An ify'torial

If somebody hadn't dodged the issue—Carlisle would have had a curfew law enacted some months back. And it is right safe to add, the citizenery wouldn't be awakened at 1 a.m. by exploding fireworks, as an overnight cooling in the cross bar hotel has been known to work wonders.

If somebody in the County and maybe the City had been made to cease selling fireworks (illegal in Kentucky, but you sure wouldn't know it around here) the citizenery might sleep better, and the local merchants wouldn't have so much debris to sweep from their store fronts.

If . . . well it's your problem too.
