"15 minutes of my school day pays for a week's electric clothes drying"

"I never realized how economical electric drying really is," says Charles F. Combe, principal and coach at Hartford High School. "Why, I can pay for the week's electric clothes drying—15 hot loads—with just 15 minutes' worth of my salary."
 "And, knowing what a challenge children are, I can appreciate the time an electric dryer saves my wife."
 Mrs. Combe adds, "And how many ways my electric dryer does save me time! I can dry clothes when and as often as I need to, and believe me, I do. And the gentle tumbling in electric heat actually does away with more wrinkles—rinses 'em down on ironing. My electric clothes dryer is the last appliance I could do without."

Only electricity provides flameless clothes dryer.

NCHS THANKSGIVING

"Our American Heritage and Our Responsibility" was the title of the talk Rev. Eugene Cooper gave at the Thanksgiving program at Nicholas County High School on last Wednesday, November 22.
 The eighth grade Coed-Y was in charge of the program. Everyone gave the pledge to the flag and participated in singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Freedom does not mean...

...and viewing some of the most scenic territory in America, may I suggest the Trail of the Lonesome Pine.
 The starting point will be Lexington; James B. Rogers land, and on to Winchester. One will pass such historic places as Rappahannock, an ancient Shawnee Indian town, where Scottish traders visited long before the Revolutionary War. Labegrud Creek; where such historians as John Finley and Daniel Boone once camped, and Pilot Knob; where Daniel Boone viewed the Bluegrass of Kentucky for the first time. Blanking about 100 feet above the plains, it is easily seen from Ky. 18, and was used as a landmark for Indians passing up and down the Great Warriors Trace many years before the white man settled in Kentucky. The trail climbs higher into approximately 125 miles, the mountains to Natural and and get rid of them. Proper cleanup, plus continued use of a good bait should go far toward ridding your place of rats.

From Ames Model, Scotland, Pa.: I can remember the winter evenings the family and neighborhood boys would gather around the parlor piano in the old fashioned parlor. The top of the piano, with heavy gold wire frames encasing the picture of a young woman, with a sharp triangle in her eye, peering through you and, wearing a high pompadour hairdo; Gracie with a milk-lavender smile, lined with a bicycle handlebar mustache, making our modern "beatniks" look obsolete. Count Lilli's wedding picture resting inside of the piano bench would hardly be placed on the library table upon her visit.
 The children would take turns tramping the pedal, sitting erect, gawking their wool coats to the last separate time, dashes and dash of piano roll, rolled before our eyes, the words along the side for us to sing. "This concert of 'Happy Days Are Here Again'—'Gonna My Sorrento' would last for hours.
 Before the children returned to their homes, hot chocolate with homemade oatmeal toasts and cookies would be served in Ma's old-fashioned kitchen, with the plunger pump trimming the edge of the sink blotting fresh, un-chemicalized spring water out the spout.
 No rushing in motor cars to the town's nearest "Pizza Shop" in those days. An extra shovelful of coal was added to the coal stove that was neglected during the weekending. All departed after refreshments, promising to return soon. Those were the old days—when you furnished your own entertainment.
