Mystery farms are identified

Mystery farm pictures published Feb. 9 and 16 have been claimed by their owners, thus assuring a positive identification. Until the farm owner or tenant calls for the farm picture at Modern Furniture Company an identification can not be published.

Pictured Feb. 9 was the 88 acre farm of Clay Scott on the Moore-field road. The scotts have been owners of the farm for the past 26 years.

Certificate winner for correct identification was Mrs. Edgil Scott, Myers Route 1. Others writing in were Donald Lee Scott, Mrs. A. R. Flora, Lucy Letton, Mrs. Robert Burns, Mrs. George Roberts, Mrs. Bonnie Minton, Mrs. Paul Sivers, Mrs. Rector Smoot, John W. Anderson, Mrs. Lillie Garrett, Frank C. Henry, Ruth Scott, Mrs. Eugene Snapp, Mrs. James D. Gaunce.

Rigg Farm Pictured

In last week's Mercury the farm owned by Mrs. W. W. Rigg located on the Cane Run road was correctly identified by Pansy Gilley Carlisle Route 2, to whom Modern Furniture Company will present a three dollar gift certificate.

The residence is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ecton Sr., who have resided there for the past 10 years.

Others correctly naming the farm were Mrs. Shirley Letcher, Joe Ratliff, Mrs. A. R. Flora, Roy Wayne Dotson, Mrs. Robert Burns, Mrs. George Roberts and Mrs. J. W. Ecton Sr.

A nine-room frame apartment house on Sycamore Hill, belonging to Sterling Vice, was withdrawn at a bid of $6,000. The proceeding was handled by the Fleming County Realty Company.

'Shine raiders arrest three last Thursday

Three men were arrested by state and federal alcohol tax agents last Wednesday in a raid on a Nicholas County home.

Charged with violating whisky tax laws were James Walker McCall, 77, Robert Elmo McCall, 40, and Billy Walter McCall, 24, all of Nicholas County.

They were arrested at the home of the elder McCall, where the agents said they found four 50-gallon wood barrel fermenters containing 175 gallons of cracked corn and cane sugar mash and a 12-gallon copper still in the attic. The still was not in operation.

The agents said, however, that they found another 12-gallon still in operation in a nearby building and found 10 quarts of moonshine whisky under a bed on the first floor of the house.

The agents, who carried a search warrant, seized or destroyed the stills, mash and whisky.

The McCalls were charged with making and fermenting mash on prohibited premises, setting up and operating an illegal distillery and possessing untaxed whisky.

They were taken before U. S. Commissioner Ben L. Kessinger Jr. in Lexington and were held to the May term of U. S. District Court after waiving a preliminary hearing. They were released on $500 bond each.

Making the raid were Sylvester Kiger, Lexington, agent of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, and E. M. Statton and Elton Champion, both of Lexington, agents for the federal Alcohol Tax Unit.
