Mid income group aided by mortgage credit program

The incomes of home buyers who secured financing through the Voluntary Home Mortgage Credit Program and the prices of homes that they bought indicate that this Program has been of service primarily to families of modest income who buy low priced homes, Benjamin H. Ernest, Executive Secretary for VHMCP in Region VII, said today.

VHMCP seeks to find lenders who will make loans on FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages to prospective home owners in designated small towns and minority families anywhere who are unable to obtain such funds from their local lenders.

"Persons having incomes of between $3,000.00 and $6,000.00 have obtained 69% of the total mortgage loans made by the VHMCP in Kentucky and Tennessee," Mr. Ernest said.

The Secretary's comment was prompted by recent reports that private mortgage funds were not available to middle income groups. The Secretary said, "The VHMCP has been effective in providing assistance to moderate income families purchasing low-cost homes in rural communities and to minority group members."

Mr. Ernest said, "Private lenders have made, under VHMCP, $27,359,000.00 of home mortgage loans in Region VII. 69% of the home buyers who obtained loans from March 1956 through August 1957 earned between $3,000.00 and $6,000.00, and 52% bought homes costing between $5,000.00 and $11,000.00."

Pointing out that VHMCP has continued active in the home mortgage market throughout the tight money period despite continued rising interest rates, Mr. Ernest declared:

"The new 5¼% interest rate on FHA loans has brought many millions of dollars into the home mortgage market. The one-quarter of 1% interest rise amounts to only 16¢ per month per $1,000 of a 30-year mortgage; $1.60 per month in a case of $10,000 loan. If any prospective home buyer does not know where to apply for a mortgage loan or no lenders operate in his area, he should write VHMCP, Room 604, U. S. Courthouse, Nashville, Tennessee."

Housewives can cut food cost despite rises

Despite rising food prices, there is much that housewives can do to hold down total costs, says Miss Elizabeth Helton, UK Extension food specialist.

But occasional saving will not do, she warns. It will require daily careful planning, thoughtful buying and good preparation.

1. Think of the cost per serving when you buy, as the lowest price per pound is not always the best buy. Cheap bacon, for example, is sometimes cut 10 to 12 slices to the pound, and the best bacon, 20 to 22 slices.

2. Note any waste in the article purchased, such as bone or gristle in meat, or inedible parts of vegetables or fruits, particularly the latter if reduced in price.

3. Be sure that "specials" are good buys and will fit into your meal plans.

4. Take advantage of seasonal low prices, such as old hens and other poultry at this time, and dried peas and beans. Make your meals inviting by serving "repeats" in different ways.

5. Use the less expensive forms of foods. In some areas it is desirable to use powdered or evaporated milk in cooking, particularly when calories must be considered. The use of whole milk by all family members should be encouraged.

6. Buy inexpensive beef cuts and grind it at home for hamburgers or meat loaf. The flavor and food value will be the same.

7. Make your own rolls, thereby winning the family to the watch-the-cost program.

8. Prepare mixes at home in quantity — pie crust, gingerbread cake or biscuits. Cover tightly and store in a cool place.

9. When buying packaged foods, remember the smaller the package the higher the cost of the contents.

Brain computes road problems

Frankfort, Nov. 6—The State Highway Department has an electronic brain that can design three or four miles of road an hour from information fed to it.

The machine being tested by the Division of Accounts and Administrative Services can add and subtract 78,000 times a minute. It can make 138,000 decisions a minute from information stored in its magnetic memory.

The electronic device will free highway engineers of much calculating work and give them more time for engineering decisions.

The computer looks like a telephone switchboard. When it is "thinking," red lights flash on and off like neon signs.

Smooth bromegrass and crested wheat seed production this year is expected to reach a new record high, about 27 million pounds of the former and 8 million pounds of the later.
