Harper's observes 26th birthday; fire destroys Dorseyville stable

Thursday, May 15, 1941

National Hospital Day was observed Monday at the Johnson Memorial hospital. The hospital was open for visitors and inspection from 9 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Reverand C. V. Crabb, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church, will attend a meeting to be held at Montreat, N. C. He will leave here next week.

Today is the 26th anniversary of Harper's Garage. The business was established in 1915 by Mr. Robert G. Harper and his son William H. Harper on May 14, 1914. Harper's is probably the oldest Ford dealers in Central Kentucky.

Wind fanned flames swept through Henryville in the early hours Friday morning destroying the home and store of Clarence Foster and a ball owned by the colored Christian church. A restaurant across the street owned by Elza Price, also caught fire, but was extinguished before great damage was done.

A total of 812 head sold at Stock Yards with top vealers 30 cents over prices last week at the Carlisle Stock Yards.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Caswell of the Walnut Grove road, a baby daughter Saturday afternoon at the Johnson Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Caswell formerly was Miss Lollie Wells of the Maysville road. The baby has been named Linda Berry.—Mrs. Reynolds Herrington of Butler is receiving congratulation on the arrival of a baby daughter born May 6th, at the home of her parents. She has been named Reynolds Elizabeth. Mrs. Herrington was Miss Hilda Mae Mann, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. S. B. Mann.—Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Sharp near Jackstown, are parents of a daughter, Alice Ann, born on Wednesday, May 7th, at their home. Mrs. Sharp was formerly Miss Evalyn Woodall.

DIED—Mrs. Lena D. Ledford Tuttle, died Monday night at her home in Silver City, New Mexico, according to a message received by her brother, W. G. P. Ledford. The remains will be shipped to Carlisle, with burial in the Bethel cemetery.—Samuel Anderson, 74, of Waltz, Bowan county, were held at the grave in the Carlisle cemetery, Saturday afternoon.—Henry Morgan Bowen, 74, farmer of the Ishmael Chapel section of the county died at the Johnson Memorial hospital Thursday morning.

Thursday, May 19, 1921

Fire of an unknown orgin destroyed a stable and several other outbuildings at the home of Elijah Scott, in Dorseyville, on Tuesday afternoon.

Ten years ago Monday, Carlisle was visited by one of the most destructive fires in her history, when two blocks of buildings along the railroad were reduced to ashes.

Real estate agent Dan Westfall sold last Friday to Andrew Fanning 27 acres of the McClanahan farm on the Maysville & Lexington pike for $110 per acre.

Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association Wednesday clinched the withdrawal of their lone competitor in Kentucky and opened a drive for members consent to a renewal of the organization's charter.

MARRIED—Miss Allie Irene Paris, 16, and Carl Lawrence, both of Carlisle, at Paris Tuesday.—Mrs. Ada Munger Lee and Dr. Charles W. Mathers, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Tilton, on Wednesday.

DIED—David William Hopkins, 66, at his home at Oakland Mills on the 10th after several weeks illness.—Henry Clay Mann, 77, at the home of his son, Frank Mann, near town, Sunday after an illness of several months.—Mrs. Elizabeth Day, 80, at the home of her son-in-law, Charles Doyle, near Paris Tuesday.—Miss Sallie Jane Rogers, 78, at her home in Lexington.

A LITTLE YAPPIN'

By Nellie Crump

What's Coming Next?

The most unlucky young man I know these past two weeks has been Jimmy Marshall. First, he was accidently hit right slap dab in the face by a baseball bat while practicing at the city school athletic field That was getting along slowly but surely, when his finger was badly mashed when caught in a car door. Said he tried to pull it out and thought the end of it was lost enroute.

—Yap—

Misery Loves Company.

After thinking it over, possibly Mrs. Effie Watkins is as unlucky as Jimmy Marshall. Just as her hand was recovering from hot grease burns, she caught her finger in a car door and really smashed the daylights out of it, nail and all.

—Yap—

The Cupboard was Bare.

This little boy has been coming to my house to look in the refrigerator for something to suit his fancy. He is very fond of any soft drink—to him it is all "pop." One day I said to him using the words he would best understand, "You will BUST if you don't quit drinking so much pop." But it didn't faze effect—he was back with the next blast of the noon siren—"Youse got pop this day," he inquired. Quite truthfully I told him there was no pop because I was "busted." I shall never forget how he stared at me! When his voice came to the rescue he asked timidly, "Dat youse dwink too much pop and bust?" Fearful thought.

—Yap—

Ready, Willing and Able.

"If it is good for we, us must eat it," is an old saying. I often have small guests for lunch. Just as the siren blew on one of these days recently this little tot arrived, with pup and all. On tiptoe he looked over the table but saw nothing interesting besides a bottle of "beautiful" pills. He asked if he might have some "jelly beans" so I had to tell him that it was pills. As he watched preparation of sandwiches and chocolate, his interest became more than his tender years could stand. "Will us have pills for dinner too," he lisped as he looked toward the bottle, still thinking of jelly beans. No doubt he had been kidded before!

Neighbor Cassidy Ill.

This is Monday morning and I called the hospital to know the condition of Neighbor Clarence Cassidy who has been ill for several days. A pleasant voice at the desk said he is much better and expects to return home today. Professor Cassidy goes about his home chores much like a humming bird and is missed when not around. Being a hero of World War I, he is a great favorite of children. Also a lawyer, preacher, school teacher and farmer he can tell it to you in five different languages. You name it.

Yaps—all . . .

Roses will do much better if they're kept mulched the year 'round with ground corn cobs, tobacco stems, well-rotted manure, or peat moss. Use 2 to 4 inches of mulch and also apply 10-10-10 fertilizer — 2 tablespoonful per gallon of water, using 1 gallon of the fertilizer solution for each established plant. Use only half as much fertilizer on newly-planted roses.

100 YEARS AGO

Lack of Ammunition Ends First Navy Fight

BL LON K. SAVAGE

Henry Engle, captain of the navy steamer U.S.S. Star, scanned the shoreline as he moved his ship around Sewell's Point 109 years ago this week. Suddenly he spotted what he had been looking for and swung his vessel around.

It was the evening of Saturday, May 18, near Norfolk, Va., and the Eagle had seen a group of Confederates erecting a barricade. It was the beginning of the Civil War's first naval battle.

Minor as it was, it attracted wide attention that week—along side other important news: North Carolina's secession and Kentucky's proclamation of neutrality.

Eagle's shots caught the Confederates without a usable weapon. So the Star—and a federal tug which joined in the bombardment—fired unopposed.

That night, under cover of darkness, Confederates began moving in their own guns.

Eagle waited next morning to see if there were any movement ashore before renewing his fire, and it was afternoon when his next shot sounded. To his surprise, the shot was answered and one of the first Confederate shells clipped a line from his vessel's gaff.

Shots Are Exchanged

For more than an hour the battery and ship exchanged shots. Shells slammed into the sand and embrasures of the Confederate barricade and one struck a cannon two Georgia soldiers became minor heroes when they ran into the line of fire and scrapped sand from the barricade's portholes.

Five Confederate shells crashed into the Star's hull and upper works, but they caused little damage. Two Union men were slightly wounded.

Then it ended. Almost at the same time, the Confederates found themselves down to their last two rounds of ammunition; the Yankees down to their last five. The Star swung around and headed out to sea.

The secession of North Carolina brought the Confederacy to its full complement of 11 states that week (although both the Confederacy and the United States later were to claim Kentucky and Missouri). But the event was little more than recognition of an accomplished fact.

North Carolina troops had long been in Confederate uniform, and Confederate flags had been flying in the state. Secession had not taken place simply because of Governor John Ellis' observance of procedure.

Unanimous Vote

Immediately after Sumter, Ellis had called the legislature into session for May 1; on that day the legislature had called a convention for May 20. And on that day, without further ado, the convention unanimously voted to leave the Union and Join the Confederacy.

On that same May 20, Kentucky's pro-southern Governor Magoffin issued a proclamation of Neutrality for his state, warning both sides not to send troops into Kentucky. The proclamation probably reflected the opinion of most Kentuckians, but it was far from realistic. Within four months, both armies would be fighting in Kentucky and Kentuckians would be fighting in both armies.

That same week at Wheeling on the Ohio River, more than 400 men from throughout western Virginia gathered before a flag-bedecked stage and, after three days of debate, proclaimed their right to separate from Virginia and form a separate state. It was the first important step toward creation of the state of West Virginia.

Next week: A hero is killed.

Which twin earns his living on the farm?

John lives in the country and operates a dairy farm. Twin brother Joe lives in town and owns an appliance store. But they both earn their living from farming. John directly—Joe indirectly from his store sales to farm customers. And both make better livings . . . thanks to low cost rural electricity and the local Rural Electric Co-op.

Rural electricity began to flow to Kentucky farms 25 years ago it brought the farmer light and freedom from drudgery. But it did more! It made his farm more productive, his operation more efficient. It enabled him to produce more, with less work, to increase his profits and buying power.

Kentucky's farmers originally built their rural cooperatives for one purpose only . . . to get the electric power they could not buy elsewhere! Out of their cooperation has grown a force powerful enough to keep Kentucky's prosperity growing.
