Rep. Watts
every walk of life are represented," Combs said.
The Prestonburg attorney said history always shows that during a vigorous primary the party becomes unified. "A vigorous Democratic primary is not destructive to party success. We will go forward to a big victory in November.
"I want to extend a welcome to all Democrats in Kentucky to join to help us achieve a victory in November and launch an administration that will be good for Kentucky."
Saying that the Democrats already control both houses in the General Assembly, Combs said a Republican administration never is successful because it cannot control the Legislature.
Combs said Supt. of Public Instruction Robert R. Martin and David Francis, co-chairmen in his primary campaign, will serve as vice chairmen for the entire ticket. The remainder of the organization will be named by Watts at an early date, Combs said.

Little League notes
by Marion Sims

A nice size crowd turned out for our games played on the Little League Foundation day, Chester Scott of the Chamber of Commerce "Cubs" was the winner of the foot races. Dickey Smart of Rotary Club "Red" was second and William Poe also of the "Red" came in third.
The Minor League held its first practice and the turn out was small. More boys are needed if the Minor League is to be organized. Another practice will be held Saturday afternoon, June 27 at 2 o'clock

GETS REA LOAN
A wire from Rep. John C. Watts last week stated that the Rural Electrical Administration has granted a loan of $143,000 to the Harrison County RECC. This amount with $100,000 from previous loans will be used to improve and expand plant production facilities and construct approximately 20 mile of distribution lines.
When the new lines are completed a total of 240 rural customers will be serviced.

HILLOCK SCORES FOR PARIS
Little Donnie Hillock connected for two homers here Sunday afternoon to help give the Paris FOP baseball team a 102 victory over the Twentieth Century club of Maysville. Both clents were well out of the park, and the last was a grand slam. Hillock played short-stop for Nicholas County school and now attends Transylvania college in Lexington.
The Paris team will meet the Lebanon (Ohio) Independents next Sunday at 2:30.

HOME SOLD

Fleming-Mason RECC business, entertainment set for July 9

Preparations are underway for the big annual meeting and farm show of the Fleming-Mason Rural Electric Cooperative corporation. The four-hour program of business and entertainment activities will be put on July 9, on Highway 32, one mile out of Flemingsburg, according to C. J. Ross, co-op manager of the Fleming-Mason RECC.
Pretty local beauty contestants, prize drawings and professional entertainment will be featured in addition to the regular business meeting.
Local beauties, 16 to 22 years of age, who are single and members of a co-op consumer's family, are eligible to compete in the beauty contest. The young lady selected by the judges will become "Miss Fleming-Mason Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation of 1959". She will also represent Fleming-Mason RECC in the state RECC beauty contest which will be held in Louisville at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, September 16. Applications for the beauty contest may be obtained from the Fleming-Mason RECC office at Flemingsburg.
Five acts of professional entertainment will perform for attending co-op members and visitors.
There will also be two prize drawings for which members and visitors may register. Prizes will include electric irons, lamps, fans, skillets, toasters and many other valuable items.
The Fleming-Mason RECC annual meeting will begin at 6:00 p. m. on July 9.

'Sports Afield' extols fishing in Kentucky

Frankfort, June 10—A national magazine is extolling Kentucky by calling it a state with 15,000 miles of streams, five major lakes with four new ones being built, plenty of farm ponds and year-around fishing.
The publication — Sports Afield Magazine for June—includes a complete fishing guide to the Blue Grass State. It has pictures, charts, maps and much explanatory copy, describing best sports, times and methods for catching all types of fish found in the Commonwealth.
The article, by Robert S Hart Jr., says:
"With the exception of Alaska, there is no state with such a wealth of water, untold about and underfished, as the Commonwealth of Kentucky. With 15,000 miles of running stream water, five major lakes totaling over 240,000 acres, approximately 150,000 farm ponds, plus a fishing timetable that calls for fishing 12 months out of the year, Kentucky is truly a fisherman's paradise."
And commenting upon future fishing in Kentucky, the article describes impoundments being build to form new lakes and adds, "You ain't seen nothing yet!"
A chemical treatment has been developed to cut rot in cotton fabrics, such as awnings, tents, tarps, etc.

Mr. Don Schilling, of Lexington, Kentucky, state manager of the American Republic Insurance company, is visiting in Carlisle this week.
While here, Mr. Schilling is completing arrangements for representatives of the American Republic Insurance Company to personally interview all residents of Nicholas county, to fully explain the various plans of hospital, surgical and nursing insurance that are available to those who can qualify.
Mr. Schilling said that several different plans of protection are available to suit the varied needs of families or individuals. For further information see full page announcement.

How Long Does A Girl Wait for Dates?

By C. D. Smith

A teenage girl writes: "All during high school, my parents refused to let me date . . . after then as rare occasions. "Wait until you're out of high school,' they kept telling me. Well, I am now out of high school, but they now say 'Wait a while longer.' How long am I supposed to wait until I feel free to say 'yes' when a boy asks me for a date?"

Although it is difficult to understand, some parents feel that the longer they can keep their children from having "dates" and socializing with the other sex, that's the thing to do.

It isn't, of course. What happens, sometimes, is that they keep saying "wait" until they get to the point where they say "You're old enough, but you don't know anything about getting along with the opposite sex." And, if the child always followed the advice to "wait," this is quite true. We don't learn how to get along with people unless we associate with people.

Parents are wrong to raise their children to a certain age, then say, "You're old enough now. Do anything you want to do." It just doesn't work that way. Life is a living experience and wisdom, character and prudence do not come with a certain age. They come through experience.

The best way to solve this particular problem, if it can be done in this fashion, is by calling a "family conference" and putting the cards on the table. It's much better to face up to the situation and try to work out a satisfactory agreement than to concede to the parents—having no dates at all, or "slipping" behind their back to have dates without their knowledge. Often situations of this kind resolve themselves when they are met squarely and with determination. After all, few parents are completely unreasonable!

If you have a teenage problem you would like discussed in this column, write to: Editor, FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, 1014 CHERRY STREET, SOUTH KENTUCKY PRESS ASSN., LOUISVILLE, KY.
