Memories of CHS

by a Member of the 1995 Graduation Class

The consolidation of the Nicholas County high school and the Carlisle high school brings back memories of former days; of people who contributed to the success of the City school; and the host of those who profited from having attended classes there.

On the occasion of the "Final Class Reunion" of graduates of the high school, tribute should be made to the superintendent and teachers who served the school so long and faithfully. This can best be done by those whose memory records the periods during which these dedicated teachers served.

Bright in the memory of many may be included Professor W. F. Ramey, Superintendent, Miss Betty Shawhan, Miss Nancy Tribble, Miss Sally McIntyre, Miss Nancy Colville, Prof. C. F. Martin, and Miss Mabelle Scott. There were others before and since who gave unstintingly of their services to the end that their pupils might acquire even more knowledge than that perscribed in the course of study. To all of these teachers we owe a lasting debt of gratitude.

Among the delegates to the 73rd Annual Congress of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution which concluded its meetings in Lexington, Wednesday, May 22, were three Carlisle high school alumni who united in happy remembrance of their early "Schoolin" in the Carlisle City school. Two, at least, of these graduates have attained marked success in their chosen professions and it is interesting to note that one of them is Horace P. Ramey, the son of Professor Ramey whose memory we cherish.

Horace P. Ramey, an honor student of the Carlisle high school, went on to the University of Michigan where he not only earned his degree in Civil Engineering, but as an athlete he established a half mile track record which was not broken in five or more years. Horace spent many years of his professional life as an engineer for the Chicago Sanitary District, attaining and holding the position of Chief Engineer for this important governmental organization until retirement. Since then he and Mrs. Ramey have traveled through many foreign lands, culminating these interesting experiences by visiting in person with old friends at this final class reunion of the Carlisle high school.

The second alumnus of the three is William S. Hamilton, a prominent practicing attorney in Pawhuska, Oklahoma. Willie, as he was known in school days, was a fine student and an acknowledged favorite of his teacher whose memory he cheerishes after more than a half century. It is gratifying to record his comment made at the S. A. R. Congress that the Carlisle Kentucky high school was considered the second ranking high school in Kentucky during the administration of Prof. Ramey, and that he considered Miss Scott one of its finest teachers.

Little need be said about the third Carlisle high school graduate who attended the S. A. R. Congress. His "Memories of Nicholas county" as occasionally published in the Carlisle Mercury identify him. However, it may be said that he too cheerishes the memory of the years spent in the Carlisle City school, and sincerely acknowledges the debt he owes to those who helped his way to success in later years.

May the memory of Carlisle high school ever remain bright!

Lewis P. Scott

Local Growers

Nicholas County's 147 wheat voters gave an impressive 91.8 "Yes" vote in the Wheat Referendum held last Tuesday.

Although quotas failed to carry over the nation, we can take pride in the fact, that Nicholas county farmers joined other Kentucky farmers leading the nation in both the percentage of eligible votes cast and the percentage of votes favorable to wheat quotas in 1964.

As was required by the 1962 Farm Act, farmers across the nation have spoken. As stated by the Secretary, the alternative plan has been selected — that is, of unlimited production with price supports at a fifty percent level for producers voluntarily complying with acreage allotment. We can anticipate no new legislation to replace the present law provided in the 1962 Farm Act. Under this Act, we can look forward to another referendum in 1964 to determine whether quotas shall be in effect for the 1965 crop.

ARMY UNDERWRITES

Student nurses in area nursing schools may be eligible for financial assistance from the U. S. Army, according to a statement issued by Sgt. Woodring, local Army recruiter. The Army Student Nurse Program is available to qualified male and female student nurses and is designed to assist them to complete their nursing education without financial worry.

Several assistance plans have been established to cover the needs of students in both three year diploma schools of nursing an degree (collegiate) programs. Diploma school students can receive financial assistance for their senior year while degree students are eligible for assistance for both Junior and Senior years.

The Army pays tuition, books, and incidental fees for degree students accepted in the Student Nurse Program, from the first full term following entry into the Program until graduation. Both degree and diploma students receive pay and allowances ranging from a total of $210.00 per month at the beginning to $355.00 per month (after being commissioned as 2nd Lt's in the ANC). If tuition costs include room and board, then subsistence and quarters allowances are not furnished. Such "extra" benefits as free medical and dental care, 30 days paid vacation per year, and commissary and post exchange privileges are also given to Army Student Nurses.

After graduation and successful completion of State Board Examinations, the Army Nurses (now Army officers) are given Officers Orientation at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. This orientation briefs them on the Army in general and on the Medical Service in particular. Following this, the Army Nurses are ready for assignment at one of the many Army Hospitals in the United States. Nurses may make a choice of three such hospitals for assignment.

Local student nurses are invited to visit Sgt. Woodring in his office at 615½ Main street. He will give them full information without obligation on this program. Call Paris 987-3350 (collect) for an appointment.
