A LITTLE YAPPIN'
By Nellie Crump

When the Sun Shines.

Saturday being such a pretty, sunny day (can't say it was warm) many stay-at-homes ventured out for the first time since Christmas. Now I saw this or would not believe it either. A group of small children came to play on this corner. Why they pick the most dangerous place in town is a mystery but they do it every day of their lives. With red cheeks and juicy noses, to and fro they ran and this little four-year-old girl was practically naked. She was barefoot, which is no alarming sight, but her only garment was a pair of blue jeans—entirely bare from the waist up! "Shiver my timbers," old folks always said in Jr.'s party.

—Yap—

Queen for Eight Days.

Christmas 1959 came and went and I was in the hospital not caring very much about it. It was just plain bad luck I thought getting a real case of flu and having to go out there on December 21, but those was the doctor's orders and I didn't try to argue, so at six o'clock I was tucked into a comfortable snow-white little bed surrounded by half a dozen uniformed nurses and aides. To say I got the whole works isn't half the story.

When I got adjusted and looked about I saw a bed in each corner of the room and a lady in each bed. But I didn't get to look long—there was a long needle coming right at me! Queer thing every few minutes there was something jabbed either in my arm or my behind. Softsided shoes pussyfooted all over the place the whole night through, more at the next morning and the pital. I'll tell the bug-eyed women in each corner of the room were still there. So was I. Soon breakfast was carried to us on trays and I lapped mine up like a hungry hound (the food, not the tr-y, silly) but, try as I did, I could not taste a bite—not one single thing.

After eating and resting a bit I got the whole works again, mind you. Then the doctor came and I'll declare I never suspected so many different kinds of pills could be invented and I must have gotten a sample of each kind.

I was given a bell to ring "just in case" but I never had a chance to ring it but once and that was for one of the other patients whose bell had taken sudden leave for a distination unknown. I had a waste basket too, or was supposed to have, but it did a daily disappearing act fit to make the Houdini troupe blush with shame.

I could see traffic on the Moorefield road and when a familiar bread truck passed I said to myself, "This is not too bad," then there came that needle!

For several days I was content to be waited on, hand and foot, and was more like a guest than a patient with those soft-soles and the pills easing up so often I had no use for any bell, but for the life of me I couldn't keep from jumping. After a little of this I took the middle of the road, lying on my back so as to see both sides and not miss anything. I began to like being waited on like a queen.

My only worry was not knowing the whereabouts of my little Bessie and it was Christmas, but after she was given home and board by Mrs. George Moreland, one of our good Methodist women, I knew she had the best of care and I must no longer worry. Santa would find her.

I could not pick out one nurse or aide better than another. Oh now, of course there was Carson. We all know she is simply "out of this world." Real efficiency and heartfelt sympathy registered on each face as capable hands gently ministered to the suffering. I saw nothing omitted, for instance I heard a nurse's gentle voice say to an aide, "Get a file and clean her finger nails," (Goodness no, not my nails, I banged mine to the quick years ago picking up the ABC's at The Mercury office). But such small details are not neglected at our Nicholas County hospital. I'll tell the bug-eyed women in each corner of the world.

Being permitted to walk up and down the corridor a few times, I went sight-seeing in the kitchen where Mrs. Wade and another lady were busily engaged in starting dinner for the "gang." I left in a jiffy when I saw the huge stacks of breakfast dishes to be washed. I found all food delicious when I finally got around to tasting it.

Now it isn't too bad being in a hospital if one isn't too sick. Why the word "hospital" should scare the living daylights out of a person I don't know. It's the finest place in the world to be if you are too sick to care for yourself and have no one to do it for you, and I was. Then Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, besides several more days, but in its own way I enjoyed all the cards, calls, visits, prayers and flowers one has when he has the flu, perhaps nigh unto pneumonia.

A group of singers sang carols out in the corridor Christmas Eve night which were lovely. Thanks to all.

Came the morning when I knew I had no temperature (not too dumb) so I said to the doctor, "When can I go home" and he said "tomorrow" so I began packing right away and, Mrs. Moss, an accommodating nurse, gave me a ride home on December 29. Some neighbors, soup and Christmas cake came a-calling and I've never been so thankful (or so lonesome) as I was New Years Day, and am still as rocky as a boat in a windstorm.

Yaps—all . . .
