and sister of Mrs. Viola Rhorer of Lexington died after a short illness at 9 a.m. Tuesday at Winter Park, Fla., near Orlando.

Miss Brayfield had been a lifelong resident of Lexington until she moved to Winter Park this summer to make her home with a nephew, M. W. Hopkins.

Besides Mrs. Rhorer, she is survived by another sister, Mrs. Edgar T. Hopkins Sr. of Winter Park, a brother, R. T. Brayfield of Nicholas County, and several nieces and nephews.

Services and burial will be held at Carlisle.

Action forecast for hunters

The shooting seasons for Kentucky nimrods are breaking out all over and from now until January 29, when the grouse season ends, (with the exception of a short period in early November), hunters will find plenty to do. Almost without exception early game forecasts can be placed in the "good" category and the over-all season may be a "cliff hanger", the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources believes.

Hard on the heels of the second squirrel opening dates, Nov. 16 and continuing through Dec. 8. The bag limit, six per day with a possession limit of 24 after two or more days of hunting.

The gun deer season, in 38 counties, will be of a four-day duration this year and was moved to the first half of November. For the 38 counties the shooting opens on November 8 and continues through the 11th while for three counties, Breathitt, Perry and Knott, a two-day season, November 10 and 11, has been set. This brings to 41 the number of counties in which deer may be hunted this season. The archery season ran through out the month of October in all 41 counties. As for last year, only one may be killed by a hunter, with bow and arrow or by gun.

Quail hunters in some areas were agreeably surprised last season with the population of this fast flying bird and call counts in the early spring signified a good supply of adult birds.

The season opens on November 16 and continues through January 14 with a bag limit of 10 and a possession limit of 20.

Grouse production in the eastern Kentucky mountains has been on the increase for several years and this may be the peak year for this fast flying bird. Since the grouse are more active in cold weather, the grouse hunting season opening has been moved to December 1 and will continue through January 29. This will give hunters several additional days in the field after the regular small game season ends on January 14 and the Department believes a greater number of these birds will be harvested in the late season. The grouse have become so plentiful in their native habitat that the Department has started a trapping project in this area and is transferring the trapped birds to other areas which contain second growth timber. That is the ideal habitat for this bird. The bag and possession limit this year will be four.

The season for harvesting furbearers opens on November 16 and continues through January 14.

Forecasts and predictions on wildlife populations are variable but, taking into consideration the better than average outlook for all species, Kentucky hunters should, indeed, be in for some fine shooting this fall.

Preparing Burley Tobacco For Market

Stripping and sorting the crop into grades according to group, quality, and color enables the manufacturers and leaf buyers to obtain just the tobacco they need. When offered for sale, leaf poorly stripped and sorted may not meet the needs of specific manufacturers or leaf buyers. Tobacco is still being bought, to a large extent, on its looks and uniformity. Burley tobacco properly stripped, graded, tied and attractively displayed will usually sell for the highest current price on the market.

If left hanging indefinitely in the barn, burley tobacco gains in weight and quality and the color fades or changes. It is desirable to take your crop down as soon as it is ready and conditions permit. Tobacco is ready for bulking and stripping when the leaves and stems are fully cured, and the top leaves, when in light case, break clean when removed from the plant. In light case, the top leaves do not feel dry, yet they contain only enough moisture to make them pliable.

A comfortable stripping room is needed for good tobacco stripping. It should be large enough to accomodate the workers and have a stripping table, adequate lighting, and some provision for heating. Wall presses are desirable.

Adequate lighting is necessary for workers to sort tobacco according to grade and color, and to determine quality. It is necessary to have proper light as color distinctions often determine the quality of the tobacco. With poor light, much tobacco may seem uniform in color, whereas proper light conditions would reveal mixed color. Provide the best light possible on the farm.

The all grades of tobacco in uniform-sized hands with heads having the diameter of a silver dollar. Very large hands of tobacco are difficult to dry without damage. Moisture left under the tie leaf of oversized heads causes mold and rot in storage. Large hands and heads of tobacco sometimes cause difficulty on the sales floor and in the re-dryer.

Tie each hand securely so that it does not break or come untied during normal handling and marketing. Tie leaves should be of the same color and quality as the grade being tied. Do not cap over the head of the hand with the tie leaf. A careful, neat job of tying will make the tobacco more attractive to the buyer and will generally result in a higher price.

Have Those Stripping Lights Ready

You will soon be needing those stripping lights, so be sure they are in working order. There should be two or three extra tubes kept on hand. It is also a good idea to wash the inside of the fixture with soap and water before stripping has begun. Then wipe the dust from the fixture and tubes at least twice each week throughout the stripping season. You'll be surprised how much more light is available to help you perform the tedious job of sorting your tobacco. Try it.

marketed during the April 1, 1962-March 31, 1963 period. Payments will be made in the summer of 1963 following the end of the marketing year.

The payment rate for shorn wool for 1960 was 47.6 percent, the percentage required to bring the average price of 42 cents per pound of shorn wool, grease basis, up to the 62-cent incentive level. This resulted in a payment of $47.60 for every $100 received from the sale of shorn wool. The payment on unshorn lambs was 80 cents per hundredweight of live lambs marketed.

1960 wool and lamb payments made to producers in Nicholas County totlied about $19,778.

RURAL HOUSING

the construction, repair, and remodeling of dwellings and essential farm buildings and to provide water for farmstead and household use.

Rural housing loans may also be used for the construction of fallout and storm shelters.

The interest rate is 4 percent per year on the unpaid balance of the loan. Loans may be scheduled for repayment over periods up to 33 years.

The proposed housing must be adequate to meet the family's needs and yet modest in size and design.

To be eligible an applicant must own a farm or a housing site in a rural area; be without decent, safe and sanitary housing; be unable to obtain the needed credit from other sources; and be without sufficient resources to provide the necessary housing on his own account. He must also have or be able to obtain sufficient income to meet payments on existing debts, take care of his other expenses, and make the payments on the proposed loan.

The local county supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration will review building plans and inspect the housing construction as it progresses in order to make certain that the borrowers obtains sound and acceptable construction.

The local county committee of the Farmers Home Administration determines the eligibility of applicants.

Rural families who need the emergency housing repairs and who do not have the ability to repay a loan may be able to obtain small grants for such purposes as repairing a roof, screening windows, and providing a sanitary supply of water.

All loans are secured to the extent necessary to protect the Government's interest. Small improvement loans made in amounts of less than $1,500 with repayment scheduled over periods up to 10 years may be secured by a promissory note. Other loans are secured by mortgages.

Further information on rural housing may be obtained at the county office of the Farmers Home Administration located at Carlisle, Kentucky, in the Post Office Building, from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon each Tuesday.

BUDGET LAW VIOLATED IN NICHOLAS COUNTY, STATE AUDITOR SAYS

Frankfort, Oct. 24—Nicholas County failed to operate its fiscal affairs in accordance with principles of the uniform county budget law, State Auditor Joseph W. Schneider has reported to Gov. Bert Combs.

The auditor commented that several budget accounts were overspent, no inter-account transfers were made, and both general fund, as well as road and bridge accounts were overexpended.

The examination of the county's affairs was made by Dan Sullivan and Forrest Harrod, field auditors.

Despite failure to observe certain approved practices, the auditor reported, the county began the period July 1, 1960, with a deficit of $33,575.81, and reduced it during the year by $6,812.72 to a figure of $26,763-.09.

Another table in the report showed total funds budgeted of $142,024 (authorised for expenditure), yet expenditures totaled $167,227.92.

BULLETIN:
FOA-5X additive in Shell Heating Oil helps protect your fuel system winter after winter

THERE'S a new additive in today's Shell Heating Oil. Called FOA-5X, it works round the clock to help guard your fuel system—from storage tank to burner head.

FOA-5X helps reduce the build-up of heat-robbing deposits that can collect in sensitive areas of burner nozzles. It lets Shell Heating Oil burn in a resistant, even flame. It helps reduce service calls and expense. The result: more warmth per gallon of fuel—top heating performance at minimum cost.

Before you buy your next gallon of heating oil, call us. We will give you complete details about Shell Heating Oil with FOA-5X and about our services.
