CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

An effective approach to world problems of disunity and inharmony may be found in the Lesson-Sermon on "Mind" which will be read at Christian Science churches Sunday.

This hopeful promise from II Corinthians will be among the Bible citations read (13: 11): "Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following passage will be cited (276: 4-9): "When the divine precepts are understood, they unfold the foundation of fellowship, in which one mind is not at war with another, but all have one Spirit, God, one intelligent source, in accordance with the Scriptural command: 'Let this Mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.'"

Mrs. Morse To Speak At Christian Church

Mrs. J. Russell Morse, missionary to North Burma, will be guest speaker at the worship hour Sunday morning, Feb. 19th, at the Carlisle Christian Church.

Mrs. Morse is wife and mother of the well known Morse missionary family She and her husband went to Tibet in 1921 in company with Dr. Shelton and James Ogden and family. They have reaived a family of 3 sons and a daughter and continued faithfully to teach, work and heal in the foreign fields. The sons, with their wives, are missionaries. The youngest son, Laverne, has spoken in Carlisle twice. The eldest son, Eugene, is speaking in Lexington, Sunday and Dr. Morse is keynoting a week's missionary program in Cincinnati. Therefore this church was able to secure Mrs. Morse.

Aside from their missionary effort, no family has been more concerned to keep abreast of the times. Marooned in South China during the war years, they engaged in radio work and one hundred twenty-five American airmen owe their lives to their watchful efforts. The U. S. Gov. in Washington awarded them a plaque of recognition for their heroism.

Their understanding of Communism is first hand. Driven from China, they, with thousands of refugees, took refuge in the jungles of N. Burma and there carved out a place to live and to work. Dr. Morse's story of captive by the Communists six-teen months and tells a gripping story. Mrs. Morse will have a moving story to present to her audience Sunday.

Mr. Nash To Speak

Mr. Donald Nash, from Ky. Christian College, Grayson, Ky., will be the guest speaker at the Christian Church Sunday evening, Jan. 19th.

Mr. Nash is married and has three sons. He received his education at Ky. Christian College and at Butler University School of Religion. He has been Academic Dean at Ky. Christian College since 1960

He has written a religious textbook and several religious tracts and is also a contributor to the Christian Standard and Standard Foundation Literature.

Mr. Nash will be bringing to us with him a male quartet called the "Singing Messengers". They will be bringing us a special song message in song.

The public is invited to attend.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Read 1 Corinthians 4: 1-7

What have you that you did not receive? If then you received it, why do you boast as if it were not a gift? (I Corinthians 4: 7, RSV.)

Toscanini was rehearsing Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. He gave his musicians such a new insight into the music that when the rehearsal ended, they rose and applauded him. Desperately, Toscanini tried to arrest their elation, waving his arms wildly, crying to them to desist.

When there was a lull in the ovation, Toscanini's broken voice could be heard exclaiming —and there were tears in his eyes as he spoke: "It isn't me, men . . . it's Beethoven. Beethoven is . . . everything—Toscanini, nothing."

The great souls of this world are the humble. The rest of us, even the best of us, have only little pride and our not-so-little arrogance. Sometimes when I catch myself in the act of boasting, I think of the Pharisee and the publican. Modesty becomes us, for we have much to be

by Cawood Ledford

The Great Stone Face

I've seen the best. There is no question that Gerry Lucas is the finest basketball player in the United States—if not the greatest of all time, he certainly is tops in this time. I had the opportunity to study the 6' 8" pivotman and his Ohio State teammates as I broadcast the Buckeyes' game against Indiana over WHAS.

This young man must, at times, feel some emotion . . . but he never is reflected in his face or his actions. He displays a "great stone face" deadpan when he is introduced before the game, all through the game itself, and even as he strides off the floor after a win. I saw him following two victories in the NCAA Tournament last season. It was the same. When he is called for fouling he never complains . . . never registers disappointment or disbelief on that poker face. When things are going well, he appears emotionless too. Lucas is not swaggering, or over confident looking, he simply displays nothing. But he can and at the heart of the other club, and does. His scoring average doesn't begin to rank with other players that have dominated the game. Oscar Robertson, Wilt Chamberlain, Elgin Baylor and so on.

But Lucas doesn't appear interested in scoring. He's a great passer, and often ignores good shots himself, to feed a teammate closer in. Jerry has it all. He moves with a quickness and grace that belies his size. He has a delicate touch, especially on lay ins. His timing is near perfect. He jumps at just the right split-second to get maximum benefit from his leaps. He is aggressive, yet smooth on defense. In short, Jerry Lucas is great!

Jerry Lucas has a seldom known defeat on the basketball court. Born of Kentucky parents at Middletown, Ohio, Lucas' high school team lost only one game during his entire three-year playing career. That came in the final game of the Ohio State High School Basketball Tournament Jerry's senior year. So far, he has played in only four losing ball games in his lifetime.

Success for Jerry Lucas doesn't end with his basketball ability. He is an honor student at Ohio State majoring in accounting. He still insists he wants to make his way in the business world after he graduates a year from June, and isn't interested in playing professional ball. No doubt, checks with the figure printed on them will be dangled in front of the all-American then, and he may be more than Jerry can refuse.

As a sophomore he made every all-American team a year ago, led his Ohio State group to the national championship, and was the stand-out on an Olympic team of stars last summer that won a gold medal for Uncle Sam. He is sure to harvest all the honors again this season.

Lucas can live up to any words of praise you may wish to use. Off the court he has the same sober look. He seldom smiles or frowns. He is not shy, yet is a modest and likeable young man. Jerry Lucas is the "great stone face" that happens to be one of the greatest big men ever to play this game of basketball.

Moorefield Teenage Club Has Box Supper

Everyone expressed themselves as having a big time at the 4-H Club Box Supper Monday night, Feb. 6 at the Moorefield school.

Joe Harden, vice president, called the party to order. Bobby Perry, auctioned the boxes off and they collected for them, both doing a fine job. Wayne and Phil Weaver were in charge of the soft drinks.

modest about nothing to be puffed up about!

PRAYER: Be patient with us, our Father, as we come humbly into Thy presence. Dwell in our hearts, helping us to be like Thy Son in thought, attitude, and decision. In His name we make our prayer, Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

No garment is more becoming to a child of God than the cloak of humility—Cyril M. Jackson (Illinois)

Betty Wood, Judy Whitaker and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Whitaker were in charge of the reception.

We were glad to have Mrs. Harvey Wagoner, 4-H Council President, as a guest. Our club hates to see Mr. and Mrs. Luther Whitaker leave and wishes them the best of luck.

I would like to thank every one who took part in any way and made a success for our club.—Bonnie Whitaker, reporter.

Answers to state medical care program given

Frankfort—Commissioner of Economic Security Earl C. Powell today furnished some answers to questions arising from the State's two medical care programs for the needy and aged this week.

Powell said prospective patients and the vendors furnishing medical services—doctors, dentists, druggists and hospital personnel—have based most of their questions on who is eligible, what services will be paid for by the State, how to apply to eligibility, and how to identify those who have been certified to receive State aid.

"We have two completely new programs in operation," Powell said, "and it is understandable that many questions would result. However, we are pleased with the accomplishments of the first month, and we hope that when we clear up these questions through pamphlets, instruction sheets and other materials now being prepared, the programs will begin to operate more smoothly and be a credit to Kentucky."

Eligible persons, according to Powell, are divided into two categories. The first grouping includes needy people over 65 who are not receiving public assistance payments from the State. Single persons eligible in this category are those with an annual income of $1,000 or less and personal property amounting to $500 or less. Eligible married persons are those with an annual joint income of $1,500 or less and personal property not exceeding $750.

State aid in this category is limited to acute emergency and hospitalization.

Powell said applications and income requirements may make applications at local public assistance offices, Court House, Carlisle, or a friend may make the application if the recipient is unable. Powell pointed out that applications may be made up to 30 days after the person has received medical care.

The second category of eligible person's according to Powell, includes the needy aged, dependent children, blind, and totally and permanently disabled who are now receiving public assistance payments from the Kentucky Department of Economic Security.

"These people are automatically eligible," Powell said, "and do not have to make any application. However, they must have a doctor's prescription for drugs, and a physician's recommendation before entering a hospital. They may go to the doctor or dentist of their choice and ask for treatment when they have always done."

Powell emphasized however, the participation in the program by the vendors—doctors, dentists, druggists and hospitals is at their discretion, and he said the physician, dentist, or other vendor will decide according to his own policies whether to accept the case or not.

The type of treatment the State can pay for at this time is limited to acute, emergency and life-endangering conditions, including maternity care. These limitations are not intended to stop the vendor from accepting a case, Powell said. Here again, the doctors, dentists, and others will have to follow their own policies, but they will be paid only for the specified services.

The State will pay hospitals for three days of care per admission and physicians for two office or office visits a month per recipient. Dentists are paid on a fee schedule, with a maximum of $8 a month, or $24 a year per recipient. Pharmacists' services are limited only to the types of drugs that have been prescribed by the State Department of Health.

"Vendors can identify patients who are eligible to receive medical aid under these programs by calling the local public assistance office." Powell said. "We feel that in many cases the doctors and others will already be familiar with the patient, but in the case of an unfamiliar patient we do advise that they check with our local offices to make sure he is eligible."

"These are the basic elements of the program," he said. "It is not possible for us to provide all the free medical care needed by the indigent people of Kentucky at this time, but by providing as much as we can, we are making a great deal of progress. When we have had more experience with the programs we hope to be able to expand them—pay for more services for the recipients, and to pay more of the costs of the vendors."

Through new techniques in surgery, damaged heart valves can be repaired, inborn heart defects can be corrected and diseased arteries can be replaced, the Kentuck Heart Association reports.
