Recipe of the week

Salads offer more opportunities to the housewife to use her imagination and originate combinations than any other food. Salads should be given more attention was proved when a survey showed that unlucky diets are low in vitamin A, a common source being green and yellow vegetables. The more colorful the vegetable, the more valuable, says Mrs. Lucille W. Ayer, Kentucky Extension foods specialist at the University of Kentucky.

tables fresh by storing them in a covered container or plastic bag in the refrigerator until used, add the appropriate dressing to greens just before serving or they will wilt; use only enough dressing with green salads to coat each leaf, are suggestions from the specialist.

These combinations are possible at this mid-season.

Head lettuce, grated raw carrot, green onions, green pepper, tomato wedges.

Cabbage, celery leaves, raw spinach, chopped unpeeled apple.

Grated carrots, grated turnips, onion slices, French dressing.

Shredded cabbage, carrots, turnips, chopped onion, parsley and French dressing.

Vegetable Salad Bowl

½ head small cauliflower
½ c shredded carrots
½ c sweet or Bermuda onion
½ c stuffed olives sliced
½ head of lettuce
½ c Roquefort cheese

Remove outer leaves of cauliflower and separate head into flowers Let stand in iced salt water for 5 minutes. Drain, rinse and shake in towel to dry Slice flowers lengthwise into thin slices.

Slice onion and separate into rings Marinate all vegetables except lettuce in French dressing for ½ hour. Just before serving, add lettuce broken into bite-size pieces and Roquefort cheese. Toss together in salad bowl.

Menu: Roast pork, mashed potatoes, buttered peas, vegetable salad bowl, whole wheat rolls, butter and apple betty with ice cream.

Civil Defense lists steps if bombs hit

Frankfort, May 27—"It pays to get ready while your thinking is steady", Kentucky Civil Defense authorities advise.

They recommend six steps to protect the householder in enemy attack or disaster.

The authorities advise that a member of each family take Red Cross first aid and home nursing courses On hand in the home should be a first aid kit, a week's supply of emergency food and water, flashlight, battery radio, can opener and emergency cooking and sanitation facilities.

The second step urged by Civil Defense is learning public alerts signals Sirens, whistles, horns, or other devices will warn you if enemy attack threatens. The alert signal, meaning probable attack, is a steady blast of three to five minutes When this is heard, radios should be turned to Conelrad (640 or 1240). The takecover signal is a wailing tone, or series of short blasts, of three minutes duration It indicates attac kis imminent and shelter must be found at once Knowing Conelrad stations is the third step They can be marked with nail polish on the radio dial They are marked on radios of late model cars.

Fourth step is to follow evacuation instructions. On Conelrad, instructions for evacuation routes will be given Most plans for target cities anticipate that within an hour after alert most families whose members are away from home will re-unite at home and leave by the nearest evacuation route However, if family members can't get home, they should leave the city by the nearest route. School authorities are being trained to care for all children Registration centers will be established at reception areas so that families may be re-united after the danger

Building a shelter is the fifth step. In case of insufficient warning, any shelter is better than none. Home shelters are useful during tornadoes other natural disasters.

The last step is protection from radioactive fallout. Civil Defense officials, in consultation with the Weather Bureau, will advise the public on the direction of possible fallout and give directions for safety procedure.

Grand jury report made

The Grand Jury of the May Term, 1958 of the Nicholas Circuit Court respectfully reports that it met in regular session on May 5 and May 19.

During the meeting of the foregoing Grand Jury the following action was taken:

There were no indictments returned by the Grand Jury and only one person was heard by the Grand Jury in connection with any criminal investigation.

The Grand Jury did have William J. Ping, Sanitarian Nicholas County Health Department and Jno. W. Anderson, Nicholas County Sheriff before them to discuss the question of unvaccinated and unlicensed dogs in Nicholas County. It was determined that the Sheriff's Office probably has certain records of dogs which have been licensed for which the local health office has no record of having been vaccinated for rabies. It was likewise determined that the local health office may have certain records of some dogs that have been vaccinated for which the Sheriff's office has no record of having been licensed.

It was suggested that the health office and the Sheriff's office review their records in the respective offices and if any dogs were found to be vaccinated and not licensed or licensed but not vaccinated that immediate steps be taken to apprehend these dogs and the dog owners for appropriate prosecution for failure to comply with the law. The Grand Jury further recommends that the next Grand Jury that convenes in September of 1958 again look into the question of licensing and vaccination of dogs to see what action has been taken and to determine if there are unlicensed and unvaccinated dogs in the county against whom action should be taken.

L. R. Sloop finishes three week course

The Cherokee District Boy Scouts of America wound up a three week basic training course for Scoutmasters with the session held recently at the First Presbyterian Church in Paris, with ten Scouters receiving certification of completion.

The training sessions and program were under the guidance and direction of Raymond Bowling, district chairman of the leadership and training committee.

Bowling, holder of the Scoutmaster's Key and the Silver Beaver Award, highest Scouter award given by the Council, presented the certifications at the end of the meeting.

Telephone use shows increase

Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company announced today that its telephones in Kentucky increased by 5,627 during the first three months of this year.

As of March 31, there were 481,167 telephones in areas of the state served by Southern Bell, according to Sam H. Ridgway, General Commercial Manager for Kentucky.

This figure does not include telephones operated by the 56 independent telephone companies serving the state.

In the Winchester District, 759 telephones were added during the first quarter. H. M. Mitchell, District Manager said. The Winchester District now has 62,346 telephones.

Many major projects are in progress throughout the Lake Louisville's Highland and the Murray, Shelbyville Franklin, Winchester, Mayfield, Marion and Pikeville offices are working toward dial conversions When completed over 89 per cent of Southern Bell's telephones in the state will have dial service. In 1946 only about 45 per cent were dial.

In addition to the new dial centers, Winchester and Shelbyville will be the first exchanges in Kentucky to have Direct Distance Dialing: This is a development of the Bell Telephone Laboratories that enables certain users to dial their own long distance calls without going through an operator. Eventually this system will extend over the entire United States.

April bond sales here total $5,175

During April the sale of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Nicholas County amounted to $5,175. This raised the cumulative figure for the first four months to $92,612. The county's goal is $154,310.

In Kentucky sales for April totalled $5,101,568 raising the cumulative figure to $23,080,402 against the annual goal of $58,700,000

Kentucky berries in good supply

Kentucky strawberries, which are sweeter and of better quality than those shipped in, will soon be generally available, says Mrs. Letta Jasper, UK Extension specialist in marketing and consumer education.

For berries at their best, look for those that have fresh green caps and that are dry and free of dirt. If they are locally grown and are freshly picked, they will have a desirable shiny gloss, which disappears after several hours.

Flavor depends upon variety and ripeness, and is not affected by size. For company desserts, large berries may be desirable, but for other uses, smaller sizes may be as good. A bright red color indicates ripe, freshly picked berries. Avoid those with white spots; such berries probably are under-ripe and will not be as sweet. If the caps are missing, the berries are likely to be over-ripe.

The container may provide a clue to the condition of the berries. If there is a red stain, the chances are good that the berries are over-ripe and are crushed.

The sooner fresh strawberries can be served, the better they are. If they must be held for a time, place them dry, with the caps on, in the refrigerator. Do not wash until they are prepared for use, then wash a few berries at a time and lift them from the water.

One quart of berries will make five servings. For freezing, one quart will make about 1½ pints. They may be frozen without sugar, with dry sugar, or with a syrup.

Start compost pile now for '59 crop

Start your compost pile now for the 1959 garden says Clyde Singletary, Kentucky Extension Service horticulturist. It will pay good dividends in 1959 —but must be started in 1958 for full use of available materials.

Start your compost pile in a little-used area of the back yard, etc. Generally, four posts about six to eight feet apart—between which is stretched chicken wire, boards, etc.—will suffice. If a larger compost pile is to be made, then more mid-range posts must be used.

Dump lawn clippings; manure; vegetable tops (beets and radishes are good examples); sweet corn stalks; leaves, etc., in the enclosure. You can even use "plant garbage", i.e., such things as the unused portions of cabbages prepared in the kitchen.

Next year you'll have a good supply of material to furnish organic matter to your garden site. Spread the material out evenly and work it into the soil, singletary says.

Two precautions: Do NOT burn trash in the pile discard plastic; and start the pile this spring, as one cannot build a compost pile after the best season for collecting material.

Are you glad school is out?

by Alma Dene Hudnall

"Are you glad school is out?" that's a question that has been asked me many times in the last week. It's a long story to tell everybody that my work is still going on.

You see, there is much more to teaching Home Economics than sewing and cooking in regular day school. There are seven areas which include Foods, Clothing, Child Care, Management, Personal and Family Relationships, Housing, and Health and Home Nursing. In these courses we try to prepare the girls to be a better homemaker, not only today, but for the future. The freshman class is usually taught the fundamentals in each area, and as they advance to higher grades, the courses become more detailed and difficult.

Another part of Home Economics is Home Visits which is the school homework. By visiting in the homes and becoming acquainted with the families our home economics program will be able to give the girls training in the things they need. The home visiting is related to home projects which the girls do to get home practice in the areas they are studying in Home Economics.

There is an appropriation made for an adult Home Economics Program. This education program is to help the adults in the community on special problems. The adult program has not been carried on at Carlisle high, but has been very effective in the County high school.

The club connected with Home Economics and sponsored by the Home Economics teacher is F.H.A.-Future Homemakers of America—which is a national organization. "The future homes of America are in the hands of its youth."

Then the reason why school is not out for me is the summer visiting, or the extended Month. Before the actual school term ended, each home economics student set up a summer project from one of the seven areas. During June, it is the responsibility of the Home Economics teacher to visit the girls and help them and check their summer projects. These projects might include baby sitting, yard care, summer meals, room improvement, sewing and many others. With these projects the girls put into practice what they have learned in Home Economics.

This 10th month program is in a vacational department only and is one of the most enjoyable of all the teacher's work.

Of interest to tourists in Kentucky, is the number of city bypass routes. Now in use are bypasses at Paducah, Somerset, Pikeville, Burchel, Fulton, Middlesboro, Maysville, Greenup, Louisville and Lexington. Under construction are bypasses at Russell and Paintsville.
