NOTICE TO ALL DOG OWNERS

The Nicholas County Fiscal Court at a special meeting held January 12, 1957 appointed Mr. J. W. Fryman as Dog Warden of Nicholas County for the year 1957. Mr. Fryman who resides at the County Infirmary is now available to make appraisals of damaged livestock, to pick up stray dogs and to sell dog tags at one of the offices in the courthouse.

The last report shows there has been only 400 dog tags sold since last July as compared with approximately 1000 tags sold during the year July 1, 1954 to July 1, 1955, which indicates there are approximately 500 or 600 unlicensed dogs in Nicholas County. The newly appointed Dog Warden urges everyone to come in and buy tags immediately which they are now required to do as of July 1 of each year and which, it seems, were overlooked by a number of people.

The Warden also asks that everyone make sure that their dog is wearing its tab so that in the event he is called, upon to pick up any strays, he will have some way of knowing to whom the dog belongs.

County schools collecting clothing for flood relief

The Nicholas County schools are collecting clothing for the use of the people of Eastern Kentucky who have been hard hit by the recent flood. Parents have been asked to send clothing to any Nicholas County school on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Please give your support.

Local people in flood zone accounted for

When news reached Carlisle that the "worst flood on record" was roaring down Little Sandy through certain sections of Eastern Kentucky grave concern was felt by all for the welfare of relatives and friends known to live in that area.

At Prestonsburg, the family of Fred Francis (Marjorie Hopkins) was among hundreds of others awakened about 3 a.m. on Tuesday morning of last week by shouted warnings that barely rose above the dim of the continued four-day torrential downpour. In ten minutes water was half-way up the one-story home, which was built in 1950 and modernized in 1954. It is said, but the family was safe. All bedding was lost and the motor in the gas furnace was washed out At last report they had drinking water and cooking facilities.

Boyarden Family Safe

At Pikeville, the family of D. T. Bogardus, the former Hilda Booth of Carlisle, was finally located by radio Saturday night. They were safe. The first floor of their home was flooded, water lacking but two feet of reaching the second floor. All contents of the first floor, including furniture and clothing, was destroyed and they have no heat.

Only Street Not Flooded

Mrs. Roger Womack was able to communicate by telephone Monday with her sister, Mrs. H. T. Wiley, at Paintsville, whose home was flooded. All contents of the first floor was badly damaged.

Mrs. Womack's mother and another sister reside on the only street in Paintsville that was not flooded.

Foreman's Family Safe

William Cramer, foreman of the construction company now erecting a large building for Southern States Cooperative on East Main street in Carlisle, resides in Corbin. Upon hearing of the flood he immediately went home, but has returned and said conditions there at that time were not as bad as in other places. His home had suffered little damage.

Irvin To Rescue

Hearing of the disaster, John Irvin, of Lexington, formerly of Carlisle, who travels for the Ky. Ignition Co. through that section of Kentucky, was not far away and he hurried to Prestonsburg to be of assistance if any he could. Locating the Francis family he gave a hand with his car bringing carpets, drapes, etc. to cleaners in Lexington, and brought Malissa, the Francis' six-year-old daughter to Carlisle to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hopkins, on Fredrick.

Dr. W. G. Irvin, state veterinarian, was called to Eastern Kentucky by state officials Saturday and is still there.

THE COMMITTEE—Assembled hurriedly Monday morning, quickly planned their work for flood relief under the direction of Dr. J. T. Morford, president of the Carlisle-Nicholas County Chamber of Commerce. By midnight Tuesday the coordinated efforts of these men and the generosity of the people resulted in the arrival at Prestonsburg of food and clothing. It was impossible to picture the part played by everyone and no attempt is made to name them all. Many good people not pictured, sorted, packaged and loaded supplies Tuesday night and Wednesday. Volunteers are still needed. Inset picture above shows one of the many containers placed at stores for the collection of donations. Scenes below depict the spirit with which the job was tackled. Stories elsewhere tell the needs. A final collection from schools, stores in the county and town will be made Friday.—Mercury photos

Mayor accompanies aid truck to Prestonsburg Tuesday night

The one and one-half ton truck loaded with clothing and an estimated $400 worth of food which was so hurriedly assembled by sympathizing residents of Carlisle and Nicholas County left here late Tuesday and arrived in flood-stricken Prestonsburg exactly at midnight.

In charge of the truck was a party of three, headed by Mayor William Power, and included Eugene Neal and Bob Coatney.

It was an "awful mess," said Mayor Power. Receding waters had been 11 feet deep in the main center of the Eastern Kentucky mountain town of from 3,500 to 4,000 people.

"Everybody seemed to be asleep when we arrived," said the Mayor "so we drove around the town and hunted up the distribution warehouse, which no one could miss."

They passed the Fred Francis home, but did not try to arouse anyone.

Rev. McMillan There

Some one of the trio knew that Rev. McMillan, a former pastor of the Carlisle Baptist church is now pastor in Prestonsburg, so they "headed for the parsonage." Water had been 15 inches deep in his home. He was overjoyed to see friends from Carlisle and served them hot coffee.

Rev. McMillan was asked to supervise the distribution of the food and clothing from Carlisle and he graciously consented.

Soap Needed

It was found that more clothing is needed in Prestonsburg. They have plenty. The greatest need now is mattresses, bedding, mops and brooms. This need is urgent and great. Of course food is needed, and don't forget "plenty of soap," added the Mayor. Baby supplies are still badly needed, he said.

Rev. McMilan sent personal regards to all Carlisle friends and acquaintances and expressed hearfelt thanks to the city and county for their help in this time of devastation and dire need.

The undaunted spirit of those who suffered most is something all eye-witness will never forget," said Carlisle's Mayor, Bill Power.

Committees Coordinate aid

"The little town with the big heart" found the coordination of useful articles and money for the people of flood devasted Eastern Kentucky Sunday with the calling together of a Chamber of Commerce committee composed of the following:

MAYOR WILLIAM POWER—to handle all arrangements for door to door solicitation of Carlisle. Use of school children to distribute circulars explaining the movements needs. Pickups were made Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday and a final countywide pickup of articles will be made Friday.

ELMER DAMPIER—to accept and record all monies given for flood victims' relief.

ROBERT COATNEY — in charge of distribution. Coatney will make distribution of articles directly to the smaller areas which suffered severely.

NATE YOUNG JR.—coordinate help at the local Armory. All volunteers who are not afraid of work and wish to help in this cause are requested to contact Mr. Young

PAUL SMOOT—to arrange necessary trucks for distribution.

Receiving Points

Barrels or other suitable containers have been placed in all grocery stores for the collection of gifts such as canned meats, canned milk, baby bottles and nipples, baby food, clothes, diapers, etc.
