Church Attendance In U. S. A. High; Half Of Adults Questioned Say They Attend Church Weekly

By Kenneth Fink, Director, Princeton Research Service

Princeton, New Jersey—Last week churches across the nation were humming with activity. Decorations, musical cantatas, pageans, and spectacles were drawing people by the millions into churches all over the U. S. A.

Citizens across the nation, however, go to church, not only during the Christmas week, on Easter Sunday, or other Holy Days, but in other weeks of the year too. In a typical week of the year, approximately 51 million adults attend church. In recent weeks, the following question has been personally put to scientifically drawn samples of the adult population:

"Did you happen to go to church during the past seven days?"

Following are the average results for the weeks investigated:

CHURCH ATTENDANCE?

Yes, attended during past seven days	50%
No, did not	50

In round numbers, this means that some 51 million of the nation's estimated 102 million adults attend the church of their faith in an average week.

Some idea of the amazing growth of church attendance made in 1940—16 years ago—are compared with today's survey findings.

In 1940, survey findings on church attendance showed that slightly more than one-third of the adult population—25 per cent—went to church; whereas today, one-half of the adult population—50 per cent—attend.

Analysis of today's survey findings brings to light a number of interesting facts about churchgoing habits.

1. In church attendance, women outnumber men.

2. Persons who have had the advantage of a college education go more often than do those who have had a high school education. And persons with a high school education, in turn, attend somewhat more frequently than do those who have not gone to high school.

3. Catholics were found to be more faithful in their church attendance than Protestants, and Protestants attended more often than those of the Jewish faith.

4. Little difference in churchgoing was found among younger adults, middle-aged, and older ones.

Comparisons by Groups of Church Attendance

Men	47%
Women	53
Attended college	57%
Attend high school only	50
Grade school only	47
Catholics	74%
Protestants	44
Jews	29
21-29 years	50%
30-44 years	52
45 years & over	49

Sixteen persons lose lives in state; seven shot to death, one burned, one beaten and six die in motor accidents during Christmas.

Six hundred sacks filled with candy and fruit were distributed among underprivileged children of Nicholas County by the American Legion.

The young ladies of the town have issued invitations for a Leap Year dance on Wednesday night at the city school gymnasium.

The warmest December weather in years has prevailed in this section during the past week.

Prying loose a window, thieves broke into a barn of Sam Smith near town Tuesday night and stole a quantity of tobacco. This was the second time within two weeks that tobacco has been stolen from the barn.

KENTUCKIANS IN WASHINGTON

By Gil Kingsbury

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS:

Believe it or not, Kentucky Democrats will get more tickets to the inauguration than will their brethern, the Kentucky Republicans.

It works this way: Tickets for the big show are allocated to members of Congress. And, because there are more Democrats than GOP partizans in the Congress, more tickets will go to the majority party.

However, many such ticket-holders will turn over their ducats to their Republican colleagues. Thus, you can safely bet that the crowd will be dominated by the GOP.

OHIO RIVER BRIDGES:

Kentuckians who are looking forward to more bridges across the Ohio River will be interested in a squabble involving Washington and the Potomac River.

More than two years ago, a new bridge across the Potomac was okayed. But nothing has happened. It's all because of a hot debate over a proposed tunnel.

Some Washingtonians insist that another bridge would spoil the beauty of the water front. A tunnel, they insist, is the thing that's needed. Others object on the basis of cost, pointing out that a tube beneath the river would cost four times the price of a bridge.

That's where the matter rests, and Washington-Virginia traffic continues to be tied into knots. The same thing could happen to those proposed Kentucky bridges.

ELEVENTH SENATOR:

When Thruston Morton takes the oath of office as senator, he'll become the eleventh such lawmaker from Kentucky in six-teen years.

It's hard to believe, as we've pointed out before, that the Blue Grass State has had so many senators. Here's the list: Miles Logan, Alben Barkley, A. B. Chandler, Garrett Withers, Tom Underwood, Virgil Chapman, William Stanfill, John Sherman Cooper, Earle C. Clements, and Robert Humphrey.

The revolving-door technique might indicate our state has plenty of men of senatorial stature but it also keeps the commonwealth from obtaining positions of prestige through the seniority system.

IN CONTRAST:

On the other hand, Kentuckians are fairly conservative in the election of their congressmen. The fifth District has had the same member for 26 years, Brent Spence. The First District has been represented by Noble Gregory for 20 years. Frank Chelf has been in the House for 12 years, representing the Fourth District. Finally, Carl Perkins has been a congressman for eight years, a member from the Seventh Kentucky District.

Because of their lengthy service, all hold high positions on important committees. Spence heading the Banking Committee, Gregory close to the top on the Ways and Means Committee, while Chelf, on the Judiciary Committee and Perkins, on the Labor and Education Committee, are swiftly moving to places of prominence.

CABBAGE SNAKES AGAIN

Years ago in this column I discussed at some length the cabbage-snake scare that swept over our Fidelity community in 1904 or 1905. About the time that I wrote the article, one of our professors at Western, who had been reared in Arkansas, told me that the same scare went through his neighborhood at approximately the same time. Neither of us at that time had ever heard anybody else say anything about the superstition. Since that time I have asked a good many people and have found that cabbage snakes appeared just about everywhere in western Kentucky in the early days of the century, worried a number of superstitious people and then disappeared, along with many another folk animal of yesteryear.

Today in the mail came a reassurance of my slightly-faulty memory, a newspaper clipping from the MOUNTAIN EAGLE, of Laurel County, dated March 2, 1910.

"NO CABBAGE SNAKE"

Dr. J. G. Owsley of Lily telephoned us yesterday regarding the case of poisoning of S. W. Gregory and family. Dr. Owsley sent the 'thing' found in the cabbage to Lexington to be analyzed and received a report it was not a cabbage snake but a species of 'thousand leg.' This is to state you can now go ahead and raise all the cabbage you want this season."

I am indebted to Dr. Marie Campbell, now of Indiana University, a persistent collector of folklore, for this item. You will notice that it shows the scare lasted some years after our Fidelity outbreak. The item is a bit hazy about there being a cabbage snake, even though it says the present case was of something else. I wish I knew about that scare and how many heads of cabbage rotted in gardens because people were afraid to eat the poisoned vegetable.

One reason this superstition has always intrigued me is that it does not follow the usual course of folk beliefs. Most beliefs go away back into dim past experiences, so far back that there is no dating of them. Ancestors believed certain things which they in turn had been told in still remoter times, modern believers would be startled if asked when people began to believe that Friday is unlucky or the hoot of an owl portends sorrow. Either of these can be traced through hundreds or thousands of years as already sufficiently widely known to appear in writings of all sorts. Think how long they must have passed by word of mouth before anybody who could write set them down! But the cabbage snake suddenly arose and as suddenly died. It raised its sneaky head only in that brief time, so far as I can learn. For us at Fidelity it was a one-year superstition; it may have lasted a bit longer elsewhere.

Since I was about grown up when the mania came, I recall that some of the thoughts that people may have got sick after eating cabbage and other things and suspected presence of lead just then coming into use in our remote place; pretty badly feared. Just how widespread the dusting of cabbage with Paris green or arsenate of lead was I do not know. Maybe the sight of an ordinary cabbage worm, the larva of the pretty cabbage butterfly, may have set off some of this hysteria. It is highly probable that many a person had lived a long time without having ever actually examined the cabbage worm; a spell of sick stomach combined with fear of the newly-used poison, may have started the fear. But the question still remains: "Why was the scare so limited in time?"

Ellisville Homemakers

Ellisville Homemakers enjoyed a delightful Xmas. Party at the home of Mrs. Leonard Alexander Dec. 5. Fifteen members answered roll call by naming a favorite Christmas Carol. We had one visitor, Mrs. Eddie Roy Price, and three children present.

Mrs. Rex Jones and Mrs. June Hildreth gave interesting suggestions on Xmas Decorations.

Mrs. William Dollins decorated a Xmas cake which was enjoyed for lunch. After our delicious meal served by our hostess, our meeting began. Mrs. Oval Day reading Devotional, second Chapter Luke. Mrs. Frank Mann prayer, also a Christmas poem.

Mrs. J. W. Kenton gave a Xmas Reading. "Hope of Xmas". We sang Xmas Carols and enjoyed recreation led by Mrs. Fred Jones and Mrs. Rex Jones. Reese Wayne Smoot recited a Xmas poem.

We then enjoyed our Xmas tree, everyone receiving gifts. The meeting was adjourned to meet Jan. 2 with Mrs. Reese Smoot.

Bluegrass resists crabgrass invasion

Seventeen of 25 test selections of bluegrass had "significantly more crabgrass invasion than regular commercial varieties, says Robert Buckner, UK Agricultural Experiment Station grass-breeder, in a test run this year at Lexington.

Buckner said 25 individual plant selections were made from old pastures and similar areas in central Kentucky. Seed from these was used on plots for a check against commercial varieties.

Plots were sown in the fall of 1954 and seed taken from them last spring. The plots were harvested three times last summer, to stimulate pasture conditions.

At that time, Buckner said, 17 of the selections had "significantly less crabgrass invasion than commercial varieties; and 18 of the 25 selections yielded significantly more forage than the commercial ones."

He also evaluated the plots for color. Those with the best color in February and April generally had poorest color in summer; and those poor in February and April had the best color in the summer. A few strains had fair color throughout the year.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

THURSDAY, JANUARY 3
Read Galatians 6:1-10.

If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. (11 Corinthians 5:17.)

Last spring I received a letter from a lady, a widow, who lives in a city hundreds of miles from any relatives. She works to support herself. Two years ago she underwent major surgery, followed by a long period of recovery. As a young woman, she had been a Christian, but later drifted away. Following the death of her husband about four years ago, she turned back to God and the Church.

She wrote in her letter: "We are having some wonderful Easter services in our church, but it is difficult for me to describe my feelings, but somehow I feel as if the church is a part of me and wonder how I lived without it. Life is now so different. No problem seems difficult any more. God is with me wherever I go. Loneliness is not bad any more. Illness and pain are easier to bear. I'm sure you understand."

Knowing Christ enables one to really live.

PRAYER

Our Father, forgive us where-in we have tried to live our own lives without Thee. Help us so to give ourselves to Thee that we may know Christ and the joy and victory which He alone can give. In His name we pray. Amen.
