Beef, Sheep specialists to be here Monday

George Pendergrass and Richard C. Miller, beef and sheep specialists, respectively, from the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Kentucky, will talk at a beef and sheep meeting in Carlisle on Monday at 9:30 a.m. The county-wide meeting, to which all interested are invited, will be held at the County Courthouse, it was announced today by County Agent William T. Straw. Special problems relating to Nicholas county will be discussed.

George D. Pendergrass

Pendergrass will discuss the beef production outlook and selection of types of bulls and cows for the different crossing prices, such as feeder calf or cow-and-calf production.

Miller will present the latest information on feeding, breeding and management in order to have profitable sheep production.

Richard C. Miller

Sheep provide an economical way to supplement tobacco farms; they work in well with tobacco production, will produce an average of 1½ lambs per ewe with good management, aid in weed control, and produce a very high income per animal unit, County Agent Straw pointed out.

Many farmers in Nicholas county have expressed an interest in placing sheep on their farms, he said, and this meeting will provide an opportunity for them to learn the advantages as well as any major drawbacks.

Farm Bureau holds annual membership drive dinner; committees appointed

Twenty-eight Farm Bureau leaders attended the annual membership drive dinner held at the Masonic Lodge on Monday night of this week, according to Harold R. Letton, Farm Bureau president. A membership drive in the Nicholas County Farm Bureau is underway and they hope to enroll 450 families or more in the membership drive which will be concluded in January. Last year 490 Farm Bureau families were members.

Roy Nickell, District Organizational Director of the Farm Bureau attended the dinner meeting and congratulated the local Farm Bureau leaders in the aggressive way that they have conducted the Farm Bureau Organization in this county. He said over 75000 Kentucky Farm Bureau families belong in 111 counties. Nicholas County is a part of the state farm bureau and the American Farm Bureau Federation. Last year there were more than one million, six hundred thousand Farm families in the forty eight states in the American Farm Bureau. Nickell concluded that Nicholas County should be proud to be a part of a well rounded legislative, educational, social and membership service for farmers.

A list as follows of the Farm Bureau leaders who attended the dinner meeting held on Monday night: Charles Ishmael, Noble Gillispie, Edgar Darrell, W. O. Doyle, Walter Huddleson, Howard Sidle, Raymond Coy, Forrest Lowe, E. E. Plantzlaff, Sam Smith, Harvey Wagoner, John Soper Jr., Raymond House, John Hamilton, Kenneth Stephenson, Ray Flora, Raymond Hall, R. L. Hatton, Harold R. Letton, Frank C. Henry, E. C. Duncan, H. T. Letton, Roy E. Snapp, and Leslie E. Clinkenbeard.

Big Ned Jennings breaks own record by scoring 106 points in two games

The Nicholas County Blue Jackets added wins number six and seven to their regular season record during the past week by trouncing two Bath county teams, Owingsville 82-68 and Sharpsburg 77-67.

Big Ned Jennings carried the scoring load in both contests, and in doing so broke his own scoring record and that of the number of points scored in the Nicholas County gymnasium. Rolling 106 points through the hoops in the two contests, Jennings paced the local crew with 56 against Owingsville Friday night, and came back Tuesday against Sharpsburg with 50 counters.

In both games the Nicholas County team was pressed to win from the squads from Bath county.

Friday night Owingsville kept pace with the Blue and White during the first period 20-20, but the Jackets moved out front by six at half-time, 39-33. During the third period led by Jennings, the Nicholas team rolled through 24 points while holding Owingsville to 16, making a margin of 63-49. The Owingsville squad came back strongly in the last canto to hold the Jackets even 19-19.

The Blue Jackets marched to the foul line 19 times and connected 14 times a percentage of 73 team wasn't quite so good, in 26 free tries hitting 16 for a 61 percentage.

Tuesday night an aggressive little Sharpsburg five chased the larger Blue Jackets all over the floor and gave them a number of scares before enough got the ball game in the closely called contest, the Sharpsburg squad received 37 free throws, making 27 for a percentage mark of 73. The Blue Jackets fell short of their usual free throw accuracy as they went to the strip 26 times and hit 16 for a 52 percent average.

In both contests the Jackets looked ragged at times, making poor passes, standing flat-footed on rebounds and in general lacking the level-headed aggressiveness with which they have performed in the past. Friday night they meet Harrison county on the home floor, a team which has given responsible for two of the Big Blue's four defeats in the over-all season.

Rep. Watts asks for income tax exemption increase

Congressman John C. Watts immediately upon being sworn in as a Member of the House of Representatives of the 85th Congress introduced two bills, both dealing with the individual Federal income tax.

One of the measurers would provide for an increase in the personal income tax exemption raising the present amount from $600 to $900 per individual. The other would authorize, as a permissible deductible item of expense, the reasonable and necessary expenses paid during the taxable year by an individual for transportation to and from work, such expenses not to exceed $500 in any one year.

The Congressman stated that at this early date it was impossible to anticipate what action might be taken by Congress.

A County-wide dairy meeting of important significance is announced for Wednesday, Jan. 16 of next week according to W. T. Straw, county agent. The meeting is jointly sponsored by the Carlisle-Nicholas County Chamber of Commerce and the dairy producers of Nicholas County. The event will be held at the County Courthouse beginning at 1:00 p.m.

Serving on a committee to make plans for the event are the following: Dr. Jack Morford, A. V. Allison and Joe Allen Stone representing the Chamber of Commerce and representing the dairy producers are Dorsey Watkins and Kenneth Stephenson.

Prizes Will Be Given

Approximately $75 worth of merchandise prizes will be given away as gate prizes to dairymen and prospective dairymen who attend this meeting. The Borden Milk Company is giving the following prizes: One ten gallon milk can, one small mouth sanitary milk pail, seven pound can of disinfectant, and eight pound can of dairy cleaner, and one gang brush. The committee is busy soliciting gate prizes and the list is not complete but a partial list of other prizes to be offered are: Two blocks of mineral salt, one grade Holstein heifer given by the Chamber of Commerce, seven bags of dairy feed and other articles of special use to dairymen.

Borden Representative To Explain Huntington Need

D. A. Harold, general manager of the Borden Company will be here to explain their proposed use of milk in the Huntington area. It is reported that this company would like to purchase three truck loads of milk daily in Nicholas County if it can be produced in the near future.

The purpose of this meeting is to acquaint dairymen with opportunity that exists in the production of whole milk, and to explain the general dairy situation. Garland Bastin, Field Agent in Dairying, University of Kentucky and Harold Miller, Field Agent in Agronomy will discuss the overall picture in dairying with emphasis on the facilities needed and the necessary feed production that must accompany a good dairy farm program. A special guest of the meeting will be Bob Wilson, representing the American Dairy Association which is a producer financed organization, which has its objective to increase the consumption of milk in America. Jack Morgan, representing the Kentucky Economic Development Organization will also be present. Local banks and other credit institutions will be represented at this meeting.

Most Nicholas County farmers have found their income declining in the last few years. The opportunity that now exists in dairying may be partly the answer to needed farm income.
