It takes 1000 tons of coal to build just 1 mile of concrete highway!

It takes approximately 700,000 tons of coal if Kentucky uses concrete to complete its Interstate Highways. Kentucky needs low coal markets, new highways. Complete brings the two together. The result? Better business. Better highways. Today's new-type concrete is smooth and adds little weight... it holds fast to stay 75% less than for asphalt (based on Kentucky reports). This is vital because the Federal Government pays 90% of initial construction costs—but not a single cent for maintenance. And it up. Concrete means greater coal usage, greater driving comfort, and greater maintenance savings.

Mr. Frank Butler, Executive Secretary of the Kentucky Coal Association, says "Concreted and relieving said are two basic ingredients of the modern concrete highway. With their use, the highway is built to last and the state's coal industry is helped."
