Rev. Jesse Florence spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Gray

Jimmie Letcher met with painful injury Saturday afternoon, while riding a bike. He was treated at the local hospital.

Mrs. Garnet Gray was a patient at Bourbon County hospital a few days last week. We wish for both a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall McLean and family and Foster McLean have moved to the McLean home here.

Mrs. Conway Tedder and Nancye spent Saturday night with her daughter. Mrs. Bill Gadd and Mr. Gadd.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Letcher, Lexington, spent Saturday night with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Letcher and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Conway Tedder visited Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Patton and family, Millersburg, Sunday. Mr. Patton was injured while working Saturday. Friends are glad to hear the injury wasn't as serious as first reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bretz and Mr. and Mrs. Burtis Dixon and son visited Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bretz and family Sunday.

We extend sympathy to the Jolly family in the loss of their mother.

Little Rock

By Mrs. Perry Vice

Several from here were in Louisville Saturday where they attended the Kentucky Derby.

The Rev. Keith Tennant and wife of Valley Bend, West Virginia, have moved to the parsonage of the Little Rock Christian Church, where he began his ministry of the Church Sunday. He is a graduate of Kentucky Christian College, Grayson, Ky.

Mrs. James Moak of Louisville visited her father, Mr. Emmett Hopkins, Wednesday night, and attended the Kentucky Derby convention on Thursday. Among others from here who attended were Mrs. Everett Hopkins, Mrs. Gayle Soper and her guest, Mrs. Robert Clark of Lancaster.

Quite a few from here attended the minstrel last week given annually by the Paris Lions Club at Paris.

John O. Brennan Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brennan of Little Rock and Bobby Grooms of Bourbon County are students at Bourbon County high school F.F.A. Chapter were proclaimed district champions Thursday at the Blue Grass District F.F.A. meeting in Lexington. Brennan was the nation's best dairy showman and Grooms the poultry winner.

The Little Rock P.T.A. meeting was held Monday evening at the school being the final meeting of the school year. Mrs. Margarett Hyden was in charge of the program and new officers were installed.

Mr. Thurman Hinkle, Richard Hinkle and Mrs. Mary Trent and daughter, Beth, were supper guests Saturday night of Mr. and Mrs. Cayton Florence.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ruh of Hampton, Virginia are announcing the birth of a daughter, April 23 in that city. The little girl has been named Marjorie Lou and is the second child in the home. Mrs. Ruh was Miss Patricia Hinkle of Little Rock before her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Vice spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Will Brierly and daughter, Miss Evelyn Brierly.

Mrs. Richard E. Hinkle and Mrs. Rufus Hartman have returned home after visiting Mrs. Hinkles daughter, Mrs. Ernest Ruh and family, of Hampton, Virginia.

Telephone Talk

by CHARLES A. HARRIS
Your Telephone Manager

Its here-The new directory for the Carlisle exchange arrived last week and our hope is that it will add to your telephone pleasure by making available to you the many new listings that are included in it. In modern business we like to think in terms of values and we in the telephone business feel that we are making your telephone more valuable to you by the mere fact that you can now call so many more people today than you have ever been able to call in the past

. . . WHEN DO sweet dreams become a nightmare? When you need the convenience of a bedroom extension! It's real livin' to have extension phones in your home where they're handiest—in bedrooms, kitchen or den. Lots of fun to choose them in decorator colors to go with furnishings, too. And they cost less than a nickel a day each, or several for less than the cost of your main phone. To order the extensions you need, just give us a ring.

WHAT COULD BE NICER? Mother's Day is next Sunday. How about giving her an extension telephone in her favorite color—to save her time and steps all through the whole year.

CALLING BY NUMBER is the quickest way to get Long Distance calls through. To help you find the numbers you call most often, jot them down in your "Blue Book." If you don't have one, it's yours for the asking. Just call our Business Office.

Crayfish Elimination System Is Explained

Here's how to get rid of crayfish—called crawfish or crawdads in Kentucky—when it becomes evident there are too many around.

Pour about 10 drops of carbon bisulphide liquid into each Crayfish hole, then seal the hole by pressing the heel over the opening, or plugging it with a piece of sod.

A good applicator is an oil can, the spout of which has been partially closed to make the carbon bisulphide come out in drops. A gallon of the mixture thereby will be sufficient for about 5,000 crayfish holes.

Kermit Mills, Kentucky Extension Service Agricultural engineer, warns that the liquid is highly inflammable and should be kept away from any type flame or heat source. It evaporates quickly, so the can should be kept tightly closed. Its fumes also are dangerous to humans, he noted; in fact the fumes are what kill the crayfish when applied as noted above.

Lexington Sheep Day Program Is Announced

Sheep work, from research to actual application on Kentucky farms, will be discussed at the 21st annual Sheep Day program Tuesday, May 6, at the University of Kentucky Experiment Station farm.

The program ranges from a talk on New Zealand sheep production to a demonstration of fast and easy dosing for parasites, says R. C. Miller, Kentucky Extension Service sheep specialist.

It opens at 8:30 a.m. (CST) at the Livestock Pavilion. It follows an all-day meeting on Monday, May 5, at Morehead (Rowan County), the start of Sheep Week.

Ray Dutt, Kentucky Experiment Station sheep researcher, who spent a year in New Zealand on research, will open the Lexington session with a talk on "How New Zealand Raises More Sheep Than The U. S." Kinds and sources of ewes for Kentucky flocks then will be discussed by western and new lamb grades and consumer preferences by J. C. Pierce, USDA official. Washington, effect on type, weight and finish of Kentucky lambs by J. B. Kelt. Armour and Co. official. Gay Jones, Lexington auction lamb grader; John Cooper, Bourbon (County) Stock Yards, and J. D. Kemp, UK Experiment Station meats specialist.

A panel of farmers will discuss larger profits through more lambs per ewe; A. L. Larimore, Lexington, chairman of the Lamb Committee, will discuss how to get Kentuckians to eat more lamb; sheep parasite control will be discussed by Dr. R. J. Schwartz, USDA, Beltsville, Md.; W. B. Howell, Mercer county agent, will demonstrate fast and easy dosing for parasites; Joan Hull, New York Wool Bureau, will speak on "Future of Wool"; P. G. Woolfolk, Experiment Station researcher, will discuss experimental work underway now on sheep; a panel of sheepmen, county dog wardens and others will discuss the dog-control situation, with Judge William Boswell, Cynthiana, as leader; and Fred Powell, Tennessee Extension Service sheep specialist, will discuss wool marketing.

A barbecue is scheduled at noon, Miller said; the Blue Grass State Sheep Association will hold its annual banquet at the Lafayette hotel that evening.

The Lexington meeting is one of the events of the annual Sheep Week. After the Morehead meeting Monday, and the Lexington session, a tour will be conducted of Kentucky flocks, starting Wednesday at Lexington and ending Thursday at Hopkinsville. On Friday, the annual sheep meeting will be held at the Western Kentucky Substation at Princeton; and on Saturday, a meeting and telecast will be held at the WAVE farm near Louisville.

Summer school announcement

The University of Louisville Summer School for 1958 will offer two workshops of interest to teachers of handicapped children. Both of these workshops will carry scholarships for qualified persons. The scholarship funds are made possible through grants of money from the WHAS Crusade for Children funds. The first workshop will be for teachers of mentally retarded children. It will include Methods of Teaching the Mentally Retarded Children and a Laboratory Experience with a group of mentally retarded children. In this latter enrvesyor the teachers will have an opportunity to actually teach and work with children and be given credit for student teaching toward certification. Three groups of children will participate—elementary children who are educable, elementary children who are trainable, and junior high children who are educable.

The other workshop will be for teachers of hard-of-hearing children. This workshop will also consist of two parts—a course in the Methods of Teaching Hard-of-Hearing Children and the Laboratory Experience for teachers of hard-of-hearing children. In this later part the teachers will have an opportunity to teach and work with hard-of-hearing children, particularly on the elementary level.

Both of these workshops will be given during the first five weeks of the University of Louisville Summer School, the dates of which are June 16 to July 19. The second term dates are July 21 to August 23. In addition to these courses for teachers of mentally retarded children, the University of Louisville Summer School will offer classes for teachers of handicaped children, among them, Introduction to Exceptional Children, Arts and Crafts for Handicapped Children, and Introduction to Speech Problems.

For additional information write to the Director of Summer School, University of Louisville, Louisville, Kentucky, or call MElrose 7-2531, Extension 214.

A Peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

HOLLYWOOD is commencing to get mildly irritated at the continued barbs directed at the TV productions by New York TV critics. It came out in the open recently when Bill Dozier, in charge of live programming for CBS-Hollywood, had his rebuttal at the Gotham typewriter clan . . . "Studio One has been consistently clobbered by the eastern writers since we came out here," he said . . . "They called one show bad before it even went on the air . . . just like the New York sportswriters are slamming the Dodgers for coming here and are already finding fault with the Coliseum, even though they haven't seen it."

"The way they talk, there was never a bad Studio One when it was done from New York . . . This despite the fact the same people are doing the show from here as when it was in New York!" Another TV director, who prefers anonymity, puts it even stronger: "It's journalistic slanting . . . If we put on shows to please the New York critics, the rest of the country would scream with protests . . . After all, there are quite a few people not living in New York who don't quite agree with the limited New York views of what is good and what isn't."

Slimmer down, boys . . . While it's true that only New York can do anything good as far as New Yorkers are concerned, Hollywood suffers from the same disease and it is more easily recognizable in the other person . . . It should never be forgotten that television was born in New York and Chicago and Hollywood fought it like a wildcat through its pioneer days, then jumped on the bandwagon when the medium became bigger than all of us.

Where there is money concerned, Hollywood will join a cause rather than fight but she contributed nothing to the birth of the industry so she has little to gripe about now.
