Sing Me to Sleep.

Just read in the papers that the former Rose Ballard of Carlisle is now the mother of a baby son. Maybe Rose never knew me but I knew her very fine voice and have heard her sing many times while she was a student of the Carlisle school. Lucky baby boy! I can't think of anything quite as comforting as to be lulled to sleep by the sweet singing of Rose Ballard.

The Pastures Look Greener.

Lois Rose was telling me that one of her hair-doters there, about brothers and wife Mr. and Mrs. Albert Watkins formerly of Nicholas County, are selling out Saturday Feb. 7th and auctioneer where they have lived the past several years—book, line and sinker—and will leave at once for their new home in Cocoa, Fla. to reside.

Standing Room Only.

It is safe to say this is a busy week for the beauty parlors. Worn to a frazzle, the operators are giving the whole works to a jittery squealing bunch of teenagers and some long past that age. Just recall the stampede if you tried to get through the Carlisle Drug door in a few months ago when Bob Smith, WCPQ television star, paid the town a visit. Well, he's coming back.

There's going to be a hoe-down whatever that is, at the Armory Saturday night, Jan. 31 and Bob will be here. Just what he has in store for your entertainment remains his own secret until time for his appearance. Do not fail to be present. Remember, he is "our Bob," a grandson of the late Judge D. M. Curry and a nephew of Mrs. William Harper of Archdeacon avenue, and all relatives go to the North Dimes for Polio.

Couple's admission is only a dollar and singles 75c. I just might spend a dollar myself. It would be worth someone less fortunate. Might also be able to find out what in the Sam Patch is sock-hop actually is anyway. Remember it's this Saturday night, beginning at 8o'clock.

Washington Reports

BY YOUR CONGRESSMAN

JOHN WATTS

Exciting First Two Weeks Of Congress

The opening weeks of the new 86th Congress witnessed a most interesting departure from the drab and dull proceedings that generally follow the initial session pending completion of organization.

In addition to the regular work, there was the overturn of Joe Martin as Republican Leader in the House, the debate and agreement upon modification of the "filibuster" rule in the Senate, the personal appearance of the President to deliver his State of the Union message, the address of the President of The Argentine Republic, Honorable Arturo Frondizi, and the visitation of Honorable Anastas I Mikoyan, Deputy Premier of Soviet Russia.

Kentucky's Committee Assignments

As a member of the Ways and Means Committee, I am also a member of the Committee on Committees of the House of Representatives which designates the membership of the various House Legislative Committees. I was highly gratified and pleased that my colleagues on this Committee supported my endeavors to secure top echelon Committee assignments for our two new Kentucky Congressmen.

Chairman Frank A. Stubblefield of the First District will succeed me as a member of the House Committee on Agriculture. I have been assured by his friends that he will be assigned to the Tobacco Subcommittee. Also I have been invited by the membership of the House Agriculture Committee to attend and participate in their discussions on legislative proposals and especially those affecting tobacco. So, Kentucky will continue to have its "finger in the pie" from the start insofar as tobacco and agriculture legislation is concerned.

Congressman Frank W. Burke, of the Third District, has been assigned to the Committee on Public Works which has jurisdiction over legislative matters affecting rivers and harbors, flood control, roads, and public buildings and grounds. This picture of its jurisdiction is sufficient to paint the picture of its importance to Kentucky.

1959 Burley Acreage

On January 14, representatives of the burley growers, warehousemen and myself met with the tobacco folks of the Department of Agriculture to consider burley acreage allotments for the coming crop year. All urged, that at least, existing acreage allotments should be maintained. I presented this viewpoint as strongly as I could and was told that the Secretary would go along.

On Monday the Secretary decided on no cut in the acreage allotments. this action was most commendatory.

It represents a practical and equitable approach and a reasonable administration application of the law. I am highly gratified as I know our growers and other interested parties will be.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

THURSDAY, JANUARY 29

Read Mark 1: 8-15

God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. (I Corinthians 10:13.)

One day a boy came to me with a problem. He was inclined to indulge in some pleasure but there had been pleaded a spiritual retreat that would conflict. He realized he would have to choose one or the other. We talked it over, and I pointed out the path he ought to choose but told him he would have to make the decision.

During the week he called me on the telephone and said he had decided in favor of the spiritual retreat. He had won a victory.

We are often tempted, but we remember that Jesus, too, was tempted of Satan. tempted as we are. Now He sits at the right hand of God to intercede for us that we may be able in His strength to withstand temptations. He knows our weakness and offers us strength to resist temptation.

To be obedient to God means setting aside every desire of lust and self. It means avoiding infection that would, if permitted, ultimately destroy the soul.

PRAYER. Our Father, give unto us unshakable faith. Give us strength to overcome evil and wisdom to live victoriously through faith in the atoning power of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. In His name. Amen

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

The power of God through Christ is sufficient for our every need

Answer to Puzzle No. 199

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

None Of Us Are "Right" All The Time

Once there was a saying in the retail trade that went like this: "The customer is always right."

No one can be right all the time. We are all human, and therefore not infallible. Yet, inasmuch as the function of a retail store is to "serve" the public, that store must have a policy to serve. The only way a store can keep its customers is to keep them happy. A diplomatic retailer, when he knows a customer is "wrong" can show the customer that he is wrong without making a big issue of the matter and in so doing make things "right" in the mind of the customer. Parents, since they, too, are human, are not always "right" and foolish indeed is the parent who thinks he is never wrong.

Teenagers sometimes rebel against parental authority simply because they must express themselves as individuals and the best possible excuse for the rebellion is that the parents are "wrong" about this or that. Some teenagers feel that the only way they can get their point across is by constantly battling for what they choose to call their "rights." Actually, the "rights" they seek could be wrapped up in one fancy package; freedom from all types of authority.

Having "right" and always being right cannot be as simple as black or white, yes or no, right or wrong. Life is a living experience, and it must be taken in day-to-day doses. You can't plan a menu, down to the last degree, and follow it through. You can plan your homework, and complete a right to set of do's and don'ts — but inevitably, the change of one or two of these part of living will force you to make some adjustments.

Being "right" all of the time is not so important as being within the right frame of mind—making plans, decisions, and taking action based on thoughtfulness and the best possible judgement.

If you have a teenage problem you would like to discuss, write to Teen Talk, Box 1, Frankfort, Ky.
