CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The ever-availability of spiritual enlightenment will be emphasized at Christian Science churches Sunday.

Scriptural selections to be read in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Reality" will include this passage from Isaiah (9: 2): "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this correlative passage will be read (546: 24-26): "The great spiritual facts of being, like rays of light, shine in the darkness, 'though the darkness, comprehending them not, may deny their reality.'"

The Golden Text is from Psalms (97:11): "Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart."

Federal Land Bank awarded plaque; officers re-elected

The Federal Land Bank Association of Maysville will again be headed up by Harry Lowe, of Mason county. Officers, directors and personnel all were re-named March 13 at the annual meeting of this organization which serves a six-county area.

A high point of the meeting was the presentation of a Business Achievement plaque to the association by E. M. Taylor, regional manager of the Federal Land Bank of Louisville.

W. S. Atkinson, of Nicholas County, was renamed as vice-president at the meeting, held in the circuit court room of the Mason county courthouse and addressed by Willard Anderson, of Westport, Ind. Mr. Anderson's topic was "44 Years Of Progress With the Land Bank System."

Along with Alvin Cummins of Bracken county, who had been filling out an unexpired term, and J. W. Holmes, of Robertson County, Mr. Atkinson was returned to the directorate. Mr. Lowe and O. J. Donovan, of Fleming county, are hold-over directors.

Roy Fritz, for a second year, was elected secretary of the Federal Land Bank Association of Maysville. Miss Loraine Kenney was chosen field secretary for her 30th year of service.

Re-named as loan officers by the Federal Land Bank of Maysville are Mason. Bracken, Fleming, Robertson, Lewis and Nicholas.

MOREHEAD STATE COLLEGE

by Ray Hornback
Public Relations Director

Morehead, Ky., March 23—The Morehead State College campus has just about settled down following last week's trip to the NCAA tournament.

And what an experience it was as the fiery Eagles captured the hearts of the 43,000 fans who saw them play in three games of the tournament!

Not only did the young Eagles reach the NCAA tournament when they weren't scheduled to finish higher than fourth in the Ohio Valley Conference, but they packed up a great deal of national prestige by reaching the round of the nation's 16 best basketball teams.

The very fact that Morehead reached the NCAA tourney is an almost unbelievable story in itself. Bob Laughlin, who has been named "Coach of the Year" in the OVC, started the season with seven sophomores, two juniors and three seniors. Everyone agreed that he had the raw material but most observers said he was a year away.

But Coach Laughlin, Assistant Coach Granny Williams and Henderson "Hickie" Thompson began running wild from the guard posts.

A full-length history of Morgan County has not yet been published, but the Licking Valley Courier published a sketch of the county's history as a centennial edition in 1923. See also Military History of Kentucky, published in 1939

Senate adopts

The Senate Friday adopted the amendment to the feed grain bill proposed by Senator Cooper.

The Cooper amendment permits any farmer to withdraw up to 20 acres from corn and grain sorghum production. Farmers doing so would receive cash payments for half the acreage retired from production in 1961, payments in kind for the other half of the acreage retired, and price support at $1.20 for corn raised on any remaining acreage.

The Senate bill had required participating farmers to withdraw 30% of their feed grain acreage from production. The effect of the Cooper small-farm amendment is to permit farmers to withdraw 30% of their corn land or 20 acres, whichever is larger.

Senator Cooper said his amendment would be of great value to farmers who in 1959 and 1960 grew less than 20 acres of corn. "These farmers may wish to put their entire corn acreage into the program," said Cooper., "Instead of only 30%, which may not be practical for them. They can put the whole field to grass this year, as many of them did under the Acreage Reserve of the Soil

The Kennedy Administration took one of its first decisive steps in formulating foreign policy last week with the President's announcement of a new plan for hemispheric cooperation. The program for Latin America, based on the 1960 United States agreement to the Act of Bogota, is a long range, broadly defined plan for social and economic progress. Since the American continents where happy, harvest economic conditions, seething political unrest, and substandard living conditions, provide a fertile breeding ground for communism. Under the Administration plan, already being called by many Latin American diplomats the "Kennedy Doctrine", the $600 million authorized by Congress in 1960 at the request of President Eisenhower would be selectively appropriated in a many faceted program of self-help to these countries. Specifically, the funds would be used to "overcome the barriers of geographical and social isolation, illiteracy and lack of educational opportunities, archaic tax . . . structures, and other institutional obstacles to broad participation in economic growth." Funds would be allocated to the International Cooperation Administration for training in health, welfare, and government; to the Inter-American Development Bank for administration under a special Trust Agreement with the U.S.; to the Organization of American States to strengthen that body; and to the U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America for region-wide studies in tax reform.

The President's program also encompasses private investment and industry in Latin America, stressing particularly the importance of skilled technical personnel, responsible private enterprise, and management skills exported from the U.S. to the countries to the south of us.

A glance at the plan for Latin America policy is reassuring. It means no hasty expenditures; no funds or personnel will be allocated without an equal effort from the recipient country, and without proof of willingness to plan ahead on a long-term basis for permanent, lasting reforms. It means no new commitments—nor does it entail the expenditure of any monies other than those already authorized. The commitment is already there, in the form of the OAS charter and the Bogota Agreement, binding the American nations in a cooperative agreement to strengthen democracy by eliminating the conditions in which totalitarian ideologies flourish. We have already seen one frightening example of what can happen when these countries, as significant as Africa to the future of democracy are ignored until suddenly a hostile government plants communism at our doorstep. Perhaps if Cuba had had the benefit of this kind of "Alliance For Progress" we might not now be faced with the eventuality of defending ourselves against our neighbors.

It is never too late to close the barn door, even if one of the horses has been stolen. With 18 American republics in a key hemisphere, all of whom could with equal effort and enthusiasm put their right for your figure proportions and your coloring. To be sure, self-discipline must feed ease in whatever you wear. Simple lines that flatter your figure, colors that enhance your skin, hair and eyes.

Fashion is the key that is

The Keys to Appropriate Dress

Simplicity was the key found-ed last week in the news article, I hope you clipped out "Rule Fourteen" and have it for a check to see whether you are "over" dressed. The other three keys are harmony, becoming-ness and fashion.

Harmony is the impression of unity in your outfit . . . line, shape, size, texture and color. Analyze every item of apparel worn at one time (dress, hat, shoes, bag, gloves, hose, jewelry) in relation to every other item. Do they speak the same language. A soft, black faille bag would be harmonious with a simple black crepe dress, black suede pumps, a velvet hat for afternoon or evening wear, but would be out of tune with low-heeled walking oxfords.

Clothing also needs to be in harmony with the occasion.

Becomingness is a key . . . must not be overlooked. Select styles and accessories that are right for your figure proportions and your coloring. To be sure, self-discipline must feed ease in whatever you wear. Simple lines that flatter your figure, colors that enhance your skin, hair and eyes.

Fashion is the key that is
