Annual report of soil district for 1957

I. Introduction:

The following is a report of activities and progress made in Soil and Water Conservation in Nicholas County Soil Conservation District during 1957.

During the year the district (14th) year of operation. The supervisors of the District are proud to say that attendance that 806 land owners in the county have become cooperators members of the District. Because of property transfers, due to many causes, some cooperators agreements have been cancelled. As of December 31, 1957, there are 641 cooperators with 75,799 acres of land who are working with the District in accomplishing needed Soil and Water Conservation practices on their farms. Five hundred Thirty-Three (533) of those cooperators received technical assistance on their farms during the year. This, in part, portrays the progress that has been made in the field of Soil and Water Conservation since the District began functioning in 1943. This represents more than 50% of the land owners who own more than 50% of the agricultural land in the county

II. Supervision

This Board of Supervisors meet on the first Wednesday of each month. All of the members attended all regular meetings with the exception of one meeting when two members were unable to attend.

The District participated in the Goodyear Soil Conservation Awards contest.

All five Board members and their wives attended the State SCD Convention at Kentucky Dam Vo other District was represented.

Three Board members attended the National SCD meeting in St. Louis, Missouri, in February 1957.

Four Board members attended the Annual SCD Work Shop at Morehead. Mr. Allen Board Chairman. Lowell Hollar acted as group leader of one of the discussion sections at Morehead.

A Soil Judging Contest for 4-H and FFA members, and a Soil Conservation Essay Contest was sponsored by the District, and cash awards, plaques, certificates were provided. Twelve cash prizes were awarded for Board members, their families, Soil Conservation personnel and basic equipment operators.

In cooperation with Buntins Garage, a land renovation or bush cutting demonstration was conducted, utilizing modern equipment.

Buntins Garage, farm equipment dealer, cooperated with the District in promoting Soil and Water Conservation. For the splendid cooperation and interest displayed, Buntins Garage received a "District Dealer" award, and thereby became the first in this area to be so recognized.

In cooperation with the University of Kentucky, Extension Service, an agronomy tour was sponsored. Visits were made to the Edgar Darrell and O. H. Lambert farms.

Soil Stewardship Week was actively participated in by the ministers in the county. Informational material was furnished by the District.

Benefiting from a loan by the Kentucky Division of Soil and Water Resources to purchase heavy equipment used in getting more conservation on the land the District pool of all middle address on one bulldozer and how and arranged to finance the purchasing of another bulldozer which was delivered.

Realizing the need for livestock water tanks, the District bought a set of steel tank forms and rent them to farmers for use in building concrete water tanks.

III. Conservation In the District:

Realizing that most of the land within the District is too rolling and steep to cultivate extensively, it has long been the ambition of the District to get more vegetative cover on the land and to use the land within its capabilities.

Several thousands of acres of additional land have been covered by seeding perennial grasses and clovers. For hay, more and more alfalfa has been seeded with Bluegrass, Orchard Grass and Brome Grass. Adequate pastures and high quality hay can indispensable in a dairy, beef, and sheep producing area.

To protect the limited Class I and II cropland, several miles of terraces and diversion channels were constructed.

Approximately 70 ponds were constructed and they not only provide water for livestock and permit rotation grazing, but they store water thereby reducing the amount of runoff during periods of heavy rainfall. Farmers are realizing the need for heavy vegetative cover on pond dams and spillways and they are seeding them. More farmers are using trickle tubes to relieve the vegetative spillways than ever before.

Fifteen livestock watering tanks were installed below ponds and springs during the year.

The value of tile drainage has been observed on several contiguous road side fields. While the footage is small, the number of farmers utilizing this conservation measure steadily increases annually.

Wildlife plots established by materials furnished by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources have proved quite rewarding. Many ponds have been stocked by fish furnished by the same division.

IV. Cooperation and Assistance of Agencies:

The progress that has been made in soil and water conservation is attributed to many agencies.

The Carlisle Mercury and The Nicholas County Star, weekly publications, devote valuable space to news articles and pictures related to Soil and Water Conservation. As a means of informing the public and promoting the adoption of conservation practices, their services are indispensable.

The County Agent and his staff of Extension Workers have furthered the cause of conservation by their educational programs and cooperative field tours and demonstrations.

Through its cooperation and teachings, the Vocational Agricultural Department promotes conservation.

The County and city school systems engaged in the Soil Conservation Essay Contest. Also Conservation movies have been shown to students throughout the county.

The Clerymen in the District have contributed much to the promotion of conservation by observance of Soil Stewardship Week and delivering sermons related thereto.

The Agricultural Conservation Program administered by the Nicholas County ASC Board of Stabilization and Conservation Committee furnished financial assistance to farmers in accomplishing soil and water conservation practices.

The Junior Conservation Clubs and the Fish and Game Clubs worked materially in the furtherance of soil, water, fish, and wildlife conservation

The United States Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service, local representatives W. F. Tirrell, H. L. T. Robinson, and S. C. Alexander furnished technical assistance to farmers in carrying out conservation practices.

All Agencies realize that the growth of the community and county is dependent upon the conservation of our natural resources, and it is through the efforts of all that progress within the Nicholas County Soil Conservation District has been achieved.

Respectfully submitted by, Lowell Hollar, chairman; Norwood Ausier, vice chairman; Frank Henry, secretary-treasurer; Charles T. Whaley and Howard Sidle.

COMMENT

Kay T. Fisher

Several years ago when Miss Nellie reached retirement age and decided she wanted to "loaf and enjoy myself" I went to work to try to fill her place At that time I was so ignorant of the newspaper business that I wasn't even nervous about my new task. Fortunately that setting soon became too dull for Miss Nellie and she was back at the Mercury office getting things in order again.

A month or so ago we realized more help was necessary Again I was elected to be that help. This time nearly four years later and with much more knowledge of what it takes to publish a weekly newspaper I came to work with fear and trembling and a feeling of inadequacy even after months of study So now the new face you see at the Mercury office will be mine I am told that after several years it will be easier and I will have learned just a small bit of all there is to know

I am sure no one could ever take Miss Nellie's place and I wouldn't even want to try She has helped built us thru good weeks and bad and The Mercury office will never be quite the same without Miss Nellie Crump
