Do you know what you're voting for

Every election year at this time the "get out the vote" campaigns surge into high gear. All of us are urged to exert the great right of franchise on Tuesday, Nov. 4.

This is all to the good. A citizen who fails to vote shirks a fundamental duty, and he certainly has no right to criticize the conduct of public affairs. It's a national disgrace that in many elections up to half of the qualified voters don't trouble to go to the polls.

But something needs to be added to the command "Vote!" It is this: "Know who and what you're voting for." To vote in ignorance is as bad as not voting at all.

Do the respective candidates favor bigger government or more limited government? Would their policies lead to more or less government spending? What is their attitude toward foreign policy and the Communist conspiracy?

Learn the answers to these and other big questions of the day. Then vote for the people whom you believe to be right.

Radio broadcast causes mass hysteria; Austrians accept Allies peace terms

Thursday, November 3, 1938

Re-organization of a Boy Scouts of America troop in Carlisle, under the active sponsorship of the American Legion Post and a number of interested Carlisle businessmen was accomplished last Thursday night at a meeting of committees in the Nicholas County court room.

A defective flue was blamed by the local fire department for a fire which damaged the home of Mrs. Frances Baker on West Main street near Sycamore street Monday afternoon.

Mass hysteria taken nation by storm as Martians "invade" U. S., defeat armies in radio program. Written by H. G. Wells and fictionized by Orson Welles, the broadcast caused such consternation among Americans who listened in that certain sections of the nation actually saw residents hiding in cellars, fleeing their homes for "safer" places, or trying desperately to contact relatives in the "attacked" areas.

Roy Blount of Moorefield, well-known fox hound and horse breeder of this section, has disposed of a dun two-year-old horse to the Ringling Brothers Circus, for use of one of the managers as a riding horse.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Minton of the Cassidy Creek section, a son on Oct. 28.

MARRIED—Eugene N. Feeback of Carlisle and Mrs. Burnam Morrison of Glasgow were issued a marriage license last week in Nicholas County court.—Mayme Kennedy Gates and Erwin James Brunker of Carlisle Oct. 27th.—Miss Geneva Bell Hill of Louisville and Edman Shindelbower of Lexington on Oct. 29th.

DIED—Max Metzger of Paris—Mrs. E. M. Mattox, 55, of near Millersburg, Friday — sung by R. L. Talbert. Not an Harvey B. Wagoner of the other sound could be heard.

—Just then Little One nudged me in the ribs and whispered, "Mr. Shepherd and Harvey Gaunce are not helpin' sing a bit, Miss Nellie, look, they are not openin' their mouth—and Mr. Wesley ain't either."

The Other Side of the Story.

A timid knock at the door on a recent chilly morning heralded the daily arrival of my three-year-old neighbor. Shivering as she pulled the little rocker closer to the heater she asked expectantly, "Mith Nellie, is Bessie got some too-little socks for me. My feet's cold."

Back in 1764.

I have received a copy of The Connecticut Courant—the most interesting old-time spelling! An "f" appears where an "s" should be all through the four-page paper which is dated Monday, October 29, 1764 (note the year) and dealing mostly with "foreign affairs." If—there's the hitch—it were the original my fortune would be made, but no such luck. It is only a reprint!

"A Specimen of which the Publick are now presented with will, on due Encouragement be continued every Monday, beginning the 19th of November next: With Encouragement we hope to deserve, by confiant Endeavor to render this Paper ufeful, and entertaining not only as a Channel for News, but affifting to all Those who may have Occasion to make ufe of it as an Advertifer. Printed at Hartford by Thomas Green, at the Heart and Crown, near the North-Meeting-House."

Reprints were given as souvenirs at the 325th anniversary celebrated recently with parade, crowning of the queen by the governor and a banquet.

Sunday was Laymen's Day at the Methodist Church, the men taking over the entire morning program which was followed by an excellent sermon by layman John Ffrench of Maysville.

Special music was furnished by the men's quartet, the solo part of a number being beautifully rendered by R. L. Talbert. Not an other sound could be heard.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30

Read Acts 10:9-20

[Peter] saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, . . . wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air. (Acts 10:11, 12.)

What an amazing vision Peter saw! This was a vision of the heathen world waiting to be won to Christ.

As it was to Peter, to us also these things look unclean, untouchable. The animal-like life, the sinful nature, the materialistic spirit, the proud and arrogant walk of men possess no attractiveness. We want to stand apart from them, to run away from them. But the voice from heaven insists: "What God has cleansed, you must not call common."

A healthy church has the hunger for winning souls and the ability to assimilate the souls she has won. Alexander Vinet, a Christian thinker, has said, "The Church lives on the spoil it takes from the world daily." Evangelization is the condition of the existence and continuance of the Church. It is its nourishment.

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, Thou hast prepared the table. Thou hast accomplished the salvation. Thou dost cleanse man of his sin, defilement, and corruption. Give us the desire to bring others to Christ and add them to His Church. In His name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

A living church is an evangelizing church.

Book Review

Have you ever wondered what really happened to the Jews under the Germany of the Nazis? If so, you can read the exciting, if appalling, story of the Jews in Hungary during the second world war in the book DESPERATE MISSION.

It is the story of Hitler's commissioner for the liquidation of the Jews in Europe and of Joel Brand, a leader of the Hungarian Jewish underground. I think you will hold your breath and keep reading a little faster, once you begin to read. It is the story of how the Nazi commissioner offered the underground leader one million Jews for two million dollars. He offered blood for money. The story then follows Joel Brand as he hurries from city to city trying to raise the money. As he pled with world leaders for help the specter of carload after carload of men, women and children rolling toward Hitler's crematories haunted him, as they will you. This is an excellent portrayal of man's inhumanity to man as well as man's stupidity. The book is in the Nicholas County Memorial Library in the Court House. Check it out and form for yourself what the Jews really suffered and what your responsibility is in the weary gatherin walnuts not so horror planty this year.

KENTUCKIANS IN WASHINGTON

By Gil Kingsbury

NEW BUILDING:

When Kentucky's two senators get back to Washington next year a new office building will be ready for them—if they want to move from their old quarters.

There has been some criticism over putting up the new $20,000,000 structure but the protests were ignored. So were complaints over spending $1,000,000 for new furniture.

When lawmakers move in, each senator will have five rooms, three toilets and some beautiful decorations.

ANOTHER ONE GOING UP:

Kentucky members of the House of Representatives will have to wait until 1962 for their new building. Work on that is just getting underway.

When that job is done, the House will have three buildings to accommodate its 436 members — assuming Alaska joins the Union (a safe bet) and sends a lawmaker to Washington.

WATTS GIVES HIS IDEAS:

Rep. John Watts of the Blue Grass district, returned from Europe and a look at the tobacco markets there.

He said that, in spite of the dollar shortage overseas, we have retained the foreign market for one good reason. Europeans have not yet found a suitable substitute for the type of tobacco Kentuckians can and do raise.

The Kentuckian is preparing a lengthy report for his committee.

WOMEN IN POLITICS:

Comes somebody with a report that 311 women are serving as members of state General Assemblies. That's ten less than the number serving in 1957.

Kentucky—as far as numbers go—has not contributed heavily to the total. The Blue Grass state has one woman each in the State Senate and in the House.

Incidentally — for whatever it is worth—seven states have no women lawmakers — Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

Mutual Respect Is Sign Of Happy Family

By C. D. Smith

"The older generation is always preaching 'respect'"; pens a teenager, who asks: How can you be respectful to people who shout and treat you as if you were still in diapers?"

The first reaction to this question must be the statement that "respect" in the same fashion as "praise" should be earned, or it has no true value. It is difficult, indeed, to be "nice" to people who are difficult to get along with. If parents, or elders, shout at young people or abuse them verbally without cause, they have little reason to expect loyalty or cooperation. Getting along with people, whether in business, family life, or social life, must always be a two-way proposition.

But let's face it, some young people are too headstrong for their own good and, in their "know it all" wisdom, the soft voice and the gentle approach is a lost cause on the outset. Under such situations, parents must be stern and forceful, for the youngster's own good. Such stormos often manufactured and never experienced, is one of the less necessary in many cases.

The best advice we can give to the teenager above is this: Control yourself in such a manner that it will not be necessary for anyone to "shout" at you, or treat you as if you were younger than your years. Determine to your own satisfaction that there is nothing in your behavior that merits stern attention from your parents or elders.

If you do this, try also to remember that there is usually a reason for people being "hard to get along with." The reason may have nothing to do with your actions. It may be caused by poor health, financial problems, or a number of things. But there is a reason. Find this reason and you'll certainly find more understanding and most likely the way to happy relationships.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an opinion to express, address your letter to C. D. SMITH, CARE OF THIS NEWSPAPER, ENCLOSING A STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.
