One injury in seven results in permanent disability

The power lawn mower leads actually come into being in 1944, as an accident involving one was unusual enough to make news.

One of the first power mower accidents occurred in 1944 when an Army private who came home late in World War II to re-perorate from three years in three invasions and was wounded by a power mower.

When moving on an incline, the hills and banks, cut sideways out up and down. 3. Don't refuel the mower while it's running or still hot from use. Always refuel out of an approved container. 6. Shut off the mower before moving it from one level to another, or when you want to work on its underside. Never have the mower unattended while it's running. 7. Make sure the area to be mowed is free of sticks, stones, wire or other obstacles. 8. Know how to disengage the clutch and stop the engine quickly.

Into thin air

The American motorist still drives on a flat which has risen 100 feet since 1925, where other everyday commodities have increased by direct contact with the motor. The other three are hurt by objects thrown by the direct contact.

While the first power mower mishap may have been unimportant, the fact that such accidents today are anything but out-of-the-ordinary is a different matter.

In fact, almost every newspaper carries accounts of power mower accidents, among them such serious ones as that of a blade that sliced a Florida woman's arm and another through a window pane before striking her.

But, according to the National Safety Council, power lawn mowers are no more dangerous than any other gadget used around the home.

There's another side to the coin—and a problem. As river transportation grows, railroads suffer. Some money must be put back into the railroads.
