CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The effectiveness of prayer in healing the sick will be stressed at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson Sermon entitled "Matter".

From the Gospel according to St. Mark will be read the healing by Christ Jesus of the young lad who had "a dumb spirit." The account ends with Jesus' comment to his disciples, "... This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting" (Mark 9: 29).

Also emphasizing the power of prayer are passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, including the following (15:9): "To enter into the heart of prayer, the door of the erring senses must be closed. Lips must be mute and materialism silent, that man may have audience with Spirit, the divine Principle, Love, which destroys all error."

COMMENT

Kay T. Fisher

Well-Ordered Society

Birds which are year-round residents tend to retain the same territory for life. Migrants have both summer and winter properties. The birds that stay around your home all winter may seem to be in flocks and therefore trespassing. But they are not! They are a well ordered bird society made up of oldtimers and young, complete with a leader or "boss bird."

In these winter societies the defense of the breeding territory has given way, in certain species, to the common defense of a community territory against neighboring groups of the same species. Birds will tolerate trespassers of a different species on their land, since they are not competing, but not intruders of their own species.

The function of the territorial station bred into the genes of the birds over the millennium of evolution, is probably to aid in the formation of pairs, to provide shelter for the young and to ensure the perpetuation of the species by spreading its population over a wide area. Whatever the function, it works and gives some advantage to those that use it. So it persists.

Unaware of these higher purposes, the bird knows that its home is its castle—and its prison. Consequently a male bird returning in the spring takes the best land he can and as much of it as he is able to defend. By doing this he not only assures himself of a good food supply but also a mate.

The female birds, returning a few days later than the males, pick their mates by their attractive voices, the land they have staked off, and whether or not it has good nesting sites. The weaker (really the younger) males and the late-comers are pushed into "submarginal" land by bird standards. These birds often go through the season as "bachelors."
