C.H.S. news

by Harriet Clark

Hello There! I guess you've been wondering what's happening up on Musketeer Hill. We're a little late getting started but we'll be "off to the races" from now on.

Have you heard the latest? The Seniors of Carlisle high are publishing an annual. We haven't had an annual since 1902 but this year the Seniors have decided they can finance one. It's to be the biggest and best ever. How could it help but be with such a staff as this: Becky Barlow, editor; Emma Lou George, assistant editor; Harriet Clark, class editor, Jack Clunkenbeard, advertising manager; Katie Lou House, club editor; Charles Vice, Business manager; Kelley Hunter, sports editor; Ruth Shrout, Circulation manager; Marvin Johnson, feature and art editor; John Johnson, snapshot editor; Linda Clark, assistant snapshot editor; Toby Elder, junior class representative.

You've heard of these people and undoubtedly you think they're working hard for this annual. While helping yourself you can help the Seniors by buying an annual. You'll have to hurry though. Annuals are $2.00 "on ball" from now on.

Kay T. Fisher

Today I am leaving for that long awaited holiday. During July and August when I would read about this one and that one either coming or going I thought October would never come. My favorite time for a vacation

Its just as well I'm leaving maybe by the time I get back some of those irate teenagers will have calmed down At the moment, to some of them I am a "square" and all "shook" I looked that up in the dictionary, but it didn't help any Anyway I know what they mean. I'm thankful that there were many more too busy to let me know just what they did think For them the "show didn't fit anyway"

Prevention tips for ones on farm

Fires are easier to prevent than put out—and a check of equipment and training of personnel will pay dividends for fire prevention.

Here are a few things to check or watch on the farm during Fire Prevention Week Oct. 5-11 incl.:

HOME: Check, repair or replace defective equipment or worn parts of heating units, rebuild defective flues or chimneys. Be careful in storing and handling inflammable liquids; put spark arresters on roofs; keep matches away from children; replace worn, frayed or cracked cords, install lighting rods; watch cooking or handling of greases, etc.

BARNS AND BUILDINGS: Watch spontaneous ignition in hay, keep barns well ventilated; check circuits or lines near inflammable liquids; install lightning rods; repair defective heating equipment, flues, brooders, stoves, tanks, and other flammables at least 40 feet from buildings; keep trash, weeds and brushfires, fuel spillage or storage tanks sparks farm machinery, etc.

Fall seeding of pastures

Seed pastures to bluegrass and white clover, or even orchard grass, this fall, says Lyle Leonard, Kentucky Agricultural Extension agronomist. Bluegrass-clover mixtures established pastures will become weedy this summer.

Growth on fields now is usually enough to provide some grazing and Saturday with friends in Lexington. much that will last well into the winter, he says; if it is not grazed, the growth can be directly into field, if the cover is heavy, just to moderate disking may be required.

New seedings usually will not make much progress in the fall but will come up earlier in the spring, before weeds get started, only exception is this rule is clean, which already has germinated and which will get ahead of any other seeded grasses.

Use some fertilizer, depending on soil test, Leonard says, and stick to grasses for fall seeding; legumes can be seeded next spring on the ground or drilled in at that time

Burley stripping demonstrations arranged

Burley tobacco stripping and grading demonstrations, starting Oct. 8 and continuing through Oct. 31 in Kentucky's burley producing counties, has been arranged.

The meetings, says Russell Hunt, University Agricultural Extension Service tobacco specialist, will emphasize the importance of stripping crops so they will meet the needs of all types of buyers, i.e., cigarette manufacturers, leaf dealers and exporters.

Hunt noted that the demonstrations will emphasize stripping of the 1958 crop into the four main groups — flyings, lugs, leaf and tips—a departure from the "mixing" of grades in preparation for market." Mixed grades are satisfactory in some cases "when they sell", he said, but if mixed offerings are pooled, they do not bring as high a support price as the offerings stripped into the four main groups.

Graders from the USDA tobacco branch will be in charge of the stripping schools and they will stress proper stripping, baling, tying and handling. Hunt said. "The whole series of demonstrations is based on getting the Kentucky farmer the maximum dollar for his 1958 crop."

County agents in each case will announce local sites and times. Hunt said. Nicholas, Oct. 27.

Hunt suggests that tobacco be bulked prior to the demonstration time; and urges farmers to bring in to the meetings samples from the individual crops for stripping instruction and practice. Tobacco difficult to strip are excellent instructional devices, he said.

Grading of beef cuts an aid to housewives

Housewives who like quality meats will do well to get in the habit of looking for the U. S. Grade stamp, says Miss Elizabeth Hellon, UK Extension Food Specialist. Grade marks are reliable guides on the quality of beef. However, grading is a voluntary process on the part of packers, and is not compulsory.

Beef graded by the U. S. Department of Agriculture is easily identified, as it has a purple shield in which the grade is shown. The purple marking is harmless as it is made from a vegetable dye.

The principal USDA beef grades are Prime, Choice, Good, Standard, and Commercial.

U. S. Prime beef is the best quality that can be produced, and only a small percentage of carcases is given this grading, and that is usually following the fat stock shows in the winter.

U. S. Choice beef is an excellent quality of meat. It has many of the same characteristics as U. S. Prime, but is not quite so well finished. Both Prime and Choice grades provide steaks which are best for broiling. The steaks are usually well marbled with fat, which means the lean is well interlaced with streaks of fat. A well-marbled steak will usually be tender and juicy when broiled, that is, if it came from a young animal.

Tender cuts of beef that are good for broiling are porterhouse, T-bone, sirloin, and club steaks. All these cuts are rated favorably with these cuts in tenderness and flavor, and is usually less in price per pound.

U. S. Good is a good grade of meat, but is not so well finished nor of such good quality as U. S. Choice. Approximately 20 percent of the steer carcases are graded Good. This grade appeals to housewives who want and demand tender meat.

U. S. Standard is average in tenderness and quality.

U. S. Commercial cuts are usually tender because they are from older animals; they are cheaper in price than other cuts.

Another U. S. stamp is required on all beef that is shipped in interstate commerce. It reads, "U. S. Inspected and Passed," and it means the meat has been inspected for wholesomeness.

Jefferson County's first courthouse was built in 1784 of rough logs, a one-room structure. It burned in 1797 and a stone structure was built in 1788, to be replaced by a magnificent brick building on 1811, then the finest of its kind in the western wilderness.

District 4-H achievement meetings to be held

Annual 4-H district achievement meetings will be held at 15 points in Kentucky from Sept. 27 to Nov. 9, according to George D. Corder, chairman of 4-H Extension Programs at the University of Kentucky. The Carlisle Junior 4-H meeting is set for Nov. 8.

The purpose of the meetings will be to select state project champions among senior members who will receive expense-free trips to Chicago in December to attend the National 4-H Club Congress, and for other awards. Junior members will receive ribbons.

County winners who have completed 4-H projects and submitted record books, the 1957 corn and tobacco champions, an adult leader from each county, and Extension farm and home agents will attend the district meetings.

Each county in a district may submit record books of both junior and senior county winners, Mr. Corder explained. In the senior division, a club member may be 14 years old as of Jan. 1, 1958, but not past his 21st birthday. Junior members are those not over 14 years old as of Jan. 1, 1958.

Winners of the district meetings will be selected to attend the annual Junior Livestock Congress and for summer trips to Camp Minikwanca and to the National 4-H Club Conference in Washington, D. C.
