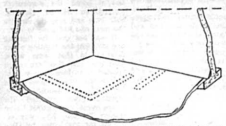
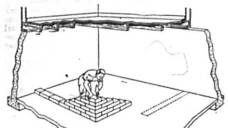
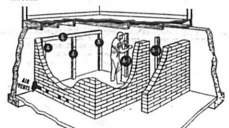
How to build a fallout shelter in a corner of your basement



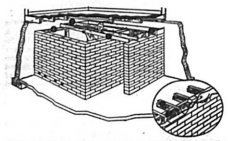
If possible, choose a corner of the basement that has no window. If a window is unavoidable, it will have to be properly covered later. Now take a piece of chalk and, allowing 10 square feet of floor for each occupant, mark guidelines on the floor where the L-shaped wall and the baffle wall of the shelter will be located. Set your first row of solid concrete blocks in about three-eighths of an inch of wet mortar along the guidelines, using a level and a plumb line, if possible.



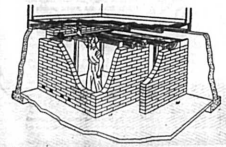
Next raise the corner of the L-shaped wall about six blocks high. Now start up with the rest of the L-shaped wall, leaving four or five holes in the second row of blocks for ventilation. When the wall is level with the corner again, raise the corner and continue in the same manner until the L-shaped wall is about 16 inches from the basement ceiling. This 16-inch space is necessary for the later construction of the shelter roof. You will not set the top row of blocks until you have completed the roof.



Now build your baffle, the wall which protects the shelter's entrance. Raise it to the same height as the L-shaped wall. Next, by means of half-inch anchor bolts, fasten the four-by-four cleats marked A and A-1 to the basement walls. Notice that the beam marked B (also four-by-four) is nailed to the top of the posts marked A. This supported beam is the same as the height of the posts marked A-1. The mortared blocks should now be given at least 24 hours to dry.



The roof supports (marked C) are installed after the walls have had a chance to dry. They are two-by-six-inch lumber set edgeways on 12-inch centers. Wood wrens marked D hold them in place. At the entrance side of the shelter each roof beam rests on the inside four inches of the block wall. The outside four inches is filled by mortaring four-inch blocks on edge. The west brenes marked D are placed flush with the inside of the wall. Space between the brenes and four-inch blocks is filled with mortar to complete the wall thickness needed for radiation shielding. See inset for details.



The roof boards marked E can now be placed. They can be of one-inch dressed lumber—four, six or eight inches wide. Slip the first two roof boards into place from outside the shelter. From inside the shelter, reach through between the roof beams to nail the roof boards in place. Next place the concrete roof blocks on the roof boards. They need not be mortared but must total eight inches of concrete roof. That is, two flat layers of four-inch blocks. If eight-inch blocks are used the hollow spaces must be filled with sand or mortar. Next add two more roof boards, cover with blocks and continue until the last blocks are placed from outside the shelter.

ON THE RISE—Donations keep Eugene Neal busy painting the increases on the Jote board in the court house yard. IS YOUR CONTRIBUTION TO 4-H INCLUDED?

"We are pleased with the enthusiasm shown in the 4-H District Camp Fund Drive" Harvey Wagoner, County Chairman, said following the two meetings held recently. $28,000.00 is the goal that must be met by Nicholas countians in the purchase of the 350 acres designated for the camp site. "We have every confidence that this goal will be met and that our county people will work together tirelessly until reaching the goal is a reality" Mr. Wagoner said. To further emphasis the establishment of the 4-H Camp in Nicholas, a thermometer has been prepared by Eugene Neal and has been erected on the courthouse lawn. Mr. Neal has graciously agreed to keep the thermometer up to date as the money rolls in and secures the project which many have described as the most important step forward in many a decade. Mr. Wagoner points out that this fund drive is an opportunity for all of us in Nicholas to participate in a worthwhile youth program and at the same time secure the facility here as an aid toward better economy.

After the goal has been reached, soliciting will be discontinued and the camp will be self supporting. However, it is of necessity that we give generously and that gifts be made by January 1, 1962, because the land must be purchased by that time. For those unable to make a gift, at this time, a pledge will be acceptable up to January 1, 1962.

Several gifts of $100 to $500 have already been made which is a good indication of the interest in the project.

Community chairman are presently selecting their workers with a plan to visit every home and business in the county. When this volunteer visits you, please be prepared to give generously. As we go to press it is reported that the organization is being completed to canvas the Carlisle residential area about Monday. Volunteer contributions to date total over $3000.00.

Hollar appointed FHA loan member

Lovell Hollar, Route 1, has been appointed as a member of the Nicholas County Farmers Home Administration Committee, according to Rob Roy Norton, the agency's County Supervisor here. The appointment is for three years beginning July 1st. Mr. Hollar operates a burley tobacco, general livestock farming program. He has been active in agricultural and community affairs for a number of years and is well known to many Nicholas County farmers and businessmen.

The two other members serving with Mr. Hollar are Edgar Darrell and Howard Allison Jr. Mr. Hollar succeeds Harold A. Mitchell whose three year term expired June 30, 1961. Each agricultural county in Kentucky is served by a three member committee to work with the County Supervisor to make the best possible local use of the agency's farm credit program.

The Committee determines the eligibility of applicants for all types of Farmers Home Administration loans, and determine the suitability and fair and reasonable value of farms to be considered as security for real estate loans. The Farmers Home Administration is an agency within the United States Department of Agriculture that supplies long term credit to farmers to purchase, improve, or to refinance their farms, establish suitable soil and water conservation measures, and build or repair rural dwellings and other essential farm buildings. It also has an intermediate or short term loan program to assist farmers with conventional farm operating needs.

The agency endeavors to cooperate rather than compete with other lenders in the farm credit field. As a part of its credit service, it provides farm and home management aid service.
