A WARPED CONCEPT

(The Kentucky Report)

An appalling ignorance of economics is being "educated" into current public-school-going generation.

Opinion Research, Inc. has made wide sampling of high school seniors which disclosed that: 61% think profit is not necessary for survival of free enterprise system; 76% believe most of gains from new machinery go to owner; 82% feel there is virtually no competition in business today; and 56% observe that way to have more is to get more out of corporations.

Four years from now, high percentage of those students will be out of college and into stream of commerce and politics. Already their minds are shaped against profit system and, ipso facto, free enterprise. They have shocking awakening ahead of them.

Many factors have contributed to this distortion of knowledge and fact about profit system. Most important factor, however, was found to be textbooks that are being used throughout many of nation's high schools. Students have been "brainwashed" in manner that is as Russian as communism.

Survey after survey has shown that many U.S. youngsters have no understanding, appreciation, regard or respect for American free enterprise system, and of concepts that have made this nation most productive, prosperous and powerful in all history.

No wonder there are "dropouts." They want to get slice of free enterprise before it disappears.

Business as Usual.

The little grocery at Dorsey avenue and the L&N railroad has changed hands. Well, sorta changed, that is. About three years ago the business was purchased by Messrs. Tommy Flora and John Bowles. On August 12 Mr. Bowles sold his interest to his partner Flora who continues to serve his many friends with everything from cheese and crackers to "soap, sox and dynamite."

North Carolina Vacations.

Mrs. Malcolm Wills of the Concord road, recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Ted Insko (Barbara Wills) in Fayetteville, N. C. Ted is stationed at Fort Bragg. Mrs. Wills made the trip alone by bus and had the thrill of passing through Knoxville, Tenn., her native state.

Miles from Home.

Quite a number of my old schoolmates from far and near have stopped by to see me this summer, but that beautiful red convertible parked in front of my door last Friday did not come to see me. It was only there resting in the shade. The license plate said "Wyoming" but could as easily been Colorado and told the truth. It was on the way home from Huntsville, Ala.

Occupants of the car were visiting over at Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Barbee's, being Eddies' niece, Mrs. Joe Edwards, her husband and their three daughters, Bettye Raye, Linda and Jo Berta. Now let's not forget "Teeky," their half-pint size dog, was along also.

Mrs. Edwards is the daughter of Sam Barbee, of Huntsville, formerly of Carlisle, who is improving from a recent illness.

On Friday of this week Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Barbee plan to leave Carlisle with Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Shrout and daughter Carol for a few days' stay in Alabama to see Sam Barbee and family.

Tips on Fuels to use in Burley Barn

Use of heat from artificial sources is one way to help prevent rotting of tobacco in curing barns, says Ira Massie, U.K Ag Extension Service specialist.

Heat is needed to prevent rotting because tobacco should go in and out of "case" once every 24 hours. When curing leaf comes in case (or high order) and remains longer than 24 hours, Massie points out, "the old familiar rot starts to develop, reducing weight and quality."

But the right type of heat in the barn can prevent this situation.

Some widely used fuels are coke, natural or propane gas. There are other fuels but they are more expensive and have not received wide acceptance.

Heat should first be applied after the tobacco has been properly wilted (water lost and colors started changing from green to yellow). But heat must be used only in' periods of stress, or when the tobacco is in high case (high moisture content). Heat should never be used continuously throughout the season.

Important Date

September 10, is an important date for alfalfa growers for two reasons. If you are sowing a new field of alfalfa, September 10 is about the last day you can sow it with any reasonable hope of getting a stand that will live through the winter. If sown after September 10, alfalfa doesn't have much of a chance. Also, on established stands, it is best not to cut after September 10. If the tops date the plants need to be growing and storing up plant food in the roots for better winter survival. There is one possible exception to cutting after September 10 if the tops have been frozen it is then permissible to cut the tops off the plants and use for storage.

First Day of School

The first day of school is an important day both to your child and to you. Whether this is the day your child goes to kindergarten, to first grade, junior high, high school or college there are always mixed emotions. There are many new and strange situations to face.

For the youngster, there is usually excitement which adds a little uncertainty about the unknown. He may wonder if he can meet the demands placed upon him. In the case of the very young child, he may be uneasy about the school bus, or he may feel he doesn't know the teacher well enough to ask questions he needs answered. At any age, there is likely to be some concern about making new friends.

Mothers, too, have tense moments. It is good to see the children move upward in years and in grades in school, still there is a hesitancy to see them go. Do they know enough to take care of themselves properly? Will the teacher be understanding? Suppose he makes the wrong kind of friends? Or worse, suppose no one chooses him for a friend.

Yes, there is a pull on the heartstrings around the first day of school. All parents would like for their child to meet the demands of life with courage and adequacy for the occasion. This doesn't always just happen, and there doesn't seem to be a magic wand you can wave to make it come true.

THESE TRUTHS WE MUST HOLD

ECONOMIC FREEDOM—BUILDER OR WRECKER?

Americans believe:

Economic freedom is constructive because it is an indivisible part of the freedom with which God has endowed man. When practiced within the framework of constitutional guarantees and restrictions, it is the best of all possible economic systems. It is man's duty as well as his privilege to use his economic freedom honestly and to the best of his ability. In producing wealth for himself, he produces it for others, thus discharging his moral obligation to himself and to his fellowman. It is not a perfect system because man himself is imperfect, but it has served man's material needs better than any other system ever devised.

Communists believe:

Economic freedom can result only in tyranny and exploitation. Only government can safely plan and control economic activities. It must control, therefore, the development of natural resources, the building up of industry, and the collectivization of farms. The moral forces of Christianity have no place in the modern world. The masses must be guided and regimented toward participation in activities that serve the state. An economy planned and controlled by the state is a necessary means toward world domination by the Communists.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

To renew and quicken interest in our precious heritage of Freedom, and its superiority over the Communist philosophy, these messages are being published by Kentucky Utilities Company, an investor-owned electric company.
