

Traditional Thanksgiving turkeys are plentiful

Turkey and traditional Thanksgiving fare are among the good food buys this month. Other November poultry foods, listed by Mrs. Letta Jasper, UK Extension specialist in consumer marketing, include fresh, frozen or frozen concentrate, apples, grapes, cranberries, peaches, blueberries and vegetable shortenings. This year's production of turkeys is down but a large carry-over of cold storage turkeys is available. Turkey supplies Mrs. Jasper points out, fluctuate on this month's market are expected to be 10 percent less than last year's. Turkey prices are expected to be about the same as a few cents lower compared to turkey prices. You can expect nice fresh pork on the market this month. Good buys are fresh pork, ham, chops, ribs, steaks, ground beef, sausage, and turkey. Turkey prices are expected to be about the same as a few cents lower compared to turkey prices.
