Recognized Value

The management of WCYN recognizing the value of the PRINTED WORD, has asked the Mercury to publicize its medium as a public service. See their advertisement on page six.

We are happy to point out—that in addition to hearing the hospital report:

1) It is possible to READ in the Mercury the hospital news and other news pertinent to Nicholas Countians; 2) A nice fact about a newspaper is: it awaits the pleasure of the reader, its printed words, pictures, cross-word puzzels, cartoons, 20 and 40 year-ago column and advertisements do not assail the ear-drums, demanding they be heard now, least their content be lost to the ether forever.

STOP! LOOK! READ! ACT!

A few short weeks ago it was suggested that we label a jar of fruit or vegetables, "home", as we were doing our home canning.

Any person that has willingly done this is asked to bring the jars to the Johnson Memorial Home sometime during Thanksgiving Week Nov. 19th to Nov. 25th .

If you haven't canned any this summer — remember the Home when buying your groceries that week, with an extra can, and on Thanksgiving morning I'm sure you can say as did Marian Douglas in her little poem, "If you want to be happy on Thanksgiving Day—just try giving something away."

No one will be solicited personally but we feel hopeful as in the past that homemakers, Bible School classes, and members of the various organizations and clubs of our county will respond in such a way that we'll show our appreciation by sharing, and be happy that we have had a part in helping to maintain our "Home" for which we are rightfully proud.

A LITTLE YAPPIN'

by Nellie Crump

When We Visit Old Friends.

A reader of Yappin' says she likes accounts of the little trips I take, so here is the last one of the season, no doubt. Mrs. Ida Ritcheson and Gilbert Overbey, her nephew, came for me on a pretty Friday afternoon and escorted me to Piqua, Ky. Safely rounding all curves between Carlisle and Blue Licks, we left the highway after crossing the Licking river bridge and drove through the lovely State Park. Coming out on U.S. 68 at the other end we were not far from our destination in Robertson county. With a flourish we passed the general store that my friends own on the corner, passed the ball park and would have run slapdab into Johnson creek had we not stopped at the first white house on the left. Frost had visited the numerous flowers, but everything else looked just as it did last year when Bessie and I were there. Enjoyed a lot of small talk until the Overbeys came from the store and we ate supper, after which there was more talk with callers until near 12 when the last goodbye was said.

Up and at 'em early Saturday —the secret was out—come night, there was going to be a surprise birthday supper for Mrs. Overbey at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Moore several miles distant and I was included with the guests. I must confess I was a bit skeptical about mixing with a crowd I had never seen, much less met, but I went and would not have missed it for anything. There were cars everywhere and lights all over the 10-room house when we arrived. Men, women and children, assembled on the front porch, began singing, "Happy Birthday". I had no cause to worry another minute for I never met a nicer, more friendly bunch of people. Such a supper, topped off with ice cream and a tiered cake as large as a 10-gallon lard can (I'm not lyin') served to at least 50 guests.

Well, it was midnight when we "turned in" again, but up with the dawn, for we went to Sunday School and church according to the Overbey custom. In the class I was in I met Mrs Frank Mann, formerly of Carlisle. There was to be a special service at two o'clock and time was flying. Our car whizzed past the corner and Jewell (that is Mrs. Overbey) told me her husband was treating us to restaurant dinner "up town" and I wondered just where "up town" was! Soon beautiful homes appeared and we stopped on Main street in Mt. Olivet where a delicious dinner was served.

Back to the church on time. Three ministeres walked down the aisle, taking their places in the pulpit. Each of them looked over the well-filled church and I felt safe in saying the Rev. Lanis Kineman of Carlisle was more surprised than anyone when he spied me (I knew he was to be the speaker). He was accompanied by Herman Conyers who told me he was enjoying his first trip to Piqua.

To shorten the story, Ida and myself stayed home while the others had what it takes to go back for night services, Jewell being organist. (I was worn to a frazzle!) Then came Monday and angry clouds, a good drizzle and by morning tobacco was ready to "put down"—laughing, talking, back slappin' and who could help whom. Dinner was cooked in an up-to-date "lean-to" and served in the back of the store. Marie and Reynolds Gaunce, who were tuning a piano in the neighborhood, were dinner guests.

Before all the dishes were cleared away I had to dry 'em in the phone rang. Happiness was turned to sadness. Death had visited the daughter's home in Ewing and claimed the 97-year-old grandmother, an old lady beloved by all. I asked to be brought home, which the Overbeys and Ida did after supper Hallowe'en. As soon as my light turned on the ghosts and goblins arrived to the number of 15 and I actually fell into bed dog-tired but thankful for friends, old and new.

—Yep.

Heard in the Lobby.

One word more in conclusion More than one voter laughingly remarked that candidates had no "give-aways" in the recent election, that is, no one besides Berry Burnaw, who had some match folders. Heretofore, pockets and handbags have come away from the polls all "tooched out" with cards, matches, pencils, plastic rain caps and what-have-you. None of that this time! However, a very friendly lady met me as soon as I got inside the door and gave me a beautiful postcard of the new Nicholas County Bookmobile in glazed color which I am glad to have. Votes were: Yes 327; No 281.

Thanksgiving At "Gramma's," 5 P.M.

Miranda h'makers

by Mrs. Edgar Darrell

The Miranda Homemaker's Club met on Oct. 8, at the home of Mrs. James Lowe. 18 members, two visitors and two children present.

Devotional was given by Mrs. Malcolm Wills.

The lesson on "Christmas Decorations" was given by Mrs. Cecil Smart and Mrs. Margie Wilson.

Suggestions were made for the planning of next years program.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Albert Booth.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Did you know?

Judge Joe Clay is in his 47th year of continuous service with this city. In December his final 8 years will be completed as Judge of The Police Court.

He installed the city's first water system in 1914 and was in charge of it and of other city services for 39 years, previous to being elected as Police Judge in 1953. Through the years, later employees have greatly profited from his cheerful help and advice, while his service will be gratefully remembered by all citizens.

The Judge will continue his residence on School Avenue and his interest in the city's welfare.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

The Upper Room

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16

Read John 4:21-30

"Come, see a man who told me all that I ever did. Can this be the Christ?" (John 4:29 RSV)

During a campaign of evangelism for youth in Sweden, a boy visited one of his friends of the same age to witness for the first time to his belief in Christ. Afterward he gave this testimony: "I have been a confessed Christian for four years, but now for the first time I realize what it really means."

We do not discover how wonderful it is to be a Christian until we begin to share our faith with others. Then our eyes are opened to God's riches which are in Christ. All the time His riches were there to be possessed, but we did not realize it. When we begin to tell others of our faith, Christ becomes more important to us than ever before, for He adds faith to our faith when we share it.

Yes, great blessings are to be found in sharing our faith in Christ with others. Thus we spread the good news to those who need to hear the gospel.

PRAYER: O Lord, help me this day not to put my lamp under a bushel, but cheerfully to profess Thy name and spread the gospel. For the sake of Christ, who loves all mankind, and taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven.... Amen."

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

The more you share the gospel with others, the more you receive for yourself and others.

Karl Erik Hellberg (Sweden)

More About Going Steady

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am a teenage boy and have a problem that I believe is quite unusual. There are a few girls in my class that like me very much and I like them very much. But I am one year younger than they are. One of these girls asked me to go steady. Do you think I should say 'no' because of my age or if she should say 'no' because of my age?"

OUR REPLY: You should both say "no"—because of your ages—yours and hers.

What's so important about going steady? Teenagers, almost without exception, look forward to going steady almost as much as they anticipate becoming old enough to drive an automobile.

Going steady is not the "big deal" it seems to be. It means giving up a lot of things. And, regardless of what anyone says or believes, the boy or girl who goes steady does not have as many friends—or as much fun—as other boys and girls.

When you start going steady, the girl-friend will soon want to monopolize all of your time. She will flatly object if you so much as walk down the street with another girl. She will soon have something to say if you spend too much time with your buddies at the malt shop, drug store, playground or wherever.

Another thought: why should you go steady just because a girl asked you to go steady?

And yet another: If several girls like you, why don't you keep it that way, instead of going steady with just one of them?

This turns out, it seems, to be an "anti-steady" column, which it isn't meant to be; we only want to point out some of the disadvantages—and to express our viewpoint that boys and girls in their teens should not go steady.

The time to go steady comes later on, when one finds the "right" person to go steady with.

If you have a personal problem you want to discuss, or an interesting topic you would like to see discussed in this column, write to Teen Talk, The Upper Room, 1908 Grand Avenue, Nashville, Tennessee.
