Fire damages theatre interior; baseball team wins opening game

Thursday, April 4, 1940
Fire originating in the stairway of the white balcony of the large theatre on Locust street, about 12:30 o'clock Tuesday morning destroyed both balcony and projection room and equipment of the theatre, and the entire interior of the building was damaged by fire. Fire is believed to have started from a light fixture which was blown down from the balcony stage.

FARM BUREAU in Action

Everything's All Right
As often happens, I called upon Mrs. Rose home at Pleasant Valley for a little yakety-yak with Alice. A strange voice greeted me and I asked it the right number. "No, it's Mrs. Nellie," she said. "You know this is a Stranger in the Middle."
