CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Universal brotherhood will be a theme dealt with at Christian Science services this Sunday. Peter's awakening to a higher sense of brotherhood highlights the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Spirit."

The account of Peter's meeting with the centurion called Cornelius will be read, including the following: "Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him" (Acts 10: 34, 35).

A correlative citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states in part: "God gives the lesser idea of Himself or a link to the greater, and in return, the higher always protects the lower. The rich in spirit help the poor in grand brotherhood, all having the same Principle, or Father; and blessed is that man who seeth his brother's need and supplieth it, seeking his own in another's good" (518: 13-19).

and daily newspapers of the state. Adams, circulation director of the Lexington newspapers, said he hoped succeeding presidents of the Kentucky Press Association would offer similar awards to KPA members who perform outstanding service for the organization.

Dr. Plummer is a native of Beaver Dam and a graduate of the University of Kentucky.

When he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1928, he was already an experienced newsman, having served for three years as a reporter for The Lexington Herald. He remained on The Herald staff until 1930, serving at various times as state editor, assistant news editor, assistant sports editor and city editor.

He was appointed a part-time instructor of journalism at the University in 1930 and received his Master of Arts degree from the University the following year. In 1940, he was awarded the Ph. D. degree by the University of Wisconsin.

In addition to serving The Lexington Herald, Dr. Plummer also held positions on the news staffs of The Louisville Herald-Post and the International News Service.

He was director of publicity at the University. He has done extensive free lance work for numerous publications. He is the author of several research articles on law of the press.

The University journalism school director is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity; Sigma Delta Chi journalism fraternity; Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity; the American Association of Teachers of Journalism, and the American Association of Teachers of Journalism and the American Association of University Professors.

He also has served as national vice president of the American Association of School and Departments of Journalism.

tucky Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools merit award for outstanding contributions to education in Kentucky. The Kentucky Association of Soil Conservation Districts merit award for outstanding contributions to conservation education, the Lincoln Key award for success in effecting integration at Morehead State College without fanfare or incident, and the Morehead Chamber of Commerce outstanding citizen award for contributions to his home community.

He organized and directed the Legislative Work Conference of the Southern Regional Education Board, composed of legislators from 16 Southern states. He represents Kentucky on the board's committee on educational television. As a part of the board's program, he developed a two-forestry curriculum for Kentucky institutions for higher learning. Under his direction, curriculum for Kentucky colleges may transfer after two years to North Carolina State College for advanced work in forestry.

Dr. Dunn is a consultant to the Western State Commission on Higher Education, and a member and chairman of the advisory committee of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission. He served as a member of the committee which developed the new program of study adopted by the Kentucky Board of Education for 12-grade schools in the state.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Kentucky Education Association, the Kentucky School Administrators Association and the board of managers of the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers. He has been a delegate to the Kentucky White House Conference on Youth.

He is a past president of the Kentucky Education Association, the First District Education Association and the Eastern Kentucky Education Association, being the only Kentucky educator who ever has served two district and two education associations as president.

His activities have not been confined to the field of education. He served in the Kentucky House of Representatives for four terms, and was its Speaker for one term. He also is a former editor of the Fulton Leader, a daily newspaper in Western Kentucky.

He is a former member of the governing board of the Stennett Settlement School in Leslie County and a former member of the Kentucky Legislative Research Commission. He is active in Boy Scout work. His assignments as a Scout leader have included a term as member of the executive committee of the Blue Grass Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He is a member of the Kiwanis Club, the Civil Conservation Commission, and the Kentucky Council on Religion and Education.

His jobs in education have included assignments as teacher, basketball coach and principal at Boaz and Murphysboro high schools and as principal at Wingo high school for a time, he was director of the Division of Teacher Education and Certification for the Kentucky State Department of Education. Some years ago, he served as a visiting professor of education at the University of Georgia.

After his graduation from Cuba high school in Graves County, Dunn attended Murray, Hardeman Junior College at Henderson, Tenn. He received Bachelor of Science and Master of Arts degrees from Murray State College and the Doctor of Education degree from the University of Kentucky. He has served three years as president of the Murray State College Alumni Association.

Dr. Doran now is in his sixth year as president of Morehead State College. During his administration, enrollment at Morehead has grown from 600 to 2,104 and faculty membership has increased from 66 to 110. The school is operating with state appropriations substantially larger than those available when he first assumed management of the institution.

The physical plant at Morehead, during Dr. Doran's presidency, has been improved by construction of a $725,000 all-purpose Student House, a 201-room dormitory, a 100-unit project for married students and a 5,000-seat fieldhouse.

He is married to the former Mignon Louise McClain of Sedalia. They met and married while students at Murray State College.

The KPA selection committee was composed of Fred B. Wachs, Lexington, the chairman; Douglas D. Cornette, Louisville; Charles E. Adams, Warsaw; and Bennett Roach, Shelbyville.

Ky. taxpayers share of Federal taxes $869,820,000

Kentucky taxpayers will be required to pay out approximately $869,820,000 in Federal taxes as their share of the cost of the Federal spending program of $79.8 billion proposed by President Eisenhower for the Federal fiscal year 1960-61, according to an estimate made by Harper Gatton, Louisville, Executive Vice President of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

This estimate was based on the State Chamber's calculations that Kentucky taxpayers bear 1.09 per cent of all Federal taxes.

The State Chamber pointed out that any change which Congress may make in this budget will reduce or increase the amount of Kentucky taxpayers will have to bear depending on whether Congress cuts or spends more.

Kentucky taxpayers' share of President's proposed budget ($869,820,000) is enough to operate the State of Kentucky for 6 2-3 years based on present annual general fund revenues for 1958-59 of $131,037,363.28, Gatton said, or based on tax total revenues of $340,560,249.88 would operate the Bluegrass State for 2½ years.

The State Chamber noted that the most heartening feature of the budget is the indicated surplus of $4.2 billion which is the first really substantial surplus since 1951. But detracting from this encouraging fiscal picture is the fact that the surplus is entirely dependent on revenue growth with no contribution from expenditure reduction.

Kentucky pays tribute to beauty

Frankfort, Feb. 3—One of the most colorful pageants in the southland is the Mountain Laurel Festival each spring at Pine Mountain State Park, Pineville.

This year's festival will be staged May 26-28. At this time, mountain laurel, rhododendron and college beauty queens, from whom the festival queen is selected, are most in evidence.

The festival opens with the arrival of the candidates for queen and the reigning queen from last year, Miss Alice Chumbler of Western State College, Bowling Green. The second day is occupied with the festival parade, coronation of a new queen and the queen's ball. A mountain laurel print dress is crowned and a ball is held for the lads and lassies.

Laurel Cove, a natural amphitheater within the park, is also the stage for the "Book of Job," a religious drama to be given June 24 for a summer run.

The park, just one mile from Pineville on U. S. 25-E, has modern vacation cabins for housekeeping and a lodge dining room. Adjacent to the 4,000 acre Kentucky Ridge Forest, the park offers fine picnicking and hiking facilities through unsurpassed mountain scenery. Pineville is only 15 miles from Cumberland Gap, Cudjo's Cave, Pinnacle Mountain a d Fern Lake.

The festival queen usually is crowned and kissed by Kentucky's governor, this homage to beauty being one of the most pleasant of his official duties.

By his act, Kentucky pays homage to the state's feminine beauty as the laurel, rhododendron and other mountain flowers hold a colorful court. To the queen in the soft sprin air

Later years depend on you

You can expect to live a longer life than your parents. Developments in science and medicine now give most persons the opportunity to reach "old" years but how happy your later years will be depends largely on you, says Mrs. Mary Browder, UK Extension specialist in family living.

The constant process of aging goes on in spite of world events or your own personal feelings. Old age can provide you with many basic satisfactions if you are willing to look ahead and plan for the future. Mrs. Browder points out that happiness at any age depends to a great extent on how problems are faced and solutions worked out.

Those persons who try to hold on to youth too tightly neglect preparation for the later years. They fail to send down roots that would develop into a satisfying old age, she points out. Rather than looking forward to old age as a time of relaxation, they face it with fear. The older years should be a fulfillment of the preparations made during childhood: adolescence, young adulthood and the middle years.

An adult needs some interests outside of job and family, she recommends. Otherwise, he or she may be left lonely and bored after retiring from work or after the family has grown up and left home. Interest such as hobbies or club work can be insurance against an empty old age. Developing a hobby that you find interesting and challenging is not a childish pastime, but a form of enjoyment that can continue the rest of your life.

The whole concept of age is changing according to Mrs Browder. Old age need not be a period of resignation and waiting. Rather, later years can give and happy years that result from living the fact that you will grow old and preparing for that time.

If you suffer from "mid-morning-after slump" and basically aletertless, you're probably one of the many Americans who is not eating a good breakfast every morning. Breakfast should provide us with one-third to one-fourth of our daily food needs.

served, for a claimant to have his claim refused by the State Livestock Fund, because his county did not appoint a dog warden and maintain a dog pound, as required by the law.

In such a case, the court held that the claimant is entitled to seek damages from the individual members of the fiscal court on the grounds that they "failed or neglected to perform a duty imposed on that body of which they are a member." The law also provides fines and imprisonment upon fiscal court members who fail to comply.
