Processed poultry to bear U. S. stamp of approval

Kentucky housewives will be interested in knowing that after Jan. 1, 1959, all poultry and poultry products which move for sale across state lines must bear a stamp of approval indicating that it has been inspected for wholesomeness by an agent of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

So report Extension marketing specialists at the University of Kentucky. It will not apply to poultry marketed within the state, they point out.

When the Poultry Products Inspection Act becomes effective, the poultry industry will join the meat industry in offering consumers assurance of Federal inspection in all plants processing poultry for interstate commerce.

Processing plants must meet a number of established standards in order to qualify for this service, such as its facilities, equipment, operating procedure and labeling.

Any plant which has not already applied for inspection services should do so as quickly as possible, poultry processors are reminded. Though special arrangements have been set up to make the qualification process as fast as possible, some time is needed to meet the necessary requirements. The processor must have blueprints of his plant and premises approved, his water supply certified, and all labels and chemical compounds used on products okayed.

Copies of the regulations governing inspection and application forms may be obtained from the Poultry Division of the Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA, Washington 25, D. C.

Kentucky leads the southeast in sale of wool.

Kentucky is first in corn and hay production in the southeast.

Kentucky is second in commercial hog production in the southeast.

Forester urges caution with outdoor fires

Caution in use of all outdoor fires during the next six weeks is urged by Director Gene L. Butcher, Kentucky Division of Forestry.

"The fall forest fire season is here," said Butcher, "and the woods can burn even within a few hours after rain."

Training of state fire fighting forces has been completed, lookout towers have been manned, and all employees and cooperators have been alerted. "We feel," added Butcher, "that our forest fire control organization is a good one, but to prevent fires we need the full cooperation of every citizen."

He urged that these rules be followed outdoors to prevent woods and grass fires:

Break your match—be sure its out.

Crush out all smokes—dead out, where there's an ash tray use it.

Drown your campfire and warming fire.

State law prohibits burning trash, leaves, or brush within 200 feet of any woods during October, November, and December except between 4:30 p.m. and midnight.

The law makes every citizen responsible for any fires he may start, whether wilfully or through negligence, Butcher said.

ROAD CONTRACTS STILL REACHING RECORD HIGHS

The Kentucky Department of Highways has passed the $75,000,000 mark in awarding road - improvement contracts this year.

The total reached $75,400,066 for 1958 when 11 contracts aggregating $743,550 were awarded, establishing a new alltime high for contract awards in a year.

The previous record had been $61,991,000, reached in 1954. The total, however, included $21,152,000 in Kentucky Turnpike construction contracts and $3,730,000 for the Shawneetown Bridge over the Ohio River, both financed with revenue bonds.

Farm facts

NOVEMBER—1958

Thanksgiving. This is the month of Thanksgiving and in 1958 Kentucky farmers have had much to be thankful for. Nature, or Providence, if you wish to call it that, has been kind to us during the past twelve months and with few exceptions we have been exceptionally free from floods and droughts.

In Kentucky we have the best corn crop on record. It is expected to yield, for the first time in history, 47 bushels per acre—twice the average yield, of a generation ago. And, incidently, our corn requirements this year were produced on only half the acres used thirty years ago. We also have an excellent tobacco crop and our pastures have been lush all year. Livestock has been produced economically and prices have been good.

Many of the problems in agriculture today seem to stem from our own mistakes. Even the over-production of farm products that is plaguing us now, might be attributed to our own greed that encouraged the too rapid plowing of prairie sod and the wanton destruction of virgin forests. The modern system of "Conservation farming" is just another way of cooperating with nature and using only that land needed for production purposes.

American farmers have neither been on a strike nor closed down their plants during the past year and every where there is an abundance to eat and wear. In fact, the principal fear confronting agriculture now is that of ever mounting surpluses.

Continued Progress. Almost every month reports of something new and beneficial to agriculture comes from the Experiment Station. One of the recent developments has been the testing program to find more efficient feed animals. In one of the latest tests one bull required 5.63 pounds of feed to produce a pound of beef while another bull required over 12 pounds of feed per pound of gain. In a few years good farmers will be purchasing their bulls on a basis of their efficiency rating.

Another new development has been the introduction of a very superior variety of Timothy, named "Clair". Its principal value lies in its longevity.

U. S. farm income the first six months of 1958 was up 11 percent over 1957, the USDA reports, for a total of 16.6 billion dollars received from marketings.

The United States produces less than half the wool that is used here in clothing, the remainder being imported. The sheep population in the U. S. in the 1930's to 27 million head in the1930's to 27 million head in 1956.

A total of 48,952,930 lunches were served to school children in Kentucky in 1958, an increase of almost two and a half million over the previous year.

Park It at THE STARS

BY LYN CONNELY

FRED ASTAIRE will star in two special full-hour live musical programs on NBC-TV this season . . . The programs, marking the first time the famous screen star will appear in his own network show, will be sponsored by Chrysler Corp. . . . The first program was telecast Friday, October 17th, the second will be scheduled in the spring.

Astaire, dancing and singing star of many motion picture and stage successes, began his professional career at the age of eight with his sister, Adele, as a brother-sister team in vaudeville . . . At 18, with his sister, he made his Broadway debut . . . Adding singing and dancing to their accomplishments, the team played in almost a dozen Broadway musicals, among them "Lady Be Good" and "The Bandwagon."

After his sister's marriage, Astaire went to Hollywood and made his first movie, "Dancing Lady," in 1933 . . . This was soon followed by "Flying Down to Rio" and "Gay Divorcee", with another comparative newcomer named Ginger Rogers . . . He was quickly established as a top screen personality . . . His recent films include "Silk Stockings," "Funny Face" and "Daddy Long Legs."

PLATTER CHATTER

WARNER BROS.—An exciting new talent in the person of harmonica virtuoso Tommy Morgan bursts forth on the musical scene with brilliant interpretations on his instrument, backed by the work of Warren Barker, of tropical-type songs . . . They include Bali-Ha'i," "Pomciena," "Ebb Tide," "Misirlou," "Ruby," "Beyond the Reef" and "High and Mighty" . . . Terrific sound, terrific album — it's appropriately named "Tropicale" . . .

This firm has cut some singles from Jack Webb's "You're My Girl" album in which the "Dragnet" star does some romantic reflections . . . One of the best singles is "Try a Little Tenderness" backed by "You'd Never Know the Old Place Now."
