Soil tests come before fertilizer, Straw says

SOIL SAMPLING—Emmett Darrell is pictured taking a sample from one of three common soil types found in Nicholas County. Sampling of the soil is wet should be dried and all lumps crushed before delivery to the soil testing laboratory.

If Nicholas County farmers are to get the best results from their fertilizer that they purchase, it is very important that they follow a good soil testing program according to County Agent William T. Straw. Mr. Straw states that there is no common practice among Nicholas County farmers to use a soil test of several years back in purchasing their fertilizers for the coming years. He points out that this should not be done in view of the unbalanced nature that often occurs in the soil, in regard to nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium needs. This is especially true with our tobacco needs. Mr. Straw explains it in this way: "That if we have a barrel that has one stave broken half-way down in the barrel, we can only get half of the barrel with water half as full as we would if the other stave was completed." This is the same procedure that happens in our soil. We have phosphorus and nitrogen, but only benefit from the potash that we have in our soil.

It is believed that several thousand dollars can be saved by Nicholas County farmers through a proper soil testing program, which will balance the fertilizers that are put into the soil.

Excessive nitrogen may be damaging to the tobacco crop, as well as not enough.

Mr. Straw says that he does not mean to leave the impression that large supply of plant food is not needed and that fertilizers will not pay off, but on the other hand it is felt that the proper amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus and potasium applied will be much more profitable as far as yield and the money that can be saved through application.

It appears that some parts of our county is much higher in some elements than others. In buying fertilizer such as 5-10-15, if we apply that at the rate of one ton to the acre then we have ample supply of phosphorus naturally available or potash that we will be spending money for this element that is not needed for good tobacco production. It points out that these fertilizers may be applied to alfalfa or other crops which will bring in a greater dollar return than using them on our cash crop of tobacco.

Soil Sampling

Mr. Straw states that the farmer or anyone can take the soil sample from the field should use care in obtaining the sample so that the three common tools used for sampling are the sampling tubes, auger, shovel or spade. A heavy paper bag should be used to move the samples to the laboratory.

A sample is best taken from field when the soil is dry enough to plow, however, a good sample can be taken when the soil is wet. The wet soil sample should be dryed and all lumps crushed before delivering to the laboratory. Do not dry samples over a stove, radiator, before an open fire, or in an oven.

Mr. Straw says that in his past experience of reviewing the soil samples that have been brought into his office, that with the majority of the farmers he has been able to save or to recommend a better fertilizer than has been applied in past years.

He also states that complete information on how to take a good soil sample is available in the University of Kentucky Leaflet No. 139 which may be secured at his office upon request.
