Our called, mass meeting

Beginning at 7:30 Thursday evening a meeting to acquire funds to construct the canal from a water and gas line to the new city plant was held at the Carleils.

Discussions were held that ran the gamut from who would disburse Nicholas County patronage with one passing the responsibility to the other with such politeness that our position seemed to be turned to support for our wonderful Little League teams; and that we guess is what makes life a little less such a challenge.

Enough of that by the by to the business at hand—the much needed after support was achieved by Mayor Bill Power and the members present, when the business meeting of the Carleils was held at the Carleils.

It was known that all along by those in the know, the Carleils was a waiting party to see what city money is available and finish the job.

FAIR WARNING: In the words of Mayor Power, my next printing is a waiting party to see what city money is available and finish the job.

Some weeks ago members of the Carleils City club were investigating the possibilities of a pool for Carleils as much as the city was left $18,000 by the late Everett M. Smith, but just such a thing as a subject—warming pool.

The Carleils program this week under the guidance of C. H. Baile, has as its subject—warming pool.

Farm Bureau asks defeat of socialized medicine

State county Farm Bureau leaders throughout the United States have joined with the American Farm Bureau Federation in determined opposition to the Federal Bill (H.R. 470) which would bring socialized medicine to the United States through the social security system.

In a letter to Kentucky's representatives in Congress, John W. Koon, executive secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau, has placed Kentucky's organized farmers squarely behind the American Farm Bureau Federation's position on the social security system.

"We believe," wrote Koon, "that such a proposal is simply a device to enable the government to take over the health insurance of the people and to make it a part of the social security system."

"The Carleils Farm Bureau has placed Kentucky's organized farmers squarely behind the American Farm Bureau Federation's position on the social security system."

"Under provisions of the Federal Bill, the social security fund would be increased by nearly a half of one percent on farmers and other agricultural producers."
