Farm Facts

By William C. Jenkins
AGRICULTURE IN THE U. S. IS BOARDS AND PARS. It's a great opportunity for Kentucky's farm families, not only the breadwinners of the farm, but down the highway in the schools, factories and recreational areas of the state. It is not mean that farm management, technical know-how, and governmental programs are not important to those who earn their living from the farm—they are more important today than ever before. But there are simply not enough good farms of sufficient size in Kentucky to provide the standard of living that the American farmer has been taking into consideration in the past. The solution is to get out of the farm business, to get out of the farm business, to get out of the farm business, to get out of the farm business.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Blount of Miranda, spent awhile one Saturday afternoon recently with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Harwick. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hopkins spent a few hours Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Clark and Danny. Mr. and Mrs. Clave Hamilton of Mounds, spent Monday night with Mr. Allen Brodick.
