Touring Scenic Kentucky By Merry Lovelace

Each fall thousands of people converge on Central Kentucky, the kingdom of the horse. They come from places near and far, to attend a race meeting or a sale at famous Keeneland, to bid at the renowned Tattersalls sales, or watch the harness racing at America's fastest track, the Big Red Mile.

The exploits of the spectacular thoroughbreds are familiar to most people, but his fast-footed brothers are far outnumbered by their equally fast cousins, the standardbreds, the dainty sleepers, the prancing show horses and the hard driving trot racers.

Tattersalls in Lexington began in the 1800's as a branch of the renowned Tattersalls in England. It is now owned by the Lexington Tots Breeders Association and is world famous.

When someone bids in an unproved yearling at Tattersalls, he is automatically engaged in a gamble of considerable magnitude. He must have the courage of his convictions and the cash to back it up, because pure-blooded horses simply don't come cheap.

A colt's sale is heavily influenced by the achievements of his parents. The offspring of some illustrious champion will naturally bring more than one of less distinguished parentage.

Championship blood lines, however, are no guarantee of championship offspring. The buyer must gamble on his own judgment. He considers the young aristocrat's conformity, the shapeliness of his legs and body, his markings and his aptest temperament.

If the buyers hopes do materialize, he is indeed the owner of a good thing. Bye Bye Byrd, a Tattersalls alumnus, won $534,257 from 1957 through 1961 before he was retired to stud at excellent fees. In 1962 four of the top ten money winning standardbreds at 14 & 15 were Kentucky horses and standardbreds are in the top ten in 1961.
