Happy Birthday, Boy Scouts!

The Boy Scout movement has reached ripe middle age. Boy Scout Week, which will be observed during the February 7-13th period, will mark its 49th anniversary.

But the passage of time has certainly not dimmed Scouting's vigor. It is looking ahead to ever-greater achievements, to an ever-expanding influence. And in this age, with juvenile delinquency rampant, the movement deserves the active support of every decent and responsible citizen.

In its nearly half-century of existence, the organization has touched the lives of more than 28,500,000 Americans. Today there are more than 4,780,000 boys and leaders playing the "game of Scouting." This works out to one of every four boys in the 8 to 16-year old groups, and the hope is that this proportion will be materially increased.

Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, Chief Scout Executive, puts it this way: "Looking ahead for the next five years we must recognize that never has it been so important or imperative that the youth of our nation be trained to high idealism, acquired through unselfish service, by self-reliance, and co-operative effort."

The ideals and objectives of Scouting have remained unchanged since the movement's birth. But changes have been made in organization methods and operating techniques in order to meet the needs of the time. At the moment, if Scouting is to be brought to more of the boys who want it, there must be more trained leaders and more facilities including camps. Meeting this challenge should be regarded as a pleasure and a privilege.

Meanwhile—Happy Birthday, Boy Scouts!

Freedom First

"I love America, and I don't want to live anywhere else . . . I feel so many Americans don't appreciate it . . ."

These words were not from the lips of a person wanting to make over everybody and everything; they were spoken by a beautiful refugee Romanian girl. Her childhood record included starvation, floggings, three gun wounds while being used for target practice in prison camps including Dachau . . .

This girl and her family including a brother in the Air Force, are not finding it easy to adjust to living in this country, but they put the right to be free ahead of everything else.

We should never forget or belittle the right every American has to be free. This freedom should not be forgotten when pressure groups, in or out of government, seek to submerge the individual under mass regimentation. Infringements on individual opportunity can destroy the America the Romanian girl loves. The right to work, the right to vote, the right to worship, the right to speak, are not just trick slogans—they mean liberty.

It Is Best To Buy At Home

(Rowan County News)

In this issue are to be found the advertisements of many local merchants. These merchants are, through the medium of our paper, asking for your support.

We all realize that thousands of dollars go out of this county every year which should and could be spent in our community. It behooves all people to consider this matter and keep as much of our money at home as possible.

The idea that the slogan, "Trade at Home," is the despairing cry of a dying community is absurd, although there are some citizens who classify it thus. Town-boosting is an art practiced by those live, wide-awake communities made so by citizens who believe in their town and support their merchants.

The merchants of this county are not asking for, nor are they entitled to, "charity." If they do not offer goods at equal prices, quality considered, they certainly do not expect your trade. If a local purchaser will take into consideration the service that backs up a sale made by a local business house, the immediate delivery effected, the convenient terms often allowed, and the courteous consideration extended, it will be plain that "buying at home" has its advantages.

When you buy here, thereby creating a larger demand, local merchants will be able to increase their stocks, thus offering a larger variety which can compete with some of the stores in the larger cities. They cannot do this, however, until they have some assurance of general local support.

We call attention to the fact that a community, like an individual, cannot spend its money and keep it too, but a community made up of many people who spend their money at home, can spend that money time and time again, among its own people.

Time—Most Valuable Possession

(The Cynthiana Log Cabin)

Did you ever stop and try to think of the most valuable thing on earth? Is it a diamond? Is it gold? Some say it bread, and wonder how some would be power, riches or friends.

You might think it would be love. Certainly, faith and love which are tied closely together, are the greatest virtues, of which there are many—also unselfishness, sincerity, kindness etc.

But what is the one most valuable thing? Dismissing faith, which transcends all else of course, what is there left more valuable than anything else? What is worth more than anything—other than faith?

Time. Time's the most valuable thing you own. The amount of it you have left may depend up you. A strange thing about time is that rich people cannot buy it. They can sometimes extend it with medical care, but just as often their riches actually reduce the supply of it they have, by inducing living in that time, failed to improve yourself in some way, or failed to better your position in life, you lived worthless in that time.

In spite of all man's inventions, and knowledge, he can still do little with time. Time was the subject which probably fascinated the late Albert Einstein most of all. It brings about life, causes death, makes plants and animals grow, takes care of everything. Time will heal any wound, will solve any problem, if applied in great enough measure.

If man could ever capture the secret of the ravages of time, he could prolong life, perhaps stop the process of aging.

2 Billion Dollar Income From A Kentucky Industry

(The Shelby News)

Both farm and urban folks favor new industries to help the economy of the community. But they're not forgetting for a moment that agriculture itself is an "industry" we already got, and one we intend to keep and nourish.

The University of Kentucky has just given out some figures that should reassure everyone of who's been buttering our bread.

Here's a digest of what economists can regard farming as a dying industry in Kentucky. Agriculture in Kentucky produces 2 billion dollars annual income. What industry can compare with it?

The total output of agriculture in the U. S. is about 50 per cent larger today than 20 years ago—in spite of a 25 per cent decline in the number of people living on farms. In Kentucky, the growth has been less spectacular, but Kentucky's volume of agricultural production is about 30 per cent above the level of 20 years ago. Farm output per man-hour has doubled.

Sales of farm products from Kentucky farms in 1957 totaled $568 million — three and one-half times the pre-World War II level. But this is only a small part of the total picture. Each year, Kentucky farmers spend something over $365 million for production expenses. This is spent for a wide range of products from machinery to feeds, fertilizers, and a thousand and one other items that are necessary on a modern farm. On top of this is added the volume of income produced by Kentucky's agricultural business," made up of processing, storing, distributing and transporting business that serve farm products. These include tobacco warehouses, stockyards, milk plants, slaughter houses, tobacco redriers, and hundreds of others—all totally dependent on and an integral part of agriculture.

This is the total picture that the "dying industry" people don't seem. These figures prove conclusively that agriculture is still Kentucky's number one industry.

A Little Yappin'

by Nellie Crump

It's The Little Things That Count.

As the Arthur Rowe family of Pleasant Valley intently watched T.V. the other night they were suddenly scared out of their wits by an explosion somewhere around close. Excitedly they hurried to the kitchen call but Larry's phone was the big noise seemed most likely to come. Except now being covered with coal soot everything was like they had left it after eating supper. Joining forces all members searched high and low, inside and outside the house (well, all but Larry). Spooks must be lurking near, or the house has haunted, yes-sir-ee! By this time little Larry had eased around to his mother's side. He was scared. They were all scared. As they stood shivering afraid to breathe lest the hoax depart for a land unknown, Larry gently broke the news. "Mommy I put a little gourd in the stove. I didn't know it would blow up." The child had only meant to destroy the gourd. Who would think that such power could collect in one little egg gourd? But it did.

Somebody Was Goofed!

As I sit by the window writing this Monday morning a large number of birds are eating the crumbs I put out for them breakfast. All of a sudden they took flight to the nearby trees, looking back longingly at their lunch counter. There alone, perched right in the middle of it, gobbling up the feed at a rapid rate of speed was the most beautiful red bird! It reminds me that today is Ground Hog Day and the old boy could see his shadow if he looks. So now whom are we to believe, I'd like to know. Mr. Ground Hog or Mr. Red Bird?

Golden Rule Goes Into Effect.

Recently a very lovely lady came into town for supplies. Pooh! That happens every day —but this doesn't. There just didn't seem to be any parking place so she drove into another store's private area. Instead of going into that store to do her shopping she tripped on up the street and made her purchases. The errand boy nearly passed out on the story given when she asked him to carry the large container to her car park at the rear. He turned red and scratched his head, but just stood there plumb contrary-like. Really, I didn't learn what happened next but he finally managed to explain he simply couldn't fill up a car parked in a competitor's private lot several blocks away. It was now the lady's turn to get red in the face and scratch her head.

No Present Could Be Finer.

A stampede as landed on my front porch last Tuesday afternoon. Three little boys, making more noise than a like number of Texas steers, rushed in, each with a lady's hat in his hand. I had no chance to say a word before they began trying them on me, first one, then another. One little fellow even pulled part of an old mirror from the bottom of his jacket and held it for me to see results. They all talked at the same time and I could not get a word in anywhere, believe it or not. Seems as if they had been over in town, up and down the alleys where stores dump unwanted articles they cannot sell, and had found these hats (real ones, that is).

Between pulls and jerks they argued this one is too little — this one is too big, this is a pretty one and here, don't you want that one, do you Miss Nelle," they finally fitted me to their satisfaction.

It was only when they engaged in a scuffle over the two remaining hats that I had my say. "What is all this." I finally said it? "Why it's a present for my her birthday tea" may" they chorused and each with a triumphant ran. while I finished my mending—the little brown hat with its faded ribbon atop my head. It's the little things like this that make the world go 'round—for tomorrow would be my birthday sure enough.

KENTUCKIANS IN WASHINGTON

By Ol Kingsbury

LOTS OF VISITORS:

This week brought a lot of Kentuckians to Washington, bankers who are interested in home building.

They are attending the meeting of the United States Building and Loan League, figuring out how to increase home building and home-owning, a laudable ambition.

One of the honored guests is Congressman Brent Spence who heads the House Banking Committee, the body which handles legislation involving those building and loan organizations.

THE UNIT RULE:

According to reports from home there's a lot of talk about the election of delegates to the national presidential conventions. There's also some talk about giving up the unit rule.

Under the unit rule, delegates get together and if the majority want a certain candidate all votes are cast as one. In a Democratic convention Kentucky has 26 votes.

Those who oppose the unit rule declare that such a regulation defeats the will of the people.

Those who support the unit rule say that it gives the state strength—and bargaining power—in selecting a candidate.

Grass A National Problem

Kentucky's Senator Thruston Morton inserted in the Congressional Record an argument over the selection of a national grass emblem. The Blue Grass lawmaker supported the contention of the Kentucky Bankers Association that grass should be the choice.

He pointed out that Kentucky has a lot of fine blue grass and also crab grass. But he added, "I prefer that some other state take the credit for crab grass."

NEW CONGRESSMAN:

A new congressman from Indiana, Randall S Harmon, has excited a lot of comment in Washington. His mother incidentally came from Kenton County.

Congressman Harmon ran for the House of Representatives three times as a Republican and five times as a Democrat.

He's from Muncie, and the other day he heard that his county committee was about to "read him out of the party."

Whereupon he replied. "I am not aware that I was very much in it!"

HIGH-PURITY SILICA DEPOSIT FOUND IN EASTERN KENTUCKY

A deposit of high-silica rock found near Elkhorn City in Pike County has been called the purest ever found in Kentucky by Preston McGrain, assistant state geologist with the Kentucky Geological Survey at the University of Kentucky.

McGrain reported last week that laboratory tests on samples from the deposit showed the silica to be "almost entirely free of objectionable iron materials."

The investigations by the geological survey are part of a statewide study aimed at aiding industrial expansion and development of the state's mineral resources.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 5
Read John 13: 6-17

I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think. (Romans 12: 3)

Two young some soldiers were repairing a redoubt. As They were attempting to lift a heavy timber, an officer not in uniform came riding by. Seeing the struggling men, he called out:

Struggle as they might, the men could scarcely move the heavy timber. The officer asked the commander why he did not take hold and help. With a superior air the commander replied "Sir, I am a corporal."

"Oh, I ask your pardon, Corporal," said the officer gravely. Then he dismounted from his horse, and assisted the men. Then he turned to the corporal and said, "Corporal, when you have such a job on hand and are not enough men to handle it, send for your Commander-in-Chief, and he will come and lend a hand again."

How true indeed are the Master's words. "Whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

PRAYER: Gracious God, our Father, Thou didst humble Thyself by sending Thy Son into the world for the redemption of mankind. Humble us now by increasing our awareness of how much we fall short of Thy glory. In Jesus' name we ask it. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up. — James 4:10
