Annual report

Several thousands of acres of additional land have been covered by seeding perennial grasses and clovers. For hay, more and more alfalfa has been seeded with Bluegrass Orchard Grass and Brome Grass. Adequate pasture and high quality hay are indispensable for a dairy, beef, and also for producing area.

To protect the limited Class I and II cropland, several miles of terraces and diversion channels were constructed.

Approximately 50 ponds were constructed and they not only provide water for livestock and permit rotation grazing but they conserve water there by reducing the amount of runoff during periods of heavy rainfall. Farmers are realizing the need for heavy vegetative cover on pond dams and spill ways and they are seeding them. More farmers are building mechanical spillways to relieve the vegetative spillways than ever before. One irrigation pond was constructed.

Eleven livestock watering tanks were installed below ponds and springs during the year.

The value of tile drainage has been observed on several conspicuous roadside fields. While the footage is small, the number of farmers utilizing this conservation measure steadily increases annually.

Wildlife plots established by materials furnished by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources have proved quite rewarding. Many ponds have been stocked by fish furnished in the same division.

IV. Cooperation And Assistance of Agencies:

The progress that has been made in soil and water conservation is attributed to many agencies.

The Carlisle Mercury and the Nicholas County Star, the weekly publications, devote valuable space to news articles and pictures related to Soil and Water Conservation. As a means of informing the public and promoting the adoption of conservation measures, their services are indispensable.

The County Agent and his staff of Extension Workers have furthered the cause of conservation by their educational programs and cooperative field tours and demonstrations.

Through its cooperation and teachings, the Vocational Agricultural Department promotes conservation.

The County and City School systems cooperate in the Soil Conservation Essay Contest. Also Conservation movies have been shown to students throughout the county.

The Clergymen in the District have contributed much in the promotion in conservation by observance of Soil Stewardship Week and delivering sermons related thereto.

The Agricultural Conservation Program administered by the Nicholas County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee furnished financial assistance to farmers in accomplishing soil and water conservation practices.

The Junior Conservation Clubs and the Fish and Game Club contributed materially to the furtherance of soil, water, fish, and wildlife conservation.

The United States Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service's local representatives, W. F. Threlkeld, and part-time employees, R. C. Alexander and Darrell Dean assist furnished technical assistance to farmers in carrying out conservation practices. The assignment of a second District to the Work Unit Conservationists, without assignment of additional technical aid as proposed, has adversely effected accomplishment within this District. One-fifth to two-fifths of his time is devoted to the other District. Five percent of the county ACP allocation was inadequate to provide needed technical assistance to farmers under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

All Agencies realize that the growth of the community and county is dependent upon the conservation of our natural resources, and it is through the efforts of all that progress within the Nicholas County Soil Conservation District has been achieved.

Respectfully submitted

Lovell Hollar, Chairman
Nicholas County Soil Conservation District Supervisors.
Norwood Auxier, vice chairman; Frank Howell, secretary-treasurer; Charles T Whaley

'59 Easter Seal campaign starts Monday

The opening of the 1959 Easter Seal Campaign March 9 will be aided by the mailing of approximately 480,000 letters containing seals to residents in every county in Kentucky.

The Kentucky Society for Crippled Children—the Easter Seal Society—will continue its campaign through March 29, Easter Sunday.

Contributions to Easter Seals finance a statewide program of therapy, medical and hospital care, and recreation for children crippled by many causes.

Easter Seals for the 1959 campaign are of two designs. One showing a boy on crutches against a background silhouette of two active youngsters; the second showing the traditional Easter Lily.

Last year the Easter Seal appeal in Kentucky raised $234,656.76, with which the Society gave direct service to 3,877 physically handicapped youngsters.

In urging that Kentuckians give widespread support to the Society, George Kavanaugh, state chairman, pointed out that the cost of hospital and clinic care for crippled children has increased during the past year.

"This is our once-a-year appeal to the general public," Kavanaugh emphasized.

"For more than 30 years Kentuckians have been most generous in supporting the Society's programs and we are confident that the response to the 1959 appeal will be even greater," he said.

Burley variety Ky. 9 available

A new variety of burley tobacco will be available this year for Kentucky farmers under the name of Ky. 9

That's the word from W. D. Valleau, Kentucky Experiment Station plant pathologist. Valleau said it comes from a test variety known as "Exp. 9."

It has good resistance to black root rot, mosaic, and is fairly high in resistance to wildfire.

Valleau said it would compete in disease resistance with Ky. 16 and with Burley 21.

Ky. 9 has a larger leaf than Burley 21, is a good standup variety, but is not quite as high in quality as the latter.

The variety has been in an experimental stage for the last five years; for the last two years, it has been widely grown in special trails over the state and by many farmers. Considerable seed is now in hands of seedsmen, Valleau said, and will be on the market this year for the coming crop as Ky. 9.

COMMENT
Kay T. Fisher

Last week we had a letter from Mrs. D. B. Ashbrook of Carrollton, Mo. enclosing some sketches from the diary of Eugene Wise, who worked for the Mercury years ago as a boy. Mr. Wise passed away in Tulsa, Okla. in 1940. I enjoyed reading them and thought you would too.

Tuesday—

Excitement was high in the office today when Velma Crump fainted. They laid her flat on the floor and sprinkled her with cold water.

Wednesday—

The old benzine engine broke down. Mr. Fisher said "We will never get the Mercury out on time now." Bones said "Always has." We did.

Monday—

Our hand printer left us today. He stole Mr. Fisher's old blue serge suit. He took it to Henryville and sold it for two bucks.

Thursday—

Mr. Harry Burnaw renewed his subscription to the Mercury today. He overpaid one dollar which Mr. Fisher did not discover until he was gone. Mr. Fisher gave me the dollar and said "Run Gene, until you catch him." I caught him at the corner of Main and Somerville on Tuesday.

I loafed half-an-hour today. Miss Kate took my dictionary which I was using on the stool to make me tall enough to reach the type; to look up the word "embezzle".

Friday—

Grimes was an hour late today but he brought us each a cake of Yukatan chewing gum. Grimes is a liberal soul.

Saturday—

Cup Fulton cut my hair today. He said, "Gene, never be a d——n barber. Your the fourth in the chair today and no pay yet." I paid. I am going to be a printed and work for Mr. Fisher.
