Democratic nomination as U.S. Senator, told 400 representatives of all congressional districts and most of the 120 counties meeting in Louisville that he accepted the challenge of Kentucky's Republican organization to fight the campaign on the Eisenhower-Nixon record.

Thus the Former Governor projected the issues beyond the primary election May 24 into the campaigning for November. It was an appeal for party unity and a preview of the national presidential contest.

Keen Johnson recalled that Senator John Sherman Cooper, Republican candidate for the Senate in the fall election, promised to run on the administration record.

"In that endorsement," Johnson said, "he gave approval to government by veto—government by stagnation. His endorsement means approval of

"1. Vetoes of legislation that would have set up a plan to search program in East Kentucky, relieved depressed conditions in that region, extended flood control, stopped pollution of water supply, made streams navigable to stimulate prosperity.

"2. Tight money policies under which interests rates have skyrocketed, squeezing small business, making it tougher for farmers to finance their operations, increasing costs of carrying the national debt by three billion dollars a year more than under the last Democratic administration.

Johnson said he was enthusiastic organization that in endorsing Nixon the the Republican candidate for President. Senator Cooper had to endorse the Republican farm program "which has cost six times as much money as programs under Democratic administrations and done less for farmers."

Johnson said he was confident that Kentuckians are resolved "to correct the mistake made four years ago when the state elected two Republican United States Senators."

Endorsing Johnson's candidacy were Governor Bert Combs, Lieutenant Governor Wilson Wyatt, and Robert Humphreys, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee and former U. S. Senator by Governor A. B. Chandler's appointment upon the death of Alben Barkley.

The theme struck by all of these was that a Democrat must be elected Senator from Kentucky to stop what they called the Republican "government by veto."

"Vetoes by a Republican President have hurt Kentucky," said Governor Combs. "They have hurt the nation. There is need to strengthen the Democratic majority to overcome the effect of them.

"We are doing in Kentucky what the people always wanted us to do. We're going to keep on doing it. We need Keen Johnson in the Senate to help us."

Two former Governors sat with Johnson, signifying their endorsement of his candidacy. They were Earle Clements, who is also a former U. S. Senator, and Lawrence Wetherby.

Preceding the luncheon, district meetings for organization of the campaign were addressed by Smith Broadbent, Jr., state chairman of Johnson's campaign, and the candidate himself.

RICH USSERY, outstanding youth Evangelist, will hold a meeting at the Assembly of God Church beginning May 8 at 7:30 p.m. each evening for two weeks, according to the Rev. Samuel Phillips, pastor of the church.

Evangelist Ussery began his ministry at the age of 13. He was Youth Director of a Kansas City, Kansas, church for four years and has held meetings in almost every state, just returning from an Island tour of which he will show films at this meeting.

The Upper Room

During "Family Week' a mother and father lost the only happiness they possessed—their daughter, seventeen years old. The parents did not live harmoniously, and in the home there was no peace or security or love. The daughter took her own life.

What a difference it would have made if the parents had dedicated themselves to Christ and lived harmoniously! What a difference if this daughter had been encouraged in the home to love God and had experienced the many benefits of daily family worship!

As in that home, in many other homes parents are guilty of the moral, intellectual, and spiritual defeat of their sons and daughters. Great is the responsibility of parents and of supreme importance their example to their children. A home where God is revered and daily worshiped does not have room for serious conflicts and deep-rooted misunderstandings.

Wednesday marked 25th anniversary of Rural Electric co-operatives

Wednesday, May 11 was a day of particular significance to consumer members of the Fleming-Mason Rural Electric Cooperative, according to W. O. Pemt, co-op manager.

The day marked the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the rural electric co-operatives in Kentucky as well as in the nation.

Harrison County Co-op embraces the counties of Harrison, Pendleton, Bourbon, Nicholas, Scott, Robertson, and Grant. It includes 8,400 consumers on 1,525 miles of line.

Meetings and programs in the state and across the nation commemorated the founding of the first rural electric co-op in Georgia in 1935 and the rapid expansion of the co-op system since that time. The first co-op energized in Kentucky was Henderson-Union in 1937.

Twenty-five years ago rural America was a "dark land" lighted at night by kerosene lanterns. Today 97 per cent of the farms in Kentucky enjoy the benefits of electricity.

Fleming-Mason RECC

Providing electricity to those still without it, lowering the cost, improving the service and heavying up electrical service to supply demand that is doubling every seven years, all at rates as fast as the national average, ranks high on the agenda of America's rural electric systems.

Rural electrification in Fleming, Mason, Lewis, and parts of Bracken, Robertson, Nicholas Bath and Rowan Counties has been accomplished by Fleming-Mason Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation which serves 8750 members. The cooperative has 2100 miles of line.

Fleming-Mason R.E.C.C. was incorporated January 18, 1937. The present Manager is C. J. Ross. D. D. Porter, of Flemingburg, is the Coop's president. Other members of the Board of Directors are: Albert Dickerson, Route 2, Sharpsburg; Mrs. Lutie Whaley, Route 1, Flemingsburg; H. T. Moyer, Dover, Route 1; Ed M. Bryant, Tollesboro; and R. W. Roberson, Maysilck.

Reminders for tobacco growers

Farmers in Nicholas County who are considering leaving strips of idle or fallow land in an alternate row arrangement with tobacco rows were reminded by H. S. Vice, chairman of the County ASC Committee, that the strips of idle or fallow land must be as wide as, or wider, than four average rows of tobacco to be deducted from the tobacco acreage.

A "normal row" is described by Mr Vice, as being at least 36 inches wide or the actual distance between the rows of tobacco on the farm whichever is wider. Mr. Vice said that anyone planning to leave idle or fallow strips of ground in the tobacco fields should contact the ASC office before setting tobacco.

Watts urges report covering resurvey of Kentucky River be promptly submitted

Congressman John C. Watts, of Kentucky's 6th Congressional District Representative, today urged the Chief of the Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army, to release report covering the resurvey of the Kentucky River.

Watts said that, "while 'unofficially' the survey had been completed since sometime during the summer of 1958, 'officially' has been prevented. The Congressman stated that "future programming and budgeting for the project by the Kentucky River communities had been deferred and retarded for some five or six years, pending completion of the survey. The time has come," emphasized the Representative, "regardless of what the recommendations and conclusions of the report may be, for the matter to be officially submitted.

"Certainly," the Congressman said, "two years is ample time for 'perfecting' amendments to be totally digested. These communities have a right to be informed as to the results of the survey so that they may properly contemplate future planning and develop-ment. The excessive delay in completion of the formal report appears to be inexcusable," the Congressman stated, "and has been, insofar as developments of the area is concerned, just as effective as any 'whitewash' could be."

Representative Watts said he had requested the Chief of Engineers to promptly fix a deadline by which time all work, reports, discussions, recommendations, etc., incident to the official completion of the survey would be had, and that official announcement thereof be immediately made.
