an official rigid "tolerance" test every six months, and all market firms are required to keep complete records of all livestock transactions in their business.

In addition to the posting of auction markets, approximately 100 Kentucky livestock dealers and buyers have been registered, Marshall said. The amended P&S Act requires livestock dealers, packer buyers, and market agencies operating in interstate commerce to register with USDA. These dealers and market agencies also are required to furnish bond based on their volume of business.

NOTICE

I don't mind paying sales tax!

Pay on bills same as cigaretts and gas.

There will be between 20,000 and 30,000 stores go out of business in Kentucky next 10 months. I think we should form some kind of club and get 100,000 people to go to Frankfort and see if we couldn't get this tax on wholesale bills where they keep their records not on retail.

U.S. 68 wreck injures three

An automobile accident about 1½ miles north on U.S. Highway 68, near Charles Law's, involved a car occupied by three local young people and an Ohio car. A third car, operated by an unknown woman driver is reported to have precipitated the accident.

Injured in the Ohio car was Miss Nancy Ross, of Lexington, who was removed to a Lexington hospital. She suffered a broken left arm, lacerations and abrasions of the left eye lid. Two male companions were reported treated by Carlisle Nurse College. Also a passenger was her sister.

Miss Ross is reported to have stated that the accident was not the fault of J. Bassett Barton, Carlisle, driver of the northbound vehicle which skidded into the southbound Ohio car. The car, owner's operator did not stop, forced the Barton car into the ditch, causing it to skid into the path of the other car. Skid marks made by the Barton car were estimated by Deputy Sheriff William Dollins to be approximately 165 feet.

Two passengers with Barton were Charles Skeen, who suffered cracked ribs and a broken bone in his hand and Miss Carol Caswell, suffered a separated pelvis.

Storm ruins 4 mercury vapor street lights

A wind and rain storm struck Carlisle about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday causing considerable trouble for employees of the Kentucky Utilities Company.

A tree limb blown down on Locust street near the residence of Innes Ockerman put a power line out of commission blacking-out about 100 homes in that area for quite sometime. Two 2400 volt circuits near the home of John Clark on Dorsey avenue, shorted and knocked-out the city's street lighting system for over an hour. Four mercury vapor lamps were also burned out by the storm.

Street lights at Sharpsburg were restored about 1:30 a.m. Wednesday it was reported.
