was studied in 163 groups.

International Day was observed in 235 clubs in 37 counties, 10 different countries having been studied, 522 homemakers have pen friends in 39 countries.* Pennies for Friendship totaled more than $1,344; 390 packages of food and clothing were sent to 16 countries, and 270 pairs of shoes to Korea.

Six hundred and eighty homemakers clubs sponsored a scholarship in home economics at the University of Kentucky. A statewide total of $150 was given to the Myrtle Weldon Student Loan Fund.

Many homemakers clubs provided recreational activities for teen-agers, and welfare projects added up to more than $13,000 throughout the state.

Beautification of highways, school grounds, parks, cemeteries, and home and church entrances and lawns were given enthusiastic support as club projects, said Mrs. Brooks.

UK's Hammonds Writes Book On Agriculture

One of the nation's largest publishing companies last week released a book written by Dr. Cassie Hammonds, head of the University of Kentucky's Department of Agricultural Education.

The book, "Everybody's Agriculture," was issued by the J. B. Lippincott Company of Chicago, Philadelphia and New York City. The publisher has announced that the 480-page volume is a general treatment of present-day agriculture. Dr. Hammonds has been associated with the University since 1924.

UK Mathematics Head Is Special Lecturer

Dr. J. C. Eaves, head of the University of Kentucky Department of Mathematics, has been elected lecturer for the Kentucky Section of the Mathematical Association of America. In this capacity, Dr. Eaves will address high school, college and civic groups throughout Kentucky on mathematical subjects. Already the Kentucky Section has scheduled up-to-the-minute 30 talks for the UK department head.

. . . Lincoln chose a Hartford policy

It was February, 1861. Abraham Lincoln was about to leave Illinois to become President of the United States. But first, he insured the Springfield home he loved so much.

We're proud that Mr. Lincoln chose to insure in the Hartford . . . then, as now, one of the oldest, strongest, and most dependable insurance companies in the nation.

And as local agents of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company, we are proud to offer you — without obligation — a facsimile of the famous Lincoln policy. It's yours for the asking.
