Attorney swallows small nail; farmers endorse burley association

Thursday, December 19, 1940

Sheriff L. B. Barton has received dog license tags for next year. The law requires all dogs to be licensed by January 1 and owners failing to obtain licenses are subject to arrest.

Most farmers in Nicholas County have about completed stripping their tobacco crops, but only a small part of the crop has been put on the market. Farmers are selling only a small portion of their crop, hoping that the market will be stronger after Christmas.

City Attorney Roger Womack is able to be out after several days illness at his home, all of which started when he swallowed a small nail. Although Mr. Womack attributes his illness to flu or cold, his friends say that it was mostly fright. The unusual accident occurred when Mr. Womack was attempting to hang a calender in his office. He was standing on a step ladder with the small nail in his mouth. The ladder rocked and Mr. Womack suddenly opened his mouth and down slipped the nail. With visions of the surgeon's knife being used to recover it, the attorney immediately went home and went to bed, where he remained for several days. Finally the nail was recovered without the use of surgery—and Mr. Womack, 'tis said, recovered rapidly. The moral to this story, if there is a moral: Don't stand on a ladder with a nail in your mouth.

MARRIED—Harlan Skeen of Nicholas County, and Miss Nancy Louise Stephenson, of Nicholas County, on November 3 at Creb Orchard, Kentucky. —Oren Lefloy Collins and Miss Rose Wood both of Lexington, on Wednesday at Lexington.

A LITTLE YAPPIN'

by Nellie Crump

"Merry Christmas" to All. Come Rain, Come Shine.

Ronnie, the young man on our milk truck, seemed a bit shook up that cold Tuesday morning about ten days ago. Some said it was three successive and some said eight. He told me what shook him besides the first real snow of the season —somewhere along the route he had greeted a lady customer with, "Good morning, this is a beautiful winter day," trying to make her feel better and lift his own spirits a bit, I'm headed, but his good intentions failed to work. She gave him an icy stare and replied, "Yeah, beautiful overhead, but there's very few headed in that direction." A little shook up over the weather, or something, herself, we venture to say.

—Yep—

Sweet Memories of Carlisle.

How memories reverse the pages of time at this season! A lovely Christmas letter from Mrs. Alma Metcalfe Manley, of Knoxville, Tenn., written before dawn, brings her back to the old home in Carlisle. Thinking of childhood friends and the happenings of long ago, she asks if the Methodist S. S. still holds a Christmas service and party as it did then. One especially she recalls vividly, when she, as a little girl of eight, recited "Annie and Willie's Prayer" in the Old Nicholas County courthouse more than three score and ten years ago. Sweet memories of Christmas and home in Carlisle, lead thee on, dear heart.

Answer is Yes or No.

There are happy days with all the gaiety and preparation for Christmas—but there's work to be done! The worst job I have tackled was to launder one white choir robe for the carols. Bessie took part in at school, I wondered and feared how the job would come out. There were two days and nights in which to get it done. Early the first morning after a sleepless night, I began much like one would launder Barnum and Bailey's wild animal tent. All at once I began to laugh at the yards and yards of white goods piled before me, realizing that it is the spirit in which one goes into a thing that makes it hard or soft. Then I thought of a story the bishop told at the Methodist Conference in Carlisle several years ago. If the bishop could tell it in the pulpit I believe it can be told in The Mercury. The story—"At a Conference somewhere the Archbishop was staying in a home where a colored maid was employed. His white surplice needed to be washed he got up enough courage to ask the maid if she would do it. A bit unwillingly, she finally consented. About half an hour later she got the hostess' attention and loudly whispered, "Do de arch angel wan' hemstitch starched or no?" Does one starch a choir robe or no?

Candy for Christmas.

After the end of World War I I worked for several weeks in Louisville Having to go "out" for meals usually included a five-cent picture show there on Fourth street each evening. It was a nice little place. Pictures were silent then, but good. I have paid ten times that amount since and seen less.

For two weeks before Christmas stores were open nights until nine. I had to pass the dime stores on the way "home" so inside it a point to go in after the show and mill around with the crowd. On this eventful Saturday night a great throng crowded the streets and every store. Just as I started in, the door flew open and men, women and children rushed out, almost knocking me down. Packages fell to the street and several women screamed. I thought there was a fire. Just then a siren blasted above the din. It was everyone for himself and "devil grab the hindmost" just as a young man nearly upset me, so great was his hurry. Into my hands he shoved a paper sack and said, "Here, take this" and disappeared in the crowd. I realize now what a risk it was —he was gone better perhaps! but I was left "holding the bag."

The siren ceased and a lot of policemen (must have been a dozen) jumped out of the big vehicle and crowded through. More policemen appeared as if by magic—and I still thought there was a fire. No one was left in the store and I saw no

FARM BUREAU in Action

by Cliff Fields, Kentucky Farm Bureau Fed.

Farm Bureau Hopes For Best With New Secretary of Agr.

President-elect John F. Kennedy has appointed Orville Freeman as his Secretary of Agriculture. What can we expect from the new Secretary?

Frankly, we in Farm Bureau can only keep our fingers crossed. Freeman comes from Minnesota, where the Farm-Labor Party has been in power for a number of years. Running on the Democratic-Farmer-Labor ticket in Minnesota, Freeman was defeated last month for reelection as Governor.

Governor Freeman's views on agricultural legislation are fair-smoke. Nearby, policemen were putting three or four young men in at the big door in the back of their private conveyance and two stood on the steps as it sped away. Someone said, "Sure was a dumb stunt trying to hold up a whole store full of people." It was then I realized I had witnessed a would-be robbery—wondered if the loot I was in that sack. Was it money or a whole arsenal—gosh, I was scared! I had to know, so I peeped. If a boa constrictor had jumped out I could not have been more frightened—nor relieved when about a quarter's worth of peanut brittle, orange slices and other Christmas candy stared at me—and I at it. It was probably purchased to bolster a young man's nerve in his first robbery attempt I do not know.

I do know that the whole thing was dangerous business and I was lucky. So young girls, if you ever get into such a mess, run to the nearest policeman as quickly as your little legs will do their stuff.

Letters to the Editor

Covington, Ky.
December 16 1960

Dear Sir,

Would it be possible for me to have the Mercury paper mailed here every week.

My mother-in-law is from Carlisle, and since she is ailing and not feeling too well she stays here in Covington with her son, Raymond Ritchie and wife. She misses the paper and likes to read about all the goings on and about the people she knows down there. I can send you the money if you can send the paper up here. It would be greatly appreciated. She is (Mrs. Rose Ritchie from Carlisle) and sometimes stays with her son Homer at Headquarters. She would like to have it printed that she wishes all down there a Merry Christmas and Best Wishes for the coming year, and she sure misses her home town.

Thanks.
Mrs. Ray Ritchie

ly well known. They generally coincide with Kennedy's campaign farm advisor. Dr. Willard Cochrane of the University of Minnesota, who favors a completely franchised agriculture, based on licensing the right to produce agricultural commodities. This would mean complete governmental control over the right to farm.

In a statement to the press the day after the announcement of Freeman's appointment to the Cabinet, Farm Bureau President Charles B. Shuman said he had this to say: "We congratulate him; and will do all we can to cooperate with the new Secretary. We will endeavor to keep in contact with him, and hope we can find many areas for cooperation. I hope he will give attention to administrative problems, and not be so concerned with legislation as some secretaries in the past."

We can only hope that Secretary Freeman will be willing to listen to the views of the organization that represents three out of four organized farmers in America—Farm Bureau. Unlike his practice in other cabinet appointments, Kennedy did not consult with Farm Bureau leaders before making he Freeman appointment. He did consult with leaders of the Farmers Union, which actively supported the Kennedy-Johnson ticket in the recent election. The Farmers Union is reported by organized in some 20 states with a membership of some 450 000 Farm Bureau is a federation of 50 state Farm Bureaus with a membership in excess of 1,600,000 Farm Bureau does not endorse political candidates.

We wish the new Secretary well He would have to be a saint to cope with the serious surplus situation. In the end however, it will be the Congress that will make the decisions on farm legislation.

State Officials Deserve Public Support For Strip-mining Enforcement

Anyone who has traveled in Eastern Kentucky or other places in the state and has seen the devastation caused by strip mining operations knows from observation that the strip-mining law has not been enforced for a number of years. The law provides for certain measures designed to insure that the torn-up land areas will be reclaimed and restored as far as possible to a natural condition.

Now that Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlick and other state officials have decided that the owners of the strip mining operations should obey the law like anyone else, they deserve the widespread support of the public. Certainly all sorts of pressures will be applied in Frankfort to call off the enforcement drive. We hope that Governor Combs continues to back up state officials who are determined that state law shall be obeyed.

People or corporations who conduct strip-mining operations have no more right to ignore the law than anyone else. If the law contains unfair and impractical provisions, then it may need to be amended; but the people of Kentucky, through their elected representatives in the General Assembly, have adopted a law designed to protect the public interest. This law should be carried out in both the letter and the spirit.

In a time when an all-out effort is being pushed to develop Eastern Kentucky for the tourist trade; it would be ridiculous to allow the wholesale defacement of the mountainsides in that area to continue. People will not travel hundred of miles to view a countryside marred by eroding gashes.

We are not against strip-mining. No doubt it has a place in the Kentucky economy. We are for the owners of the operations obeying the law like the rest of us. Some of these operations will probably have to close down as a result of law enforcement, and this may temporarily put a few people out of a job, but the overall public interest should come first. We suggest you let Commissioner Matlick and other state officials know that you support their efforts in this matter.

Retail stores urged to push fire safe Yule

Managers of retail stores are being asked by the National Board of Fire Underwriters to keep their establishments fire safe during the holiday shopping season.

The National Board offers the following fire safety precautions.

1. Be sure that all emergency exits in your store are clearly marked

2 See to it that all aisles and exits are kept free from obstructions.

3 Empty packing cases, cartons and waste materials should be disposed of promptly as goods are unpacked

4. Make it a rule to clear backrooms and cellars of such materials every day.

5 Allow smoking only in specially designated areas.

6 Give instructions to all clerks and other employees on how to handle fire extinguishers and other fire emergency equipment in your place of business.

7. Only non-flammable or at least slow-burning materials should be used in store decorations. Keep decorations away from electric light bulbs

8. Employ only qualified electricians to install new wiring or repairs.

9 If Christmas lights are installed, check the fuse box to be sure each circuit has the proper size fuse.

10. Some time in advance of the heavy Christmas shopping season, call a meeting of employees so you can explain to them that panic caused by outbreak of fire in a retail establishment, as in a crowded hall, can kill and injure as many people as fire itself. If fire should break out in one section of the store, clerks should urge customers to remain calm and file outside quickly but in an orderly fashion.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 22

Read John 8: 12-17

The true light that enlightens every man was coming into the world. (John 1: 9, RSV.)

In the world in which we live there is much of darkness. We see peoples and nations groping in the dark. Some think they have seen the light; but they are following an illusion-some false light which guides no more, some light which has burned out in the course of time.

But the light which people have seen in Christ never fades because its very source is God. There are, of course, moments in our lives when we doubt this. There was such a moment in the minds of the early disciples of Jesus. When He was crucified, dead, and buried, they thought that was the end of the one whom they called Master and Lord.

But to them, and to thousands of believing Christians throughout the years, in their moments of doubt, anxiety, and despair it has been proved repeatedly that Jesus the Christ rises victoriously over every evil force. The light which people have seen in Him will shine eternally.

PRAYER: O Thou who art the eternal light, shine in the darkness of our world and in the darkness of our souls. In Thy light may we see light and follow it to the end of our days. In our great Redeemer's name. Amen.

Jesus Christ-the light for the world yesterday, today, and forever.—Annie Zachariah (India)
