Magazine salesman is deported

A magazine salesman, Donald Yakemchuk, of LeFroy, Ontario, Canada, who was arrested early July 14 at a Lexington hotel and placed in the local jail on a charge of uttering a forgery, has been turned over to U.S. Immigration authorities for deportation. In addition he was fined $250.

Yakemchuk attempted to pass a check for $40 at the First National Bank. Noting the amount, Henry A. Palmer, cashier, called the woman whose name was signed to the check and she told him the check had been made out for $4 as payment for magazine subscriptions. Yakemchuk left the bank while Palmer was talking on the telephone.

Police Chief Eugene Purvis was notified and three other members of the magazine subscription crew were questioned. They gave officers Yakemchuk's Lexington address.

record of the Conference shows that this is and has been a loyal and supporting congregation throughout its history. While he feels that the job to be done presently is beyond the means of his congregation, with the assistance of the citizens of Nicholas County and of the State Conference, the new building is reconditioned, the congregation is able to maintain it.

The congregation is in a fund-raising drive to raise $1,000 which will be matched by the State - Conference for building renovation purposes. The pastor estimates that two-thirds of this amount has already been donated or pledged to date and that with the growing interest and concern, the goal may be reached by August 14. He wishes to thank every individual and organization who has or may contribute in any way or pledge to do so.

Nicholas Countians invited to enter beautification program for Kentucky

Governor Bert Combs expressed hope this week that Nicholas countians would participate in a recently announced and much needed clean-up beautification program for Kentucky.

He invited Nicholas countians to enter the contest to name a slogan for this program.

"The prize for the winning slogan," said Combs, "will be an expense paid four day vacation for two at any Kentucky state park."

Robert Montgomery, Versailles, Assistant to the Commissioner of Conservation, has been designated by the Governor as director to co-ordinate the efforts of cooperating citizens groups and state agencies.

Montgomery suggested a slogan along the lines of "Keep Kentucky Beautiful" or "Operation Clean-up". The contest ends August 4. All entries must be postmarked before August 5

The Governor said, "many areas of Kentucky have been allowed to become run-down, shabby, and litter strewn."

"Kentuckians are naturally proud of their state," said Combs, "and I have faith that they will join together in this intensive effort to make our state more attractive to tourists and industry."

Combs said, "I hope this effort will inspire citizens to the need for a more beautiful Kentucky through cleaner highway rights of way, more attractive homes and yards and elimination of accumulations of trash and junk.

Rules For The Contest are:

1. No more than one entry per person

2. In case there is more than one entry of the winning slogan, the one bearing the earliest post-mark will be the winner

3. All slogans become the property of the Commonwealth of Kentucky

4. There will be no acknowledgements

UK SETBACK SEEN UNLESS CONSTITUTION IS REVISED

Kentucky has more stringent limitations on salaries than any other state, President Frank G. Dickey said at a recent University of Kentucky summer school convocation.

"If the Constitution is not revised and if the mandate of the Court of Appeals limiting officers to the present Constitutional levels goes into effect this coming January, the University of Kentucky will be set back a half century," he declared.

President Dickey said it is impossible to conceive of trying to operate a great state university in competition with business, industry, professions, and other universities if the school is limited severely in the compensation which can be given to professors.

on Highway 80, the Breaks was created by an act of Congress in 1954 and is supervised by a committee appointed from Kentucky and Virginia.

The beautiful park encompasses a giant gorge astride the Kentucky-Virginia border where the Russell Fork River, on its winding, tortuous way westward, has cut through the rolling Cumberland Mountains. One of the most awe-inspiring formations in the Cumberland chain is the Towers, a tremendous, tree-studded, sandstone plateau which towers 1600 feet above the valley floor. 70 day dove season in state Frankfort, Ky—Rapidly increasing dove populations in the eastern section of the United States, and especially in Kentucky, have resulted in a longer shooting season and an increased bag limit for being granted by the U. S Fish and Wildlife Service and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Kentucky's season this year, to be split, will open on September 1 and continue through October 31 and then will reopen on December 1 and continue through December 9, with a daily bag limit of 12 two more than last year) and a possession limit of 24 (four more than last year). Miner Clark, commissioner of the Department, announced today. Last year the open season continued for 60 one-half days while this year an additional five-days have been tacked on.
