CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
The spiritual power of Christ' teachings and example will be emphasized Sunday at Christian Science services in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Sacrament".
One of the key statements of Jesus to be read from the Bible is this from John (6: 63): "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."
Correlative citations from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include (25: 26-31): "Implicit faith in the Teacher and all the emotional love we can bestow on him will never alone make us imitators of him. We must go and do likewise, else we are not improving the great blessings which our Master worked and suffered, to bestow upon us."
The Golden Text is from II Corinthians 12: 14: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all."

CWF pageant at Cane Ridge July 12

One of the outstanding events of the summer at the Old Cane Ridge Meeting house near Paris, historic shrine of the Christian Churches of Kentucky, is the pageant, "The Wind and the Flame", to be presented by the Kentucky State Board of the Christian Women's Fellowship on Sunday, July 19 beginning at 2:30 p.m. (C.D.T.)
The Pageant is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Hartsfield of Lexington, chairman of the Pageant Committee, Mrs. John L. Maint, State CWF president, and Mrs. D. D. Dugan, State Executive Secretary of CWF.
The history of women's missionary work through the Christian Churches in Kentucky will be portrayed by members of the Board in the costumes of the day.

ting him to produce up to 30 acres of wheat as feed on his farm will not be eligible to vote. Every wheat grower will be informed of the individual wheat allotment for his farm in advance of the referendum date.
As usual, Chairman Gray says, the ASC committee will set up polling places through out the county for the convenience of farmers in voting. Locations will be announced later by the county ASC office.
If quotas are approved in the referendum, the present law provides that farmers who comply with their wheat acreage allotments will be eligible to market all their wheat with out restriction. A grower who exceeds his allotment will be subject to marketing quota penalties on his excess wheat if he has more than 15 acres for harvest as grain.
If quotas are not approved, there will be no restrictions on wheat marketings.

Betty Wood

were painted blue and the ceiling painted white. Still carrying out the blue and white color scheme family selected white draperies for the windows and used a white gathered valance across the top. Pictures used over the bed were framed in white and solid blue figures in them.
In order to have more storage space in her room a desk was moved into the living room and a chest used as a desk in place.
Probably the hardest task Betty did was removing the old finish from the floor. The floor was then sanded and new finish applied.
The approximate cost of the redecorating project was 13.15. Other girls who did outstanding project work were Wanda Hamilton who made and equipped a first aid kit, and Bonnie Whaltaker who made a cotton skirt and blouse.

Training season for coon dogs July 1 to Oct. 18

Frankfort, Ky. June 25—The training season for raccoon and opossum dogs this year will remain the same as in 1958, July 1 through October 18, Miner Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, said today. At a recent session of the Fish and Wildlife Commission, the commissioners did not change those regulations, Commissioner Clark pointed out.
In further explaining the training season, Commissioner Clark said that coon dog field trials may be held after July 1, but no live coon hunts may be staged.
Other seasons: Squirrel—August 29 through November 26. Quail, Rabbit and Possum—November 20 through January 18. Deer (gun)—December 4, 5 and 6 Deer (Bow and Arrow)—October 21 through November 19.

Wilson named editor of Cynthiana Log Cabin

Thomas T. Wilson, 56, has been named editor of the Log Cabin, Cynthiana weekly newspaper. The new assignment became effective last week following the recent purchase of the Cynthiana Publishing Company by T. J. and T. L. Preston from Mr. and Mrs. James G. Wilson.
A life-long Republican, Wilson entered newspaper work in Cynthiana 34 years ago. In 1925 he started as cub reporter and advertising solicitor of the Log Cabin working himself up to the position of advertising manager in the early 1930's.
When the paper merged with The Cynthiana Democrat in 1945 Wilson managed the advertising department of both newspapers. In 1954 he became assistant general manager of the company.

Letter to the editor

July 7, 1959

Mr. Warren R. Fisher,
Editor of Nicholas Mercury.

You were present last night at the City of Carlisle regular council meeting and have attended previous meetings, at which the matter of furnishing gas and water service to a proposed factory, a matter which has been discussed at length. The purported action thereon. Do you care to comment?
You heard that $8,000.00 from the City's Water Operating Funds and $8,000.00 from its Gas Operating Funds has been donated toward the furnishing of these services. It was also brought out that it would cost $15,000.00 to furnish gas service, and that the eight-inch water line and a two-inch gas line can be run for this factory and that the city has no usable means of furnishing this sum, even if it were advisable to do so.
You learned that the city would be able to realize a very small profit, if any, on the gas service if furnished at the rates charged as paid by the citizens of Carlisle, was not mentioned. It is a fact that the city pays $2,400.00 per year to keep pressure on its fire hydrants through four-inch water mains pipes, whereas it is proposed to provide a six-inch pipe to the distant factory for a similar purpose, with no mention having been made of the matter of fire protection.
It must be apparent to you that the removal of the factory will work a distinct hardship on residents of the city who walk to their work, in the matter that they will enjoy the patronage of factory employees and to the city itself which has some small income from taxes.
You will realize, of course, that when the factory is relocated there will be service stations, restaurants, grocers, etc established within walking distances and others outside the city limits.
You have heard that the 50-acre factory site might possibly be annexed under a recent state law, even though not adjoining the city limits and you have also probably realize that the city would spend more for its streets, street lighting, fire protection, police protection and other required services than it gains in 29 years of tax collection.
The city needs industries.
It does not need to go broke in helping to remove the only one we have
A CITY RESIDENT

THE SECRET DRAWER

By H. Louis Raybold

FOR AN entire year Deborah Kane had wanted to get into the old Kinkerman house, a once splendid Hudsonian house was coming up for sale.
Debbie was interested in just one thing. A shabby black walnut desk with its secret drawer in which she and Zoe Blakeman used to hide, first their notes as children, later Cwtr love letters.
She and Joe had grown up together, with the home of one at a ways open to the other. It had been Debbie's habit to run into Joe's house through a convenient cellar door, then up an inner stairway. One day she had noticed an old desk in a cellar corner and had shown it to Joe. Together they had dragged it forth, opened it, and by accident pressed a spring that released a secret drawer. From then on the desk became their secret medium.
On the evening that Jon had taken her into his arms, kissed her, and seemed on the verge of asking her to marry him, she had gone to her room to pour out her heart to a long, loving letter, but it slept across after everyone was asleep, and slip it into the drawer.
That very night Joe's father had died from a heart attack. Except for a brief moment at the services, she hadn't seen Joe again. He had left with his family to bury his father in Maine and had stayed on with them at his grandparents.
The house had been assigned before Joe's return, but he was still there when Debbie came to see her.
Debbie was quick with "One dollar!"
"One and a quarter!" The voice came from the rear of the crowd.
"Two!" said Debbie.
"Three!" said the voice.
"Three-fifty!"
"Four!" said the voice.
"Seven!" Debbie stood up and looked in the direction of the voice It was Minnie Baker who was always good for a laugh.
"Ten!" said Debbie firmly. revived to her feet.
"Fifteen!" said Minnie, as a couple of amusement ran through the crowd. Fifteen dollars for such a beauty old desk!
Debbie opened her mouth to bid twenty, but as the auctioneer clapped down his hammer with "Sold!"
Debbie rose quickly. She must have that desk before Minnie. She actually had her hand on the panel with the spring when a voice whirled her around on her feet "Debbie!"
"Joe!"
"I planned to be here for the sale When I found I would be late, I called Jon Baker to get someone to bid on the desk for me. He asked his sister. I've always wondered if you found my letter There was so much confusion at the time, and—"
"Was it in answer to mine?"
Jon looked puzzled. "There was no letter there when I put mine in. Oh, Debbie—"
But Debbie was pressing the spring. Out flew the little drawer. In it lay a single letter addressed to her. Then she caught a glimmer of white. There was another letter, but in her haste she had slipped it, and into the drawer fell, between the edge of the drawer and the panel.
The two faced each other, the unopened letters in their hands.
"A year is a long time," said Jon slowly. "Suppose we tear up these letters unread and take a fresh start. I am here for another reason than the sale. I came back to ask you to marry me."
No one would ever read them now, least of all the two walking so happily across the maple-shaded lawn, carrying a dilapidated old desk between them.

MMI Elliott endowment is $115,000

Col. Leslie C. Blankinship, president of Millersburg Military Institute, announced this week that the school is to receive a gift of $115,000.
This gift comes as a bequest made by the late Charles Wayne Elliott, of Millersburg Ohio, who died on March 20 of this year.
John Wayne County National Bank of Wooster, Ohio, executors of Elliott's estate notified Col Blankinship recently of the bequest.
According to school officials the money is to be used as the beginning of an endowment Income from his fund will be used to set up scholarships for boys who could not attend a private school without financial assistance.
Two main scholarships will be offered each year in the name of John William and Robert T Elliott. Both of these men attended the Millersburg Military Institute in the early 1940's.
John William Elliott lost his life in the service of his country during World War II Robert T Elliott was killed in an automobile accident soon after he completed his work at the Bourbon County institute.
One of these scholarships will be offered each year to a student in the Junior High School Department and the other to a young man attending the Senior High School of MMI

First 90-10 paving placed on Interstate

Kentucky's first paving on the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways, under the 90-10 provisions of the 1956 Federal Highway Act, was placed this past May in Hardin county. The 1.46-mile section south of the Kentucky Turnpike is being paved with a heavy-duty 10-inch-thick concrete slab on six inches of crushed limestone subbase.
Length of the first section to be paved will be 11.6 miles extending from the turnpike to U. S. 31-W near Upton. The concrete safe access highway will have two 24-ft. directional lanes (four driving lanes) with outside shoulders 10 ft. wide and inside shoulders four ft. wide at the minimum. The lanes will be separated by a 60 ft. depressed grass median strip to minimize the danger of head-on collisions.
The Interstate System is being constructed under terms of the Federal Highway Act with the federal government paying nine-tenths of the construction costs Each state is required to maintain a share of the system when it is completed.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Smith, Lexington, was featured in Sundays Herald Leader The most interesting feature to me, was the fact that the fieldstone was taken from a Bath county creek bed There are many do it your self home builders and cabinet makers but how many persons have you heard of who, with crowbars pried loose from a creek bed, the stones for their home.
