Polio—no needless risk

American love to take a chance. That's why we have patent vendors and millions of dollar industrial plants and a way of life that makes us the most fortunate people in the world.

But Americans neither love nor respect the fellow who takes the "you-can-win" kind of chance. He is the reason most of our automobile accidents, our nuclear leaks, our loss of our available loss of life, health and property.

Until only last year the crippling disease called polio was pretty much lightning in the sense that we never knew where it would strike and it happened, to hit one of our own, there was little we could do but call the doctor, pray and turn to the hands of Deities to help to get to the end goal.

That is a year ago. Science has taken the name of March of Dimes, science has taken better than 90 per cent of the disease out of polio. We have the Salk vaccine. That is high percentage and not just for the children and their children. And those of us who don't take advantage of this tremendous discovery are taking the "you-can-win" kind of chance.

Yet, your young child will not hesitate to take a young adult "you-never" may vaccine. But when we didn't have that vaccine, a certain number of Americans were crippled each year. In America were crippled each year, a certain number of Americans were crippled each year. In America were crippled each year, a certain number of Americans were crippled each year.

Now that national election is over, you'd think that the politicians would be glad to get back to work. But in Washington, they are still busy with the aftermath of the election.

The Bureau figures that the number of people who voted in the election was 62,000,000. That is a record for the United States.
