Sales tax permits delivered

The Revenue Department began distributing sales tax permits in Nicholas County last week. Nicholas County was one of 95 in which delivery of permits by revenue field men was begun.
Revenue Commissioner William E. Scent said this initial delivery would be about 17,000 permits. Sales tax permits for retailers in rural counties were the first to be processed by the Revenue Department.
Each permit is of a permanent type. The Revenue Department has encased the permit card in a plastic lamination. Scent said this would prevent cards, which must be displayed in a prominent spot, from becoming torn, soiled or ragged. Permits to retailers in counties containing first, second or third class cities will be delivered through the mail.

Notify ASC office if acreage allotment is sold

The county ASC office should be notified whenever farm land which involves an acreage allotment is bought or sold, Alma Atkinson, Office Manager, said today.
There are certain regulations concerning the combination and division of farms which must be carried out whenever land with acreage allotments changes hands. Notification of the county office will enable the necessary changes to be made on office records.
In many cases, Miss Atkinson said, it is even better if the ASC office can be consulted before the farm real estate deal is closed. This may prevent later misunderstandings as to how allotments may be affected

Tax relief given retailers

The Revenue Department gave relief this week to Nicholas County retailers who have elected to report their sales tax collections by the "cash collection method" and who have a large amount of "exsigntax sales on account" when the sales tax goes into effect July 1.
Revenue Commissioner William E. Scent said his department has worked out an accounting aid for those merchants who make credit sales on a "crop to crop" basis, such as sales to tobacco farmers of exempt items of feed, seed and fertilizer on which payment is made once a year, upon sale of the crop.
Scent said the merchant would receive a credit on his pre-July accounts when he files his report in either December or January—the month he makes the adjustment depending on the month he makes the largest number of collections.
Scent said the merchant can do this only in the following manner.
"Total your accounts receivable as of the close of business on June 30, 1960."
"From this figure, subtract your accounts receivable as of the close of business on December 31, 1960 or January 31, 1961."
"Take the resulting figure as a deduction in computing tax able receipts on either your December, 1960 or your January, 1961 return."
Scent gave the following example

A grocer sells mostly on credit, including feed, seed and fertilizer, and collects from customers when they sell their tobacco crops. The amount owed to the grocer is greater on June 30, 1960 than on December 31, 1960 because customers settle up in November and December.
On June 30, 1960 the total amount of accounts receivable owed to the grocer was $6,000
On December 31, 1960 the total amount owed (accounts receivable) to the grocer was $2,000
On his December return, which he would file by January 20, 1961, the grocer would claim $6,000 less $2,000 or $4,000 as a deduction.
He said it is necessary for the taxpayer who desires to make this adjustment to get the total of all accounts receivable outstanding on June 30, 1960 and again on either December 30, 1960 or January 31, 1961 depending on which month's return he is to make the adjustment.
This adjustment can be
