Meat hogs bring $6.50 per hundred; dealers paying 20 cents for rabbits

Thursday, November 21, 1940

David W. Booth, 73, widely known farmer and former County official died suddenly at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at his home on the White Chimney road following a heart attack.

Approximately 250 farmers from all sections of the County attended a mass meeting at the court house Tuesday night at which time the provisions of the referendum to be conducted Saturday were explained.

Artie Lee Gray, clerk in the local ACP office, will probably be the first man sent from Nicholas County in the selective service call. Gray was one of five Nicholas County registrants who have volunteered for immediate service.

City Assessor Perry McClanahan has completed the assessment of the city of Carlisle for 1941 taxes, which shows the total valuation of property for the year to be $1,173,161. This is a decrease of $4,804 form last year.

Taking advantage of the cold weather last week farmers slaughtered hogs. Meat hogs are quoted at approximately $6.50 per hundred weight.

Letters to the Editor

To the Voters of
Nicholas County

Being impossible to thank each of you individually, I am taking this means of evidencing my most gracious appreciation of your support of my candidacy for re-election to the Congress of the United States as Representative of the great Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky.

The majority that I received —one of the greatest that I have ever gotten—was most heart-warming and gratifying. This stamp of approval of the services that I have rendered throughout my 10 years as your representative was most pleasing.

As has been my policy and my standard of operation, I shall continue to do that which I feel is in the best interests of our folks and our country. I shall continue to stand ready to lend every proper assistance commensurate with the responsibilities of this great office to personal problems of each individual. I shall always be glad to have you contact me on any matter involving the Federal Government that you are particularly interested.

Again in grateful appreciation of your support, I am,

Sincerely,
John C. Watts

A Time for Gladness.

When you get around to reading this, Thanksgiving Day 19-60 will have passed. For some the year has brought sadness and heartache; for others, it has been a time of gladness; for all there have been blessings untold. So may every heart beat with love and sincere thanks to Almighty God for all His goodness—"Praise Ye the Lord."

Galyon is R.E.S. Patient.

Had a phone call from "Cotton" Galyon Sunday night telling me that he is now home from the hospital where he had been an R.E.S. patient for a week. According to his version that means Rest, Eat, Sleep. Really he suffered a partially collapsed lung and orders are for him to stay mighty close to his bed for several more days and then "take it easy" for sometime yet. "It wasn't anything more than a 'big blowout,'" he declared.

When Baby is Last.

I know a couple living near Owingsville and they have been blessed with a darling baby David, about three years of age. I judge. A letter to me last week told of the frightful experience the family had recently when the baby wandered from home while the mother was busy with household duties. The older children had gone to school and the father to his work in town, leaving the mother. Mrs. Ross Williamson, called the child repeatedly and he did not answer she ran to a nearby small pond. There she found small tracks. Frantically alarming the neighbors and her husband in Owingsville, more and more friends joined in the search. When the father arrived with friends from town he plunged into the shallow water which revealed nothing. Then someone thought of the big pond farther from the house. Baby tracks were found there too. It meant if little David had fallen into that water he would not be found alive. Word was spreading like wild fire. As one group searched and called near an old storeroom, something in the weeds moved and the child's little dog stuck his head up. At his side lay the exhausted baby, too tired, cold, weak and hungry to be heard, even if he had tried to answer the call of loved ones. He had wandered beyond his strength. Lost. he sank down beside his pup to rest. It was of now two o'clock in the afternoon. Had it not been for the little dog this would have had a different ending.

My Heart Swells with Pride.

You do not know this young man. Neither do I for that matter, but I am mighty proud of him for he is my cousin's grandson and he lives in St. Joseph, Mo. My cousin is the former Bessie Crump who spent her girlhood around Carlisle. I have received word before of this young man's ability as a child singer, choir director and soloist. Now comes a newspaper clipping of Byron Myers Jr., young chorus director, pictured with the president of the Pony Expressman, receiving the trophy they recently won at Omaha, Neb. Their chorus won top honors in the district composed of seven states and will compete for international honors at Philadelphia. It is the youngest chorus to win such championship, topping other singing groups in three or five categories—balance and blend harmony accuracy and voice expression. See why I am proud?

You Leggo My Stuff.

If you live in the general direction of Concord and were dered what on earth was going on in this end of town Saturday morning here is the explanation—my neighbor was moving. All was going well until 11-months-old Ronnie saw his own personal property—his to be bed—being tossed high on the truckload of furniture He had never moved bag and bage before and was so displeased at what he saw he just had to do something about it —and quick' His only weapon was two little heels and a pair of baby lungs Taking a deep breath of morning air he gave a prize-winning exhibition of both plain and fancy screaming that alarmed the entire community The only casualty was a baby's wounded pride

The Key To Success in Milk

There's a wide margin between the number of high producing cows and the number of lower-producing cows needed to bring in a good "labor income" each year.

For instance It takes about 18 cows producing 13 thousand pounds of milk each annually to produce a "labor income" of $3,000 But it takes 323 cows producing 5 thousand pounds of milk a year to make the same amount of annual labor income.

This is of considerable interest to Kentucky dairymen, because Kentucky average production is around 5,000 pounds per cow. Milking this kind of cows means the average dairyman will not make much above expenses.

But, it would take only 31 cows producing 9,000 pounds of milk annually to get this $3,000 labor income. This 9,000 pounds is the average production of some 500 Dairy Herd Improvement Association herds in this state which have 17,000 cows.

The Caldest Job on the Farm?

There may be colder jobs than milking a cow on a frosty morning, but I nominate hog killing as the coldest job on the farm. Especially if you have to kill a number of hogs. A temperature of 36 to 38 degrees is cold enough and that is why most hog killing is done in cold weather.

It's time now to get the meat in order and to come to see or telephone the Extension office for a copy of our free book let "How to Kill, Cutting and Curing the Meat." You'll get 30 pages of pictures and suggestions that'll make the whole job easier.

Mulching Strawberries.

Mulching pays in most years Get straw or other material ready now and put it on the plants in late December Good clean wheat straw is the best material to use. Provide one and one-half tons per acre

Winter Protection For Roses and Chrysanthemums

The large and rugged climbing roses need little if any winter protection in Kentucky All other roses should get protection in early December About the best protection is a mound of dirt, eight or ten inches deep around each plant. The soil needed should not be taken up from between the bushes as that exposes the rose roots to the freezing weather A better method is to bring in soil from another location and return it next spring.

And now about hardy chrysanthemums. During December they should be cut back to six inches in height and be mulched with either hay or straw. A covering of burlap makes a satisfactory winter protection for hardy chrysanthemums. Forest leaves are not satisfactory as they tend to pack down and smother the plants.

Little Chats on Public Notice

Copyright by James E. Pollard

'Public Notice'

From ancient times the principle of giving notice has been practiced by civilized people everywhere. In Roman times notices were posted in the circus. At another time the town crier served this purpose.

For centuries civilized people have recognized the right of the community and of the individual to be put on notice. What is more important, they have practiced this principle consistently. It is possible to say that the true democracies could not neglect this principle and still preserve their way of life.

What is at stake in public notice is the simple right of the public to know, to be informed beforehand of some proposed action which affects someone's rights. Those may be the rights of the community itself or of some portion of it of a group or groups within the community, or of property owners either as voters, as taxpayers, or just plain individuals.

Today in the English-speaking countries, for example, the usually provides for the publication of such notices in newspapers of paid general circulation. Taking all 50 states there are thousands of such laws. The newspaper is specified because it has established following, gives wide coverage is read thoroughly, is both visible and tangible, and is economical. The public notice is an important part of the American way of life.

Farm Bureau in Action

The Story We Should Tell

Farm-City Week is one of the most successful and significant voluntary movements that has come along in many years In just a matter of six short years, the idea of building better relations between farm and city people has caught on to the extent that Farm-City Week activities are reaching into virtually every community in the country.

We in agriculture should be thankful that Kiwanis International had the foresight to start the Farm-City Week movement It has come along at a time when farmers need more than ever before to get their story to the non-farm public.

While Farm-City Week is a two-way street, and most farm people know they will have to be more interested in and knowledgeable about nonfarm points and problems, it does give us a tremendous opportunity to tell the story of American agriculture to many people who just simply don't have access to the facts

How many people have stopped to think that farmers are the largest group of capital investors in Kentucky? How many know that farmers make up the largest group of Kentuckians who depend upon the private competitive system for their living . the largest group who depend on profits from investments to give them a net return for their economic well-being.

This is a little different picture from that told in the news media of communication these days Most people hear only about agriculture's problems —not its successes Most people hear and read about farm subsidies—not about the efficiency that makes food the best buy ever in history

Farm-City Week i sa time for Farm-City Week is a time for tell. Let's not be too bashful to tell the story of the biggest success story that any American industry has to tell Sure, we have our problems. but let's not concentrate on them in public We can work them out—if the politicians will let us

And remember. Farm-City activities don't happen just one week each year The building of better understanding between farm and city people has become a year-around job. We can't don't take advantage of it, it will be our own fault

All That Glitters Isn't Food In Our Modern Supermarkets

The other day as a certain city, a lady shopper in a supermarket was told by the cheerful girl The amount is $12.91 " This l:d to an outcry of rage from the housewife who said, among other things that she thought these farmers are getting rich

Put a farmer in line just behind the lady took a mental note of what her "food basket" actually contained Here is the list 6 bottles of soft drinks, 3 packs of nylon stockings, 1 long playing record, 56 pounds of water softener, 1 box of corn flakes, a set of six salad bowls 1 egg beater, and 1 quart of milk

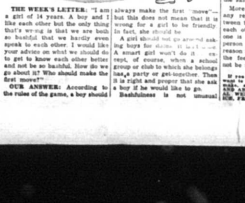
What To Do About Being Bashful



THE WEEK'S LETTER. "I am a girl of 16 years. A boy and I like each other but the only thing that's wrong is that we are both so bashful that we hardly even speak to each other. I would like your advice on what we should do to get to know each other better and not be so bashful. How do we go about it? Who should make the first move?"

OUR ANSWER: According to the rules of the game, a boy should always make the first "move"—but this does not mean that it is wrong for a girl to be friendly In fact, she should be

A girl should not go around asking boys for dates. It is not the A smart girl won't do it except, of course, when a school group or club to which she belongs has a party or get-together. Then it is right and proper that she ask a boy if he would like to go.

Bashfulness is not unusual among those in their early teens. It is generally the rule rather than the exception. It can be overcome by adopting a friendly attitude Be friendly, assume that the rest of the world is too. This does not necessarily mean that we should go around saying "hello" to every stranger we meet, but instead that we have a smile and a friendly word for those with whom we come in contact with every day—in the neighborhood, or at school. Adopt a friendly attitude, a friendly outlook on life, and the world will meet you in the same fashion.

More to the point, we cannot see any reason for bashfulness between two young people who like each other Usually when someone is "bashful" about letting a person know they like them the reason for bashfulness is fear that the feeling of friendliness may not be returned.

If you have a teenage problem you would like to discuss, write to Eleanor Sue Marie, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. ADDRESS ELEANOR SUE MARIE, 521 FRANKLIN ST.
