Traffic safety

gram" is, in effect, a "prescription," embodying the practical measures which experience has shown to be necessary to reduce street and highway accidents. It is the product of years and years of research and experience by the nation's foremost safety experts.

The prescription embraces laws and ordinances, accident records, education, enforcement, engineering, motor vehicle administration and public information. You can't leave out any of the elements and expect full success, any more than your pharmacist can leave something out of your doctor's prescription and expect the intended benefits.

To help every citizen understand what this program is, and how he can support it, the President's Committee offers a series of eight short films: a 13-minute picture, dealing with organization for traffic safety; and seven shorter ones, explaining each element of the Action Program. They're worth seeing—they'll inspire you to action. Available, also, is a leaflet, presenting the whole story in simple language. Both can be had, just by dropping a note or a postcard to the President's Committee for Traffic Safety, General Services Building, Washington 25, D. C. They'll let you know what your local and state governments—and you—should be doing.

But that's just by way of getting yourself informed—or briefed," as we used to say in the Navy. It's Point 2—organized public support—where you and I get into the act. Or, at least, we'd better get into it if we really mean it when we say we want to save lives and stop the maiming of human bodies.

The reason why we must get into it is that our public officials just can't—and in some cases won't—do the job without our backing. Remember that officials are simply the representatives of the people. If the people want traffic safety, and say so in a clear voice, their officials will see that they get it.

Too often, when an official puts his ear to the ground, all that he hears is a roar of "do" and "don't do" that gives no more meaning than the droning of innumerable motors, so he merely nods.

Or, he thinks of the experiences of contentious men like Mayor Hartsfield of Atlanta, who did what needed doing to reduce accidents. His good work annoyed a number of influential people, so they voted him out of office. There was a happy ending though. Atlanta's thinking people organized, made the citizens realize that the Mayor was right, and he was voted back into office, and kept there.

Isn't the lesson clear? The need for organized citizen support is so obvious that it needs no illumination. It is so important that the President's Committee for Traffic Safety has made it a primary objective.

So, how is it brought about? It's not as difficult as one might think, and you can find the directions in the simple and easy-to-follow Workbook prepared by the 1956 Regional Conferences of the President's Committee.

It's only an eighth of an inch thick, but it gives all the answers anybody needs to get an organization rolling: the what, how, who, where, when and why. It's prepared by a group of the most knowledgeable, experienced men in the field of safety. It's so good that Mrs. Raymond Sayre, chairman of the Women's Group of the President's Committee, said at the conclusion of the first Regional Conference:

"You can put on an absolutely first rate safety program if you just take this Workbook home and study it and use it. You don't need anything else."

You can have a copy for the asking. Same address as you use to get the "Action Program": President's Committee for Traffic Safety, Washington 25, D. C.

So, how about it? It will take a little work to correct something that has killed more than a million Americans?

Even today, with 65 million motor vehicles in operation, we have just finished a year which had 40,000 traffic deaths. How many will we have in 1966, when it is estimated there will be 82 million vehicles? You and I and our neighbors and fellowtowns-men can help determine what the answer will be. If we organize, it can be a good answer. If we don't, it will be one that will horrify.

One-man crusades for traffic safety undoubtedly accomplish some good, and the committee salutes those sturdy individuals who conduct them. "More power to them," is the prayer.

But one voice can be very feeble when it's raised against the human frailties of thousands of motorists and their public officials, whose errors and derelictions create the traffic accident problem.

Many voices—organized voices—afford the only means of success. The job that needs doing requires teamwork—lots of it—today, tomorrow and continually. The Action Program tells what must be done. The Workbook shows how you, as a good citizen, can see that it is done.

Roadblocks cut highway deaths

Kentucky's Department of Public Safety, Frankfort, is striving to block the highway death toll with mobile roadblocks

"The roadblocks," says State Safety Commissioner Don S. Sturgill, "are set up at strategic traffic locations at varying times and places."

Manned by Kentucky State Troopers, the new mobile roadblocks occur at unannounced times and places.

"Purpose of the system is to make spot checks on persons who may be driving without a driver's license, driving on revoked license and, of course, driving under the influence of alcohol," Sturgill emphasized.

Senate warned not to "pre-judge" tobacco

Senator John Sherman Cooper (R.Ky.) has warned the Senate a second time against "prejudging" the case of tobacco as a possible factor in the cause of cancer and other diseases.

Addressing the Senate for the second time in three days, Senator Cooper strongly opposed a bill introduced last week by Senator Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) which would terminate the price-support program for tobacco. The Neuberger Bill provides that "beginning with the 1959 crop, no price support, marketing quota, acreage allotment, or acreage-reserve program shall be effective with respect to tobacco."

Once again, Senator Cooper pointed out that any relationship which might exist between tobacco and cancer is a medical-scientific question, and said "the Senate is not competent to judge this matter." Nothing that several scientists and research groups do not agree with the findings of the American Cancer Society and the U. S. Public Health Service, Senator Cooper declared the question "should be left in the hands of people . . . who have the scientific and professional qualifications to make a competent judgment."

Refuting Senator Neuberger's contention that the Government subsidizes the tobacco program, Senator Cooper explained that the Commodity Credit Corporation "has not had a pound of tobacco in its inventory since World War II," that the tobacco price-support program has returned a profit of $10 million to the Treasury in the last 25 years; and that Federal and State tobacco tax revenues have totalled over $2 billion annually —"about double the return the return to the growers themselves from the sale of their leaf."

Senator Cooper, who expressed his belief the Neuberger Bill would not be passed, urged the Senate to separate—as two distinct questions—the matter of any tobacco-cancer relationship from the operation of a successful farm program on which 750,000 farm families depend.

CURIO—Mary Ellen Stone, eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kash Stone, holds a rock she found on the farm near Myers when her father was ploughing. The rock is covered with "quartz formations very much like Indian hieroglyphics" and is now on display at Hopkins Drug store —Mercury photo

Pasture tour was well attended despite inclement weather last week

The pasture tour on the Edgar Edmonson farm, on the Ruddles Mill road, and the Kennedy farm, on Highway 32, one mile from Carlisle, was well attended last week

Darrell pointed out how he and his sons have converted waste land (trees, bushes, and briars) into outstanding pasture land by using a bulldozer to clear the land, bogging instead of plowing the steep land, liming and fertilizing adequately, sowing enough seed to "Track a rabbit" and disking the seed in to the ground to insure coverage. "That land will grow good pasture, even tobacco, without lime or fertilizer, but I wanted it to grow better pasture so I limed and fertilized it", said Darrell. The hillsides were covered with a heavy growth of Ky 31 Fescue, Orchard Grass, White Clover, Red Clover, Sweet Clover and Korean Lespedeza.

Russell P. Alexander, manager of the Kennedy farm, reminded the crowd of the unpredictive condition that existed before the land was cleared, bogged, limed and fertilized according to soil tests, and seeded in August 1955. "August is one of the best times in the year to establish permanent pastures", said Alexander. Ky 31 Fescue, Ladino Clover and Korean Lespedeza are the dominant plants.

It was apparent on both farms that there are advantages of converting tree, bush, vine and briar covered waste land into productive permanent pasture directly instead of growing an intervening row crop. By so doing, the top soil and the organic matter is not lost by erosion.

Other farmers are invited to observe these fields and see how erosion has been stopped. Also, see how this once waste land is producing marketable products —pasture — through livestock and dairy products.

John W. Jones burley Co-op president dies

John William Jones, 72, of North Middletown, prominent Bourbon county banker, businessman, farmer, church leader and president of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-Operative Association, died suddenly at his last Wednesday night.

Mr. Jones, affectionately known throughout Kentucky and the burley belt as "John Willie," succumbed suddenly at 8:30 p.m while attending a meeting of the Bourbon County Board of Education.

Death was attributed to a heart attack. He had suffered from a heart ailment in the past several years and was hospitalized in Lexington in January, 1954, after suffering a severe attack.

He had been president of the burley co-operative, the largest organization handling the government's burley price-support program, since 1941.

He also served as president of the Burley and Dark Leaf Export Association, whose job is to promote foreign use of American-grown tobaccos. He often had been credited with being a top guiding force in elevating the tobacco farmers' standard of living.

He was president of the North Middletown Deposit Bank, office which he had been associated for 34 years.

Most recent recognition of his widely known leadership came in January of this year when he was one of three Kentuckians to receive the first annual Golden Sheaf awards, presented at the 45th annual Farm and Home convention in Lexington. The award was presented to him for his work of more than half a century in banking, agriculture, church and business activities.

In 1921 he helped organize the first burley "pool," which led ultimately to the present price support program for tobacco and was head of the pool again

Everett Green injured in fall

Everett Green, 46, of Dorseyville, was taken to a Lexington hospital Monday afternoon after a fall at Myers, from a high porch, where he was assisting his son with an antenna.

He was treated at the Nicholas County hospital prior to the transfer to St. Joseph's in Lexington. He reportedly suffered a sprained neck.

He was able to be brought to his home Tuesday afternoon.

McCarty knocked-down as two make-good escape at local jail

Two prisoners at the Nicholas County Jail escaped Tuesday afternoon when they overpowered the jailer, John McCarty, when he allowed them from their cells to make a "phone call."

McCarty was knocked down by the two men, identified as Willis Raney and James Henson. They both were serving time on bogus check convictions. An accomplice, Ruth Lawrence, of Paris, who was placed in the women's ward, remained at the jail.

Reward Offered

Jailer John McCarty announced Wednesday that he was offering $25 reward for the capture of Willis Raney, one of the two escapees from the Nicholas County jail Tuesday afternoon.

Officers said the woman had cashed checks for the men at the following local stores: Neal's, Sexton's, Locker Plant, IGA and McDonald's at Headquarters.

A search of the county Tuesday afternoon failed to turn up the escapees, according to Nicholas Sheriff J. Milton Prytus. Their capture had not been reported at press time Wednesday.

Polio information being sought

All residents of Nicholas County are being asked to supply information to the Local National Foundation Chapter regarding old polio patients. Mrs. Paul Stone, Nicholas County Chapter Chairman stated today.

The Local Chapter is interested in the welfare of all polio patients, regardless of when stricken. To this end it is making a "recovery" survey of all persons reported to have had polio in Nicholas County.

Through this survey we hope to determine the total medical needs, nationally and locally, of polio patients, and especially those who have not received recent medical care," Mrs. Stone said.

Anyone having knowledge of a polio patient who has recently moved into the county or of a patient in need of medical treatment is asked to get in touch with Mrs. Stone.
