A LITTLE YAPPIN'

Sure Cure for Sore Feet.

There comes a knock at the door and a "paper poke" was handed to me. The lady said, "Here is some home-made lye soap for your feet—it is the best medicine in the world for sore, aching feet." That last sentence is the one that awed us both.

The Early Bird.

Spring officially begins Monday and it won't be long until those little ladies with their tweedged swords will be around claiming kin with all of us. City Council has voted $100 to help fight against the mosquito menace.

The Bells of Memory Ring.

When I read about the last meeting of Billy Dorsey of Virginia, formerly of Carlisle, and a Pvt. Forrest Huddleson of Michigan, at a convention recently in San Francisco, all the bells of memory began ringing in my head. It just so happens that I knew Ada Huddleson, sister of Forrest, and a small sister (still another sister arrived later) quite a long time ago when we went to Carlisle school. It was no trouble for me to reach into a box for the picture of the class taken when C. D. Meadows was our teacher. All names are written on the back of the picture and upon it, oh, lonesome! Papa Huddleson was a medical doctor. One day Ada came to school with the news that her family was moving to Oklahoma (I think it was Okla.). I never heard of the Huddleson family after they left Carlisle until I read of it last week, altho close relatives still live here.

One can never tell ahead how a boy or girl is going to turn out! Forrest Huddleson is now Dr. Forrest Huddleston of veterinary medicine at the University of Michigan and has been honored by an award for his work in the field of brucellosis. And there's Billy Dorsey (Howard's son) head of the state laboratory and now living in Richmond, Va. Having so much in common, naturally the boys got together at the California convention, and most likely did a little bragging about their ancestors being from Carlisle, Ky. Just about chased 'em through all the states, but this is the story.

My Schoolmates—Where are They?

Have gazed long and lovingly at the picture mentioned above and recall each face by the help of the names written on the back of course. Many are others others I do not know about. It was the 1905-06 school year and the picture was taken on the present front yard steps by the late B. P. Young, long-time photographer of Carlisle. There was a board fence there then. Uncle Harry Day was janitor and "father" to every boy in school. He was to the school what Wishbone is now to 'Rawhide'. Finally, he moved his family to Louisville and died there years ago. He is to one side in the picture. On the other side is the old cistern hand pump. Some of the boys are wearing knee pants.

The teacher, Chas. D. Meadows, was only 25 years old and died il hearab' after leaving Carlisle.

Of the 23 students pictured, the known living are: Virginia Brambler, Minnie Kerns, Margaret Kerns, Edith Colliver, Ada Huddleson and Nellie Crump.

Dead are: Lizzie Lawless, Catherine Trumbo, Sue Dunn, Emma Durrum, Susie Day, Eugenia Peters, Miller Burrough, Maurice Burnaugh, Malcolm Donnell and Nathan Linville.

What of these: Mary Gilmore, Kittie Fitzgerald, Lovell Thompson, Jimmie Talbott, Willie Fulton, John Berry and Arthur Taylor?

Answer to Puzzle No. 646

SPRING COMES TO SUBURBIA

Washington Report

BY YOUR CONGRESSMAN
JOHN WATTS

"I Recommend To The Congress The Establishment Of A Permanent Peace Corps."

With these words, President Kennedy announced the formation of a "pool of trained American men and women sent overseas by the U.S. Government . . . to help foreign countries meet their urgent needs for skilled manpower." His statement, fulfilling a campaign promise, brought mixed reactions on both sides of the aisle here on Capitol Hill. Although some asserted their belief that our youthful Americans are too physically and emotionally flabby to withstand the rigors of a working existence in harsh, substandard countries, others greeted the President's message with applause and enthusiasm. Typical of the positive reactions was that of one person, himself a Republican, who said that at last something was being done to erase the conditions which nudged The Ugly American to the top of the best seller list and also to first-page prominence. The book, as you will remember, was blasted by former President Eisenhower as misleading and damning, and brought unfortunately honest nods of agreement from many people in and out of the administration and the selection of the Peace Corps may indeed presage the day when the Biblical prophecy is fulfilled, when men live as brothers and "nation shall not lift up sward against nation; neither shall men learn war any more."

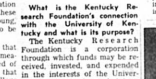
Today's Thought From The Past

"This generation has a rendezvous with destiny." F. D. Roosevelt.



How did Pippapass in Knott County get its name?

The little mountain settlement of Pippapass was named after Robert Browning's poem, "Pippa Passes." Pippa was a young girl who influenced good in those whom she passed in her daily walks. Miss Alice Lloyd, president and founder of Caney Creek Community Center, so named the settlement as a reminder that every individual influences the lives of others.

Do Teenagers Have REAL Problems?

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "First, I am not a teenager. I read your column, just as I read everything else in the paper. Throw this letter aside, or answer it if you wish. I just want to make an observation: apparently most of the letters you receive from teenagers concern problems dealing with dating, boy friends, girl friends, being liked or not being liked, etc. Don't teenagers ever have any REAL problems?"

OUR ANSWER: Certainly, teenagers have REAL problems. And if a grownup cannot remember how REAL were his or her own problems at the dating age, then it has been some time since this individual went through the difficult (often) and challenging (at times) business of growing up.

Teenagers have problems with their schoolwork. When they do, usually, they buckle down and try to do their best. Or, they turn to someone—an older person or a more gifted student, for assistance.

Teenagers have acne, inferiority complexes, nightmares, claustrophobia, measles, mumps and chickers pox. Some teenagers believe that no one loves them or cares what happens to them. Some teenagers are well-adjusted. They love life, they like people, they are looking to be future and they intend to carve a place for themselves in the world.

In short, teenagers are people; young people, but people just the same. They have all kinds of problems, just as grownups do. But dating, being liked—these must rank high on the teenage problem sheet. As we grow to maturity, we either marry or decide on the single life and the problems of dating or liking (or loving) someone who does not return the favor becomes no longer a problem. We are married to someone we love, or we are no longer single. We are then more concerned with such things as earning a living, accumulating a little wealth and egg in the bank, and the like.

This is common thing for oldsters to look at the young and say, "How lucky they are, without knowing it—they haven't a care in the world." Anyone who devotes even a little thought to the subject knows better. Teenagers have problems, all kinds of problems—and to them their difficulties are just as real as the plight of the Jobless father who has to worry about where his next paycheck is likely to come from.

If a teen-ager is not developing problems of his own, he is not growing up. Address your letter to TOM, CARE OF THIS NEWSPAPER, ENCLOSED STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE. TEENAGERS, BE

Light beam carries audio, tv programs

The Bell Telephone Laboratories have recently developed a new device capable of carrying numerous telephone calls and television programs on a light beam, says C. A. Harris, manager for the Southern Bell Telephone Company here.

Harris says the device is the first continuously operating optical "maser" and is several hundred thousand times more powerful in frequency than any other coherent light source and promises to be one of the most efficient information carriers ever conceived.

The "maser," a term for microwave amplification by stimulated emission of radiation, is basically a highly effective device for amplifying electromagnetic waves, Harris said. An ultra-sensitive maser type amplifier was used in the Bell Laboratories 'Project Echo' communication experiments.

The optical gas maser was invented by Dr. A. Javan of the Bell Laboratories. Although it was the result of a "planned scientific project" involving many scientists and engineers, Harris said this new breakthrough is only a part of the continuous research and development which helps give telephone users the best possible communication system.

March 15-30 seeding time urged for tobacco beds

LEXINGTON, KY. — While burley tobacco beds can be made now (plowed and prepared), March 15-30 is the recommended time for seeding.

That's the word from the UK Cooperative Extension Service's Russell Hunt, specialist, says seeding at the, recommended time will produce plants in ample time for setting about May 25.

Hunt urges that beds be "made" as soon as the land is workable (dry). Bed sites should be back-furrowed to give a barrier against surface water running over the site. This brings in disease.

Weed seed can be killed by burning or methyl bromide. Beds so treated may be seeded from 1 to 2 days after treatment.

Beds drenched with weedkillers however, can NOT be safely seeded for 15 to 21 days. It takes that long for chemical residues to disappear from the soil. Drenches still in the soil will kill tobacco seed.

Plant bed experiments in 1960 —a very dry spring—showed that by proper management, plants were available 45 to 50 days after sowing. Hunt emphasizes that the recommended seeding time is March 15-30

THURSDAY, MARCH 16
Read Hebrews 13: 18-25
I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. (John 10:14.)

The highest degree of well-being is enjoyed by sheep when they can hear the voice of their shepherd. The sheep know the difference between the voice of strangers and the shepherd's voice. When strangers guide them, they are fearful, nervous, timid. They cannot eat peacefully. What a change takes place when their shepherd comes to them! They feel safe and at ease.

How true is the good shepherd! He wants to be our very own shepherd. He wants us to recognize His voice, to trust Him, to obey Him, and to have peace that passes all human understanding.

Jesus knows other voices clamor for our attention and loyalty. He also knows that our following them does not in the end to fear, guilt, and death. Each of us decides for himself whom he will hear and follow.

It was when the psalmist said, "The Lord is my shepherd," that he came to understand, "I shall not want."

PRAYER: Dear Christ, be my shepherd! I hear Thy voice; help me to heed and follow. May there come to me the assurance of Thy forgiveness, and may I experience the poise and peace which Thou hast for me. In Thy blessed name. Amen.
