Through your support of the Red Cross you have kept many a boy and girl in school.

Mothers of children in need of clothing and shoes have come to the office in the court house and found just what they needed. So that the boys and girls were not kept at home but were able to continue with their education.

These are just two of many activities you carry on through your Red Cross. Make your plans to give generously when your Red Cross worker-neighbor calls at you home in March.

of the Music Department of Western Ky. State College, was made up of Junior High School students, and gave an excellent performance.

The 150 piece band under the direction of Leon Rapier, University of Louisville Band director, gave an inspiring program which included numbers which are likely to be heard in the next Carlisle high band concert. Representing the C.H.S. Band were: Harriet Clark, Sally Dayton, Mary Glenn Feeback, Emma Lou George, Kelley Kinnett, Susan Talbert, and Charles Vice.

The program was climaxed with the combined groups performing a stirring number, Born To Be Free, under the direction of Mr. Griffey.

Several Carlisle residents attended the concert which was enthusiastically received by an audience of approximately 500 people. Workshops of this nature provide an opportunity for students in all levels and areas of music to play together, meet new friends and spend two days in rehearsal. This sums up the motto of the Music Educators' National Conference motto: "Every Child for Music. Music for Every Child.

OHIO MAN ARRESTED

A warrant issued by Nicholas County Sheriff John Anderson was served Sunday on Roy Elwood Irvin of Georgetown, Ohio, by State Trooper E. J. Kirk, for failure to comply with an order of the court. He had been convicted of a charge of reckless driving and drinking on ahighway and gave Nicholas County Judge Floyd Clark a worthless check in payment of his fine. He was brought to Carlisle and lodged in the Nicholas County jail.

The first circular race track in the West — probably in America—was constructed between Stanford and Crab Orchard no later than 1789. Colonel William Whitley named the track "Sportsman's Hill."

If honeydew melons are greenish in color, let them ripen at room temperature until they are a creamy-yellow.

Keep frozen foods at zero degrees or lower to hold them at their best. The higher the temperature above zero, the faster they lose flavor, color, texture and food value.

Student Of The Month

The staff of the Musketeer Review proudly presents Mary Glenn Feeback as our student of the month.

Mary Glenn is a Junior at C.H.S. It would be easier to name the clubs she's not in than the ones she is. She's President of Tri-Hi-Y and F.H.A., secretary of her class, plays baritone in band, sings in chorus, and will soon be in the Honor Society. That's not all. She's in the Latin Club and writes for the Musketeer Review.

Mary Glenn has no real "sweetheart" but she likes the idea. She has her eyes on several spectimen.

COMMENT

Kay T. Fisher

The Boston Weather Bureau hopes we will not have to meet any Hurricanes come next August. "Gusty Ladies" they call them. If and when they do come they have all ready been officially named.

According to the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency which has an understandable interest in hurricanes, the name of the first hurricane will be Arlene. Ensuing ones will be called as follows: Beulah, Cindy, Debra, Edith, Flora, Gracie, Hannah, Irene, Judith, Kristy, Lois, Marsha and Nellie. Should they need more names, and I certainly hope they can't use all of these, they have the list ready and waiting.

Carlisle high library

by Mrs. Jane Kerns, Librarian

The library at Carlisle high school meets all requirements of the State Department and the Southern Association of High Schools. It has an allotment of $400 per year to spend on books and other materials to assist the students. It is used by students of the junior and senior high school and by teachers of all the grades.

At the present time there are 2,738 books catalogued. These are books recommended and listed in the Standard Catalogue for High Schools and are selected by the librarian with the assistance of the members of the high school faculty, and students. We subscribe to a daily newspaper and our own two county papers. We have thirty magazines, the majority of these are listed in the Readers' Guide which is also subscribed to and used by students and faculty.

The library is equipped with library tables, 75 chairs, a card catalogue, charge desk, dictionary stands, magazines racks, newspaper rack, bulletin boards, vertical files and a typewriter.

We use student assistant librarians and instructions for the use of the library and library materials are given to each class. The assistants help by straightening the shelves, checking out books and keeping the daily circulation record.

The most widely used books in the library are the encyclopedias and dictionaries. We have six sets of encyclopedias. These are kept up-to-date by adding a new edition of one set each year.

The faculty makes use of the reserve book shelf to keep books ready available for their classes. The library is open for the use of the students and faculty before school, during all periods of the day and after school each day.

English at NCHS

by Barbara Wills And Malinda Moore

English requirements for graduation from Nicholas County High school are four credits.

The year of a combination speech, dramatics, and journalism may be substituted as one credit.

The courses offered are as follows: English, 4 years; Literature, 4 years, Speech, Dramatics, and Journalism, 1 year (for Juniors or Seniors.)

Different materials are used in taking the individual courses. There are two text books required — English Composition and Grammar and Literature. Workbooks are purchased for review and special practices. The Reader's Digest is read and studied in Senior English.

In speech, dramatics, and journalism there are three textbooks. Members of the speech class visit clinics held at different colleges. The journalism class has visited two newspaper offices. One trip was made to the Lexington Herald-Leader plant and the other to the Carlisle Mercury office.

In the Junior Class, American authors are stressed in Literature and English authors with the Seniors. Each six weeks a book review is required of each student. Each semester one book reviewed must be a classic. We are also required to do research work and prepare two term papers each year.

We have had a series of writing short stories and essays which proved we have some very fine writers. In our writing we have studied the proper forms of social and business correspondence. We put forth what we learned and each student wrote a to a last year's graduate.

The senior English class is studying public speaking at the present time. Such topics as "A Spirited Appeal," "Nominating Speech," and "Presenting and Accepting Gifts" etc.

The school paper is published each month by the Journalism Class.

Our English instructors are Mrs. Raymond J. Wesley, Misses Alpha Brierly, and Robbie Harney.
