A Little Yappin'

By Cassidy Hill
C. B. and Mrs. Cray Marshall and family went to Moore's Ferry in Bath county Sunday afternoon to visit C. B. Cassidy, their old neighbor, not knowing he is ill with the flu. He had been confined to his bed for the past three weeks. A brother and his wife are staying in the home to care for him. Mr. Cassidy is one of our old neighbors here on Morgan street. We all deeply regret his continued illness.

Death Comes Again.
In the Mercury's December 20 issue this column told of the critical illness of Mrs. Mary Crump Moore, a native of Nicholas county, at a hospital in St. Joseph, Mo., following a stroke of paralysis. Last Saturday she received notice that she was passed away on Sunday, Feb. 10, hours in the Miller Station section of this county she was a daughter of the late Richard W. "Dick" Crump and Arman-

Presently come my young daughter, a freckling of two years, come Maytime, to struggle with me and keep me tied yet longer. And proud as only a first and dotting parent may be that she remembers the names of many birds from her picture book and can "who-who" like the Kentucky Cardinal and "chirp" like the Yellow Warbler and "squeeze" in imitation of the sweet call of the red-wing blackbird, all might counting to a park in memory. But tonight that I cannot reach the song of the old man, instead, the master singer that perched in my cherry tree and poured out his love-song to his mate, curved like a silver bow over her level cascade of blue-grey eggs to the "honeysuckle under the oaks. That Maytime when my blonde-blonde came to me. But the song of the ladybird is all too wonderful for my poor powers of imitation, so I like the wonderful article of his cousin, that "wings music of the woods," the mocking bird, though, for the previous eggs are hatched and coveys of family which upon the nest, the nestling droops and coveys are familiar with the fresh, out-like notes from where his parents are.

"Too bad" that as many of us are in full song but once a year as briefly, that we "near the row of yipps" upon us for such a "warming" moment. "Yes—'the-dee-dee'" should my daughter,

FARM HOME
By Earl J. Nottingham, County Agent, Marie Wilson, Home Agent, Mason Morrison, and Miss Gertrude. The Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation has recently been granted a patent for a product which might be used for the preservation of food. A surface-active agent is incorporated in a slow-release capsule so that it would not be administered more often than once a day.

The idea is to alter the surface tension of the contents in the rumen. This caused the bubbles of gas to come together to form large bubbles. These large bubbles will then rise to the surface where the gas can be belched in a normal manner by the animal.

It is expected that this product will be on the market and available from some commercial concerns by the time the next season arrives this spring.

February is time to sow grass seed if you did not do it in September, and apply fertilizer. This maybe 10-6-4 or 10-10-10 or even 12-12-12. Apply 15 pounds to each 1,000 square feet and add a large hand-ful to each shrub and small evergreen.

40 Years Ago, Farmers Found How to get More For Their Seed Dollars

Back in 1923, many farmers were not satisfied with the seed available to them. Frequently it was poor seed. Poor crops and poor returns often resulted. Farmers finally solved the problem by organizing Southern States Cooperative and supplying themselves with the good seed they needed. Today, 40 years later, on some farms, seed may still be a limiting factor. The solution is still the same: To make top profits, you plant top-quality seed. Southern States top-quality seed.

ARMY COMMEMORATION MEDAL AND CITATION are presented to Col. James L. Lear of Millersburg, Ky., by USO-NARC Commander General Herbert H. Powell, prior to the General's recent retirement. Col. Lear was cited for "distinguished and exceptionally meritorious service as information officer in the U.S. Army, United States Continental Army Command, Fort Monrose, Virginia."

In the years since and prior to 1927 many owners of special interest to the Parks and Scott families have occurred as in all families, there have been days of happiness and days of sadness. Letters best tell the story, and letters are the real reward for the reading, a book of breaking up a home.

There are letters from sons and daughters commemorating birthdays of beloved parents. These and others have been carefully preserved with a notation in the envelope "Save this letter." Oddly enough a seldom finds a nasty letter so preserved. It is a case of the good that man does lives after him, while the bad is fortunately forgotten and destroyed. Mother Scott was a great hand to store away nice letters written to her and the reward is to find one or more of your own letters thus preserved.

In the present instance one letter in particular was of special interest. It was written by John G. Parks to his father James Parks, Esq., who at that time was either a Representative or Senator. The letter is dated Jan. 11, 1831. The letter solicited support on the passage of a Legislative Act "To authorize the Nicholas County Court and Trust-

He had a large family of 14 children of whom Thompson Steele Parks was an early County Clerk of Nicholas county was another son. Mrs. Pickett Scott was a daughter of Thompson S. Parks and it was her husband, Geo. Joseph M. Scott, who first acquired ownership of the Carlisle property for the family in 1867.

tees of the Town of Carlisle to appropriate money to purchase a fire engine for the use of said Town." This letter and a draft of the proposed Act were crumpled long hand on legal size sheets which were folded and retained in the form of an envelope and bore the address on the blank side. There was no stamp on the letter, but in the upper right hand corner there is a notation. "Paid with stamps that there may not have been stamps available at that time."

The letter further stated that several interested citizens had advanced the money required to buy the fire engine in order that the town might have the desired protection. This spirit of cooperation and helpfulness has been characteristic of Carlisle citizens from the beginning.

Books and photographs also have a great part in the fact that James Parks was a student and teacher constitute a large collection of reference books, histories, poems and novels. Unfortunately literary tastes no longer go for old religious writings, and even the classics such as Dickens, Thackeray, Scott, Pope, Milton and others are not considered desirable additions to the local libraries which has only limited shelf room.
