Mercury printer fractures wrist; produce Co. ships 4,000 chickens

Thursday, January 23, 1941

Mrs. A. T. Gardner, production chairman of the Nicholas County Red Cross chapter, requests all persons who are knitting or sewing for the Red Cross to turn in their materials beginning next week. All articles must be ready to leave Carlisle by January 31. Shipment will be made to national headquarters by February 1. A new quota of garments is expected by the end of the week.

Although January is usually one of the busiest months for issuing marriage licenses here, the pre-marital test law has practically put a stop to the issuance of licenses, County Clerk Sugg said. Only one license has been issued this month.

Miss Nellie Crump, printer at the Mercury office, suffered a fracture of the right arm near the wrist Sunday morning when she slipped and fell in the alley between Elm and Locust streets. Miss Crump was taken to the Johnson Memorial hospital where the arm was put in a cast by Dr. T. H. Brown, after which she was removed to her home.

DIED—Mrs. Margaretta Curtis Macklin, 67, died at her home near Blue Licks Sunday night. — Thomas Barton Vaughn, 74, died last Thursday at 6 o'clock at his home on Walnut street.

At Brother's Bedside.

Mrs. Sophia Jackson of Abner's Mill has been at the bedside of her brother, Cyrus Morris, who has been very ill for several weeks at his home on Morgan street.

Move Here from Mississippi.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Frederick, who have been living in Mississippi, have returned to Carlisle and have taken an apartment in the Lawrence property on the corner of Morgan and McCracken.

Buys High Street Home.

Mrs. W. P. "Miss Iva" Stone, who recently sold her farm on the Lower Jacksontown road, has purchased and moved to the old home of Rile George on High street. Mr. and Mrs. Simon Shumate have lived there ever since the place was bought and remodeled by Turner Donahue a few years ago. They have moved to the John Lawrence property on the corner of High and McCracken. The home bought by Mrs. Stone was known as the Wesley Shankland property as far back as I can recall. Many of the older people of Carlisle remember when Shankland Brothers (Ed and Wes) owned most of the land between High and Morgan from Dorsey avenue to McCracken street. They were married and lived in adjoining homes on High street. The neat little cottages were a thing of rare beauty in their setting of beautiful flowers which the wives raised and sold to the public. That was about the beginning of 1900 and really the first "greenhouse" I know of in Carlisle. Most of the Shankland land was in garden stuff and glass-covered plant beds, the men tending the vegetables and selling plants of all kinds. The brothers were always up before dawn, with their coulud lanterns, getting garden truck ready to take to the local groceries. No vegetables came to the truckload to Carlisle then. Shankland's "garden-fresh" rhubarb, lettuce, onions, radishes, peas, green beans—and thousands of big ripe tomatoes—were delivered to the stores in handcarts pushed or pulled by the men. Their rhubarb (everybody called it "pie-plant") was the nicest of any I ever saw, stalks fully a yard long. Shankland Brothers worked early and late and sold only the best.

No Milk for Supper.

Charlotte and Eddie Fryman were recent guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. "Bill" Fryman, keepers of the county infirmary near Carlisle. To these little town children all gadgets at home not working properly were referred to as "out of order." Being a couple of years older than her little brother, Charlotte was also two years wiser. Somehow, she knew that Grandfather and his cow were "expecting." When Eddie insisted on having a second glass of milk for supper his wise little sister thought an explanation was due and loudly whispered, "There isn't any more milk, it's out of order."

Boy, You Take It from Here.

To a few of my friends who may not have heard the farewell address of President Eisenhower to the Nation last Tuesday night. There was not one word of ill feeling or resentment in the 16-minute heart-to-heart talk by the oldest man ever to be President of the United States. In those 16 minutes the 70-year-old retiring President said more than most people would say in an hour. War had been averted, he said, and he was sorry he could not insure everlasting peace to the people he had served for eight years. "However," he continued, "I am willing to still do all in my power." At the close of the short talk he was prepared to hand over the Presidential job to his 43-year-old successor, John F. Kennedy, 35th President of the United States of America.

Meet John F. Kennedy and his young wife Jacqueline (Jackie for short).

After attending the inauguration—via TV and radio (I spent most of the day in Washington last Friday) and hearing his address, I believe John F. Kennedy is well qualified to hold down the job. (Religion and politics are a man's own personal business). As the late editor, James Allen, of Cynthiana once said of Representative Will McRohan of Carlisle, "He has guts and a backbone to hang them on."

New 4H Projects

Many of the 4-H project books have been revised and new ones have been written. Three new projects for the teenagers are: Career Exploration, You and Your Money, and Teen Time Grooming.

Career Exploration project offers an opportunity to learn about occupations that may interest the girl or boy and provide them with the satisfactions of life. It will also help one to learn about his aptitudes and interests.

You and Your Money project is to help boys and girls gain wisdom and soundness in their views about money matters. Parents will play an important roll in this project.

A pin up board for your room will also be for either boy or girl project. It will give them an opportunity to display their keepsakes—mapshots, banners, ribbons, programs, etc.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

THURSDAY, JANUARY 26

Read Colossians 3: 12-17

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. (Philippians 2: 5)

One sunny spring morning I was a guest in a rural home in Minnesota. While I was sitting in the living room reading a book my hostess came in. As we talked briefly, she went to the window and turned some flower pots. I asked her why she disturbed the lovely plants. She replied, "Plants grow toward the light, and if they are not turned occasionally, they do not grow straight."

After she left the room I pondered what she had said. Growing toward the light became a searching test for me. I thought of Jesus words. "I am the light of the world." Across the centuries I heard Him say again, "Learn of me," "Follow me."

The Christian life is not static but expansive. There are always deeper insights to gain and richer heights to scale. Even Paul confessed that he had not arrived, but still reached out for the goal. It is we who fix the limits of living blessings by our rejection.

PRAYER: Help us, dear Father, to look unto Jesus, our Saviour and Master, and learn of Him: learn to trust thee as He did, to obey as He obeyed, to love as He loved, to walk as He walked, and to serve with His compassion. In His name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

In the school of Christ we always have deeper insights to gain and richer heights to scale.

SPECIAL ELECTION

The State of Maine made history in September, 1957, when its voters decided to bring that state in line with the others as to the date of its general election. For decades Maine held its statewide elections earlier than any of the other states. This gave rise to the political saying, somewhat disproved in recent years, that "As Maine goes, so goes the nation."

Since 1956, therefore, Maine has no longer served as a sort of special political barometer or trend indicator, as of late it has amended its general elections to fall in most of the other states. Elections are to be held on "the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November."

The first major step in bringing about this change was a resolution adopted by the state legislature. But this, to be effective, had to be ratified by the voters. This in turn, was submitted at a special election.

Although this particular issue along with four others submitted at the same time, had wide news coverage in the press and other news media, it was carried also in the newspapers as legal advertising, or public notice. This was in compliance with a longstanding principle based on the public's right to know. For this purpose the law designates a newspaper in the principal medium specified by law in hundreds of public notice situations.

"WELL, BUMPUS ROOM IS RIGHT!"

How Do Boys 'Get A Date'?

"Marry, will you go to the movies with me?" — make conversation first, about the weather, whatever happens in-ka "news" about the school, town, or the nation. Don't overdo it, just break the ice, then ask for the date.

A boy should never be "afraid" to ask a girl for a date. Whether her answer is "yes" or "no", the girl considers it a compliment to have been asked. This is true, if she knows the boy. If he is a perfect stranger to her, then she thanks him "fresh" and believes, probably rightly so, that he only wants a date to score for a date.

So, we repeat, don't be afraid. Let the girl know you like her. She probably knows it already, but maybe now she doesn't know it. It's a pleasant experience to ask her. The will power to try it. But, if she says "no" it just won't be the end of the world. Knowing that there's probably a good reason for a "no" it's usually easier to accept a "no" or a date.

Now, if you have a genuine problem you would like to have answered, write it on a piece of paper and send it to the Carlisle Mercury, Box 98, Carlisle, Ky. There is a $5.00 prize, of course, in the way it usually is done. But just walk up to the girl and say,

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I read your column every week and think it's pretty good. But you've never talked about my problem. How do I get a date? I am eighteen and have never had one. I am quiet, average looking rather handsome or ugly, would rather read than play football or other sports. I am interested in girls—in one particular girl, although she doesn't know it—but I just don't know how to go about letting her know and I am afraid to ask her for a date. Even if I were able to ask her, I am afraid that she would say 'no' and that would be embarrassed. How do I get a date?"

OUR ANSWER: There is food for some very serious thought in your one and only letter. The solution to your problem is a simple one and not difficult to accomplish. But it is one very important step that must be taken before anything else can be done. The solution is to develop a sincere interest in other people. Now, we don't mean you should go around with a silly grin on your face and say to everyone you meet, "I'm interested in you." There is a lot more to it than that. You must walk up to the girl and say, "Hi, I'm Joe Doakes. What's your name?" Then you must learn to listen to what she says. Ask her questions about herself. Show her that you are interested in her as a person. Then, when you ask her for a date, she will not be surprised and will probably accept. Remember, you must be interested in her as a person, not as a girl to date. Then you will have no problem.

ANSWERS TO YOUR TAX QUESTIONS

BY WILLIAM E. SCENT

KENTUCKY'S COMMISSIONER OF REVENUE

Recently the Internal Revenue Service and the Department of Revenue jointly issued a table for estimating the amount of sales tax deductible on federal and state income tax forms. A few questions and answers on this subject follow:

Q What is the sales tax deductibility table?

A. The table is a chart estimating the amount of sales tax paid since June 30, 1960, by families of different sizes in various income brackets.

Q Who may use the table?

A Every Kentucky resident who itemizes deductions on a calendar year 1960 Individual Income Tax Return (Revenue Form 740) may use the table.

Q Does the table take into account the three per cent tax on a new car?

A. No. The table does not reflect any tax which residents of Kentucky may have paid on a new automobile, a used car not previously licensed in Kentucky, or gasoline purchased during the year.

Q Can these taxes be deducted?

A. Yes. They may be deducted separately in "Itemized Deductions" on page 2 of Revenue Form 740.

Q Can a taxpayer deduct more than allowed by the table if he has receipts showing a greater amount of sales tax?

A. Yes. You may deduct any amount of sales tax that you paid during 1960. However, you may be asked to produce records to support the deduction if it exceeds the amount shown in the table.

Q How can I get a table?

A. The table is available on request at Frankfort and all the district offices of the Department of Revenue. The table is found on Revenue Form 745. Use this number when requesting the form.
